BLACKMAIL TRAP GETS ALDERMAN

Percy L. Davis Took Marked Bills in Woman's Flat, Watching Detectives Say.

SHE WROTE OUT $5,000 CHECK

DETECTIVE HID UNDER COUCH

Merely a Legitimate Business Transaction, Alderman Davis Protests—Evangelist Is Also Arrested.

Alderman Percy L. Davis of 71 East 138th Street, elected to the Board of City Fathers on a Republican and Independence League backing, was locked up at Police Headquarters last night on a charge of extortion. The same charge was preferred by the police against Eben J. Owen of 190 Wadsworth Avenue, a clerk given to evangelistic work, and a familiar figure about the Tombs. The two men were arrested on the complaint of Mrs. Eva B. Carroll, and they were taken into custody by two detectives, who pounced on them last night in Mrs. Carroll's apartment in Arrowhead Court, 2 Pinehurst Avenue.

According to the story told at Headquarters last night by Deputy Commissioner Dougherty, the men were arrested just after Mrs. Carroll had handed the Alderman a check for $5,000 and $15 in marked bills. This money, the Commissioner said, was paid over on the threat that her failure to pay would mean the publication of a lengthy and damaging affidavit attacking both Mrs. Carroll and her daughter, Mrs. Engel, and sworn to by a former servant whom Mrs. Carroll had brought with her from Denver.

The woman who made the affidavit was Viola Dawson, employed in the Carroll household up to Aug. 1, when Mrs. Carroll caused her arrest on the charge of having forged three checks for small amounts in her name and in that of her daughter. The woman pleaded guilty in General Sessions on Aug. 30, and with Mrs. Carroll's consent sentence was suspended and she was free to go wherever she chose.

At this point in the story Owen enters. Owen met the girl, and with consoling and soothing words, escorted her to the Columbia Building in lower Broadway for a long heart-to-heart talk with himself and his father, whose place of business was there. During this conversation, it was suggested that the Dawson girl could tell some very interesting things about her late employer and Mrs. Engel if she chose to do so.

Then Davis comes into the story, escorting the girl to the office of Lawyer Carl H. Fowler at 55 Liberty Street and there attending the laborious process of making a forty-two page affidavit attacking the characters of Mrs. Carroll and her daughter. Here the Dawson girl drops out of the story entirely and Alderman Davis takes the leading part.

Davis then called Mrs. Carroll on the telephone, dropped a few words in her ear about this terrible accusation hanging over her, and confided his great need of money because of his desire to run for Congress. He and he alone could keep the affidavit out of the newspapers, and he would be ever so glad to do so, because he and Mrs. Carroll had met before.

So the conversation ran, and after dodging and evading and postponing Mrs. Carroll hung up the receiver, took counsel with her brother, Stillwell Connor, and immediately went to the St. Nicholas Avenue Police Station and told her story. Within a very few hours two detectives were assigned to the case and the whole story had been told to Assistant District Attorney Reynolds, who further contributed the services of County Detective Maher to the case.

Davis had an engagement to meet Mrs. Carroll on Tuesday night at Pabst's Harlem Restaurant, and Mrs. Carroll failed to keep the appointment. A rebuke came over the telephone, and the fear was expressed that she would suffer for it if she tried any such tactics. This message was duly received by Mrs. Engel, and last night there was to have been another appointment for the same restaurant.

Mrs. Carroll went around, and detectives were watching very closely. According to their story, they saw her meet and confer with the Alderman, and, according to Mrs. Carroll, he further harrowed her with suggestions of what the affidavits contained, and by intimating that such was his power and influence with the newspapers that by raising his little finger, the unpleasant accusations would be spread all over the front pages of the important dailies.

Then it was that Davis and Owen started for the Carroll apartment in Pinehurst Avenue. The word was flashed to the waiting detectives and everything was in readiness. In the apartment Mrs. Carroll was reluctant. According to the Commissioner, she wanted to be sure that she would really get the affidavit if she made out a check for $5,000 as Davis is accused of having suggested. So the check which the police had in their possession last night was dated Sept 9, and in the interval before that would be payable the affidavit was to emerge from its retirement in the safe of Lawyer Fowler. Now, Mrs. Carroll was personally acquainted with Lawyer Fowler. She knew his voice, and she insisted to Dougherty last night that it was Fowler's voice which answered over the telephone when she called up to get the assurance that the check she was handing out would not fail of its purpose.

Then the story told by the police becomes one of jubilation. The check was handed over, and with it went $15 in marked bills to recompense Owen for his trifling services in the matter. Davis was perfectly delighted with the prospect of so much cash, and in his delight he went so far as to embrace Mrs. Carroll and imprint kiss after kiss on her indignant lips.

It was in the midst of this little celebration and with both Davis and Owen smiling from ear to ear that Detective Trayer of the St. Nicholas Avenue Station rolled out from beneath a couch and Detective Martin Regan came from the dark side of a handsome screen. The smiles died on the faces of the two men, there were a few moments of indignant questioning, and then the men were led forth and down to Headquarters.

There Owen declined to have anything to say, but the Alderman was voluble enough. He was vastly offended by the whole proceedings of the evening and insisted that the police had pounced upon him for a perfectly legitimate business transaction that had not so much as a hint of extortion in it.

Mrs. Carroll has assured Commissioner Dougherty that the affidavit described to her by the Alderman was a total fabrication. She says that she met both Mr. Davis and Mr. Fowler two years ago at a meeting of the Harlem Board of Commerce, and that she entered into a business deal with them at that time for the sake of their business advice on the matter of patenting a corset of her invention.

POLICE SUPERINTENDENT OUT

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—John B. Taylor resigned to-day as Superintendent of Police at the request of Director of Public Safety Porter. Capt. George Thompson will fill his post pending the selection of his successor.

The Superintendent had been in the Police Department for twenty-seven years, advancing from the position of patrolman to the head of the department. He had been Superintendent for the last seven years.

His resignation marks the end of a long struggle with Mr. Porter. When the latter became head of the Department of Public Safety, he announced that he would leave the reorganization of the police entirely to Taylor. Later, friction developed and the political activity of several Lieutenants at the Spring primary election was laid at the Superintendent's door.

Then charges were brought by Taylor against Harry D. M. Jacobs, the head of the Vice Squad, Director Porter's own selection for that place, and after a delay Jacobs was tried and exonerated.

Director Porter has had several long conferences with Mayor Blankenburg on the Police Department during the last few months, several of them being held at the Mayor's Summer home at Pocono Pines, Penn.

Taylor was widely known, and was a member of the International Bureau of Criminal Detection and of the International Association of Chiefs of Police. He generally was considered the actual head of the police force, although it frequently was charged that politicians controlled it through him.

Charges were made against him by Mrs. Helen Taylor, wife of his youngest son, John T. Taylor, whom her husband had sued for a divorce. She declared that the Superintendent had used his office to get false evidence against her.

The divorce was granted, and a few days later young Taylor married the wealthy widow of John F. Betz, a brewer.

READ MOTHER WAS KILLED.

No Name in the News, but Justice Rosenthal Knew It Was She.

Alexander S. Rosenthal, Justice of the Municipal Court in the Seventh Brooklyn District, was reading his evening newspaper at his home in Pacific Avenue yesterday afternoon when he was startled by an account of an elderly woman being killed in a street accident in the Bronx. He read how two horses, dragging a heavy street-sweeping machine at 188th Street and Park Avenue, had become frightened at the scream of a whistle from the electric motor on a New York Central train, and, bolting beyond all control of the reins, had knocked down a gray-haired woman who was crossing the street at that point. The woman was quickly drawn beneath the sweeper, and when strong arms from the crowd of men who hurried forward were able to tilt the machine, it was found that she had been instantly killed.

Justice Rosenthal knew that his mother had gone calling in the Bronx earlier in the afternoon. It was drawing toward supper time, and she had not yet returned. The meagre descriptions furnished in the newspapers of the dead woman aroused his worst fears, and these fears were confirmed when he hurried to the Fordham Morgue. The woman was his mother, Mrs. Josephine Rosenthal of 168 Bloomfield Street, Newark. She was 76 years old.

LEVY ON D. R. COOK MANSION.

Styles & Cash Take Action Against Their Former Treasurer.

MANASQUAN, N. J., Sept. 4.—The Sheriff levied to-day on the mansion and other property of D. Randolph Cook, formerly Secretary and Treasurer of Styles & Cash, Inc., printers of New York, on order of Robert M. Boyd, Jr., attorney of New York, representing the firm. Cook and his family have been away several months from the house, where they formerly entertained lavishly.

A story is told that Cook left in a motor boat, which was wrecked at Barnegat. Cook was rescued, so the story goes, by the life savers, but concealed his identity under the name of "Thomas Cook."

Cook entered the employ of Styles & Cash as office boy, and became messenger. His promotion to be Secretary and Treasurer is said to have followed his marriage to a stenographer, who was a favorite with her employers. They made her a wedding present by taking her husband into the corporation and making him an officer, the story goes.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Sept. 4.—Robert M. Boyd, Jr., was not in Montclair to-night. His family said he was in Vineyard Haven and would not return for more than a week. Members of the corporation of Styles & Cash, who also live in Montclair, were also out of town.

D. Randolph Cook was sued in the Fall of 1911 by a Swedish servant girl, who alleged that he kicked her when she made a mistake in serving drinks. Cook was absolved by the jury.

CHALONER STARTS A CLUB.

Minus His Shirt, He Speaks on the Value of Mass Meetings.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 4.—With only an undershirt under his white linen coat, and carrying the cane which he used during his incarceration in Bloomingdale Asylum, John Armstrong Chaloner spoke to-night at Thompson's Hall to explain the principles of a National Mass Meeting Club, which he will organize for the purpose of discussing public questions and public men.

He read his address, which was divided into three parts, and contained twenty-four pages of closely typewritten matter, relating to his fight on the lunacy laws and his choice for the Presidency. Concerning Col. Roosevelt and the recall of judicial decisions he said:

"I am in hearty accord with Col. Roosevelt concerning the recall of Judges. Concerning the recall of judicial decisions, however, I cannot say that I am in accord with him. Decisions at times work injustice and hardships, and must do so until the end of time and the advent of the millennium."

EDISON FORGETS TO SLEEP.

He Works 122 Hours Out of 144 to Perfect Disk Phonograph.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 4.—Despite his advancing years Thomas A. Edison was so busy last week that he found time for less than 22 hours' sleep in the course of the six work days. By his own accounting he devoted 122 hours of the 144 to hard work.

This spurt of energy was inspired by the need of finishing touches on his disk phonograph. To-day he was ready to say that the invention was about perfected, and he hopes and believes that he will be able to put it on the market by Oct. 1 or thereabouts.

GOV. WILSON SCORES ROOSEVELT'S PLANS

What Colonel Proposes, He Says, Was Tried in Aristotle's Time and Since, with Disaster.

FREEDOM OF INDUSTRY VITAL

Death in Industrial Control—Social Leaders with Workingmen, with Whom Governor Dines.

Roosevelt's policies and platform were analyzed and denounced by Gov. Wilson in a speech last night at a workingman's dinner in the Yorkville Casino. To accept Roosevelt's plans, Gov. Wilson urged, would be merely to admit that Americans were tired of their liberty and were willing to surrender it. He declared his personal purpose to make war upon the Roosevelt programme with all his strength, and he appealed to the people to reject it as proof that they needed no savior, except themselves.

All there was to the Roosevelt propaganda, he insisted, had been tried time and time again clear back to the days of Aristotle, and, as a historian, he declared that every time the people had tried that sort of thing they had done so to their own disaster.

Gov. Wilson came to New York under the auspices of the Woodrow Wilson Working Men's League, which had arranged a dollar dinner for him.

From the National Arts Club, where he was applauded by a hundred editors of newspapers printed in New York in foreign languages for the views he expressed on the immigrant question, he was driven to the Yorkville Casino, where the workingmen were prepared to give him a warm welcome to their board.

While most of those at the tables were workingmen, or the wives of workingmen, there was one table that could easily be distinguished from the others. Those who ate their dollar dinners there were from Newport, and apparently they were in their usual dinner gowns. There was Miss Julia Robbins in a black gown with a large black hat, at which many of the other women stole many furtive glances. Next to Miss Robbins was Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, while others in the group were Mrs. J. B. Eustis, Miss C. B. Crosby, Mrs. Leigh Hunt, Mrs. J. B. Fontaine, Miss Catherine Leckie, Clarence McCornick, and Lydig Hoyt. Mrs. J. Borden Harriman had invited the group to show them how her work for the Wilson and Marshall Women's League was progressing.

The men of the party arose with the others in the hall when they arose to shout and whistle.

There were many speakers at the dinner besides Gov. Wilson. A New Jersey labor leader reviewed the Governor's career as an advocate of reform legislation in New Jersey, and he brought down heavy applause. Congressman Sulzer told how he was a friend of the workingman, first, last, and all the time.

But the speaker whom the people had assembled to hear was Gov. Wilson.

The Governor referred to Mrs. Harriman's party as a hopeful sign that the days of class-conscious warfare were coming to an end.

"I always like to feel that the company I am addressing," remarked Gov. Wilson, "represents the united interests of people who can be divided, if divided at all, only artificially."

Pleases the Workingmen.

Gov. Wilson had no manuscript before him. His familiar conversational tone, his reference to the men in evening suits and the women in evening gowns so strongly in contrast to the plainly dressed workingwomen and their husbands brought a laugh from both groups and placed both at their ease. The Governor kept his audience that way for over an hour while he brought forth hearty laughter at his anecdotes and applause for his epigrams.

"Men waste their energies if they do not co-operate in a proper way, and, therefore, the way in which large bodies of workingmen are guided and directed is of capital importance in the creation of wealth. If every man acted on his own initiative, we should not be half as well off as we are under a system of careful coordination, each to the other. When any one class-conscious group regards its interests as separate from other interests it is wrong.

"You cannot have prosperity unless you have freedom of achievement," declared Gov. Wilson as he opened upon the Roosevelt programme, "and I am devoted to the idea of freedom because only those nations have been rich as nations in which there was absolute industrial freedom.

"When we find the control of industry or even of the major branches of industry we know that a condition exists that is just as inimical to the true interests of the men in whose hands it is concentrated as it is to the interests of the people as a whole. Men who wish to concentrate the control of industry are wishing themselves harm for the very reason that the whole vigor of the race, the whole vigor of civilization, consists in the consciousness on the part of every man that he is not shut out from independent action.

"I believe in democracy because it releases the energies of every human being," declared the Governor, and when a burst of applause had subsided, he added, "you know that literature has always languished where some authority forbade men to say what they really thought. You cannot have great spirits if men dare not express their spirits. You cannot have great men if you go on the assumption that God is afraid to hear the truth. You must go on the theory that the Maker of truth is willing to hear it or else you will have a puny race, a restrained energy, a contemptible polity. When I resist, therefore, the concentration of power, I am resisting the processes of death, because the concentration of power is what always precedes the destruction of human initiative, and, therefore, of human energy."

Hits the Tariff Again.

The tariff came in for a flaying such as Gov. Wilson gave it before the farmers of Pennsylvania at Williams Grove and the up-State New Yorkers at Buffalo. "In choosing an exaggerated protective tariff," Gov. Wilson said, "we chose beforehand to be provincial and to have as little to do with the rest of the world as possible." Gov. Wilson insisted that if the people only knew how much they were paying in indirect taxes through the tariff they would soon put an end to tariff abuses. He said that one only had to look at the anger of a returning American tourist when forced to pay up at the Custom House to tell how angry all the people would be if they had to pay over to a customs officer the tariff they actually pay on each thing they purchase.

The Governor called attention to the old claim that the tariff was for the workingman. "But I notice," he added, "that it is admitted now that they did not get their share. If they did get their share of the earnings of production the American workingmen would be beginning to put the money of the world in their pocket as well as the money of America."

The tariff, as a restriction against the participation by America in the commerce of the world, appealed to Gov. Wilson as a growing menace because of the overcrowding of the home market. "If you want to see more and more men thrown

LONE BANDIT ROBS NEW YORK TOURISTS

WOULD TAKE CURRENCY ONLY

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 4.—Following an attempt last night, a robber boarded the New York Limited train on the Louisville & Nashville line to-night, robbed the passengers and the mail, engaged in a desperate struggle with John Baer, the engineer, was badly wounded and taken prisoner, and to-night is in jail at Bay St. Louis, Miss.

The train was a solid Pullman vestibule and carried no express car. There were seventy-five passengers aboard, mostly for Eastern cities, including many for New York.

The Pullman officials cautioned the passengers, and many were able to hide their valuables. The robber refused watches, saying he wanted money only. All the valuables were dropped into his grip and were found in it, together with dynamite, nitroglycerine, and two revolvers.

The second attempt to-night, like the first, took place within the city limits of New Orleans. It is believed that two fugitive bandits took a road to New Orleans, and a police cordon has been thrown out around the city in an effort to intercept them. The point of the assault was a lonely swamp, with but one road running through it.

Last night the train was saved only through an accident. A fast freight was running ahead of the limited, which was fifteen minutes late. The three men with their auto, and all heavily masked, signaled the train with a red lantern and stopped it. Discovering their mistake, and covering the members of the train crew with revolvers, the men ordered the freight to proceed, firing several shots to speed it on its way.

Telephone lines to points near to-night's attack are out of service, and automobile parties sent out from here had not returned at midnight.

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 4.—According to a telegraph message from Superintendent Charles Marshall of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, who happened to be traveling on the train that was held up, the robber evidently expected to rob the express car. He was fully equipped for safeblowing, but there was no express car on the train he had to take what he could from the passengers.

BECHTEL CAR HIT MAN, FLED.

Rich Brewer Didn't Stop After Striking Laborer—Victim Will Die.

Driving at furious speed, George Bechtel, the young millionaire brewer of Staten Island, sent his high-powered touring car crashing into a laborer who was working on the street in Fort Wadsworth yesterday evening. The victim, who is Joseph Mosco, 29 years old, of 77 Berger Avenue, West Brighton, was working with a gang laying pipe, and did not see the approach of the automobile. He was rushed to St. Vincent's Hospital, where it was stated at midnight that he was mortally injured.

Bechtel, who, according to witnesses, was driving the machine, had five other men with him in the automobile. After the accident he put on additional speed and whirled away without pausing to ascertain how badly the laborer had been hurt. The police got the number of the machine, however, and learned from eyewitnesses that Bechtel was driving. An alarm was sent out for his arrest, but early this morning he had not been located. At the Bechtel home at 566 Richmond Road, Stapleton, S. I., it was learned at midnight that he had not returned and that the family had no idea of his whereabouts. The young man recently inherited a fortune on the death of his father, who was one of the most prominent citizens of the borough.

FACTORY TO QUIT OHIO.

Shoe Company Official Declares the New Laws Will Drive It Out.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 4.—"As soon as we can find a desirable location we shall move our factory out of Ohio," to-day declared Walter J. Wichgar, Vice President and Treasurer of the Cincinnati Shoe Company and former President of the Business Men's Club of this city, when he learned the result of the Constitutional amendment election.

"This is the greatest mistake the people of Ohio have ever made, and it not only will drive many of the most important industries out of the State, but it will close the doors against those that might otherwise have sought to locate here. It will be a death blow to the industrial development and activity of the State and the effect soon will be felt."

Mr. Wichgar's dissatisfaction was caused principally by the victory of the initiative and referendum and the minimum wage amendments.

Special to The New York Times.

PENN YAN, N. Y., Sept. 4.—"The fear of being hazed and the lack of funds," said Miss Charlotte Swartz, aged 57 years, of Athens, Penn., "is the reason I have postponed from year to year going to school."

Miss Swartz entered Keuka Institute this morning to prepare for Keuka College, enrolling with boys and girls forty years her junior. What education she now has she obtained without the aid of a teacher. She intends now, however, to graduate from Keuka College, although she is old enough to be a grandmother of [illegible]

COLONEL'S PLATFORM EDITED BY SOCIALIST

Local leaders of the Socialist Party and adherents of the new Progressive Party were keenly interested last night when it became known that certain planks in the platform of the Bull Moose organization and a portion of Col. Roosevelt's now famous "declaration of principles" speech at Chicago were written by Robert W. Bruere, a prominent New York Socialist and one of the Presidential Electors of that party from this State.

According to information received last night Bruere at the personal invitation of the Colonel visited Sagamore Hill shortly before Col. Roosevelt left to attend the National Convention of his new party, and in the course of a long interview revised and edited Mr. Roosevelt's speech and wrote a number of paragraphs for insertion in the document.

Incidentally, he was permitted to read a rough draft of the platform upon which Col. Roosevelt had been working since the Republican National Convention, and at his advice a number of revolutionary planks relating to Government supervision of trusts and Federal protection of labor were added. Before accepting Col. Roosevelt's invitation to visit him, it is declared, Bruere consulted with William D. Haywood, a member of the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party, and obtained his sanction to aid the Bull Moose chieftain. Haywood is the leader of the Industrial Workers of the World, the revolutionary and Socialist labor organization which conducted the big Lawrence textile strike, and was at one time in his career characterized by Roosevelt as an "undesirable citizen."

Bruere was the executive head of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor until about two years ago, when he resigned to take up magazine work. He is widely known as a sociological writer, and has been a member of the Socialist Party for many years. He is at present an active worker in Branch 1 of the Socialist organization, with which most of the "intellectual Socialists" are affiliated. His wife is also known as a magazine writer. His brother, Henry Bruere, is one of the Board of Directors of the Bureau of Municipal Research.

The story of the manner in which the Socialist writer rendered assistance to Col. Roosevelt first reached the Central Committee of the Socialist Party in this city about two weeks ago in the form of an anonymous letter. The matter was referred to the Executive Committee for investigation and the latter body wrote to Bruere, requesting him to answer the charge.

Bruere sent a long letter in reply admitting the truth of the accusation, but protesting his unswerving allegiance to the Socialist Party and its principles. He explained that he had been invited with other sociologists to visit Oyster Bay and make suggestions upon the Progressive platform. Before doing so, he added, he consulted with Haywood, who advised him to go ahead and help the Bull Moose leader out.

Accordingly, the letter continued, he went to Sagamore Hill and suggested a number of things which were acceptable to the Colonel and were embodied by him in the "Conofession of Faith" delivered before the Progressive Convention a few days later. He also read the proposed platform of the new party, and offered a number of additional planks, all of which were incorporated in the document later. At his personal request, he said, Col. Roosevelt did not give out to the press his name as one of his visitors. The letter concluded with the assertion that the writer had visited Col. Roosevelt as a Socialist, and the Bull Moose leader fully understood that he was a Socialist when he listened to his advice and adopted his suggestions. There was absolutely no misunderstanding on that point, Bruere's letter declared. The writer insisted that he assured Col. Roosevelt that he personally would not support him for President, and it was on this understanding that the third-term candidate accepted his assistance.

Bruere's letter has highly incensed most of the members of the New York County Executive Committee of the Socialist Party. There were some on the committee who intimated last night that the name of the offender would be dropped as an Elector on the Socialist ticket, but this was not confirmed by Chairman Julius Cerber, when the latter was seen last night at his home at 239 East Eighty-fourth Street.

"I am at a loss to understand how the newspapers got wind of this matter," said Mr. Cerber, "and I must decline absolutely to discuss it at this time. The Executive Committee will take up the case at its next meeting on Sept. 14. What action the committee may deem proper to take I cannot foretell."

Mr. Cerber admitted that he had in his possession the letter written by Bruere to the committee, but declined to make public the contents beyond stating that the writer had admitted having aided Col. Roosevelt in the manner indicated.

"No one has a copy of the letter except myself," said Mr. Cerber, "and it will not be made public at this time. I have permitted my fellow-members on the committee to read it, and acquaint themselves with its contents, but I will not divulge anything which it contains until later, when the committee has passed upon the case."

"Does Mr. Bruere explain in detail what he caused to be embodied in Roosevelt's 'Confession of Faith'?" asked a TIMES reporter.

"That is something I am not ready to go into," was the response.

"Does Mr. Bruere say in the letter that he obtained the sanction of William D. Haywood before accepting Col. Roosevelt's invitation?"

"Several names of Socialists with whom he says he advised are contained in the letter," was the reply. "It would not be proper for me to say who they are."

When the reporter sought to find Bruere at his home, 39½ Washington Square, it was learned that the magazine writer and his wife were spending their vacation in Wyoming County in this State. A young woman who answered the ring at the door of the Bruere apartments explained that she was Miss Rankin, secretary to Bruere.

"I recall distinctly the visit made by Mr. Bruere to Sagamore Hill," said Miss Rankin. "It was at the personal request of Col. Roosevelt that he made the trip and on the understanding that his name would not be used. He advised with a nubmer of Socialist leaders before deciding to accept the invitation. One of them may have been Mr. Hayward, but I really couldn't say anything about that.

"Whatever Mr. Bruere inserted in Col. Roosevelt's speech or in the platform of the Progressive Party were good Socialist doctrines, I'm sure. I don't see why the Executive Committe should make any rumpus. They ought to be glad to have any Socialist doctrines espoused by other political parties. It will help to make converts for them. I can't believe that they will remove Mr. Bruere's name as an Elector. It would hardly be just, and it would certainly show a very narrow prejudice on their part, don't you think? Spch an act would be totally at variance with the true spirit of Socialism, which is supposed to stand for personal liberty and the brotherhood of man."

Notwithstanding Miss Rankin's view of the case, however, it was prophesied last night by a prominent Socialist who is high in his party's councils that Bruere would be subjected to stern rebuke by the Executive Committee.

SHOT A BLACKHAND AGENT.

Rockefeller Employe Refused to Pay $500, but His Foe Escaped.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Joseph Drago, proprietor of a fruit store in Cortland Street and an employe of John D. Rockefeller's estate, was approached at noon to-day by a member of the Black Hand Society, who demanded $500.

Drago refused to pay, and a pistol duel took place in Fountain Square. Drago shot the Black Hand agent in the leg and then ran away. The agent held the crowd at bay with a revolver and made his escape along the railroad tracks.

Drago was later captured by Policeman Creiger, but the Black Hand man could not be found.

Drago would not tell the police anything excepting that his foe demanded $500.

"A private telegram received here from Sevastopol states that the crews of the naval squadron in the Black Sea have mutinied.

"The warships bombarded the forts, which replied vigorously and sank one of the attacking vessels.

"Heavy gunfire was proceeding when the message was dispatched from Sevastopol.

"Reports of disaffection in the Russian Black Sea Fleet have been current for some days past."

INTEREST CONAN DOYLE.

He Is Watching Developments in the Revival of Cattle Maiming.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Sir Arthur Conan Doyle has written to George Edalji, the victim of a celebrated miscarriage of justice, saying that he is watching events in Staffordshire, where the recent recrudescence of cattle-maiming outrages has revived memories of the novelist's successful campaign on behalf of Edalji.

Sir Arthur's chief interest in the matter of righting miscarriages of justice is at present, however, in regard to the Oscar Slater case.

FOR WINTER VACATIONS.

German Imperial Bank Offers Inducements to Clerks to Take Them.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—A new fashion, for Winter instead of Summer holidays, is about to be set by the Imperial Bank of Germany, which employs thousands of clerks in all parts of the country.

The bank's proposal, which is likely to be imitated in other countries if the experiment is successful, is to offer the special inducement of extra leave for all members of the staff who are willing to take their holidays between Sept. 15 and May 1. The extra leave will consist of two days for each week of the regular Summer holiday.

The idea in the minds of the Directors is to do away with the necessity of engaging a large number of clerks temporarily during the Summer to do the work of those who are away.

MISS KELLER DELAYS MOVE.

She Will Join Schenectady Welfare Board in November.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Miss Helen Keller will not come to this city until November, although she planned earlier in the year to join the Public Welfare Board here to-day. John Macy, secretary to Mayor George R. Lunn, at whose home in Wrentham, Mass., Miss Keller has lived for many years, explained to-day that Miss Keller is now training her voice for a lecture tour, and that she will not leave home until her studies are complete and she has attempted her first speech in public.

As a member of the Public Welfare Board, Miss Keller will investigate schools, playgrounds, tenements, and so on, and report on their condition to the city officials. She will still live with Mr. and Mrs. Macy, who intend taking up residence here.

BASKET MASTS UNSTABLE.

Tests by Navy on the San Matos Disclose Weaknesses.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 4.—Firing tests by battleships of the Atlantic Fleet upon a "basket mast" on the hull of the old San Marcos in Tangier Sound are said to have demonstrated that the battle masts of ships in the United States Navy cannot withstand the raking fire of actual war fire.

The fleet passed out to sea to-day in a brisk gale, leaving the hulk of the San Marcos, formerly the Texas, a battered and sunken wreck with hardly enough of her upper works left to offer further material for target practice.

A special board will report on the firing tests to the Navy Department. The basket mast had been declared to be practically indestructible in a heavy fire and far superior to the solid one formerly used.

NOT TO BLAME FOR SON.

Court Exonerates Father of McKinley's Slayer for Resenting Taunts.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 4.—Paul Czolgosz, father of Leon Czolgosz, who assassinated President McKinley, was complimented by Municipal Judge Levine to-day for having thrashed Synatz Russinisi, who taunted Czolgosz for his son's act.

Czolgosz was in court on an assault and battery charge preferred by Russinsisi. After declaring the father of the assassin not guilty, Judge Levine said: "Czolgosz was taunted by Russinsisi and five companions about his son's rash act. In this case the father is not responsible for his son's sins. Czolgosz should have whipped the whole bunch."

WHITMAN TO ATTEND TRIAL

ALDERMEN CALL POLICE HEAD

Commissioner Waldo Is to Testify on Sept. 16, One Week After Mayor Gaynor.

Ex-Inspector, now Captain, Cornelius G. Hayes, it was learned yesterday, accuses Mayor Gaynor and Police Commissioner Waldo of direct responsibility for present corruption in the Police Department by initiating and enforcing the famous "outward order and decency" policy in dealing with gambling and other vices in this city.

Hayes declares that this policy put a premium upon police protection of vice, and encouraged grafting. This was the purport of his statement to District Attorney Whitman in their conference at the Bar Association on Tuesday night. And the accusation is at present unsupported bya scintilla of evidence. It rests solely upon Hayes's unsupported word.

Capt. Hayes, now under suspension, will be placed on trial to-morrow morning on charges of having made a false official statement. The statement was that no Police Inspector could make raids on disorderly resorts without a direct order from Commissioner Waldo.

Capt. Hayes expects to have this statement substantiated to-morrow by the testimony of Deputy Police Commissioner McKay, and as a result of the revelations which Capt. Hayes promises to make on the witness stand at his trial he has predicted that Mr. Waldo will not remain Police Commissioner for twenty-four hours thereafter.

Hayes Demands a Hearing.

Capt. Hayes does not charge Mayor Gaynor or Mr. Waldo with corruption such as has honeycombed the Police Department in the uniformed ranks and even in some branches of the non-uniformed. His charge is simply that Mayor Gaynor by his famous "outward order and decency" attitude decreed, and Commissioner Waldo faithfully carried out, a system of dealing with gambling and vice in the city which put grafting by the police at a premium, and at the same time left the city outwardly clean but inwardly "wide open."

So fearful did Hayes become a few days ago that untoward events might occur to cheat him of his day in court, (a day which he declares cannot come too soon for him,) that he negotiated for the meeting with District Attorney Whitman which was held in the Bar Association on Tuesday night. His one dread was that he might be prevented from facing his accuser in a police trial until after his own reputation had been sullied by the finding against him of an indictment.

It was for this that he sought Mr. Whitman; to receive the assurance, if it could be obtained, that no matter what was in store for him it should be delayed until after his trial. That alone was Hayes's request; there was no plea for special consideration or for mercy. He was ready, it appeared, to meet whatever fate might be his, but for delay he was ready to plead.

There is no doubt that Hayes made some offer for such delay as Mr. Whitman might see fit to grant to him. What he offered is not known or whether he promised any revelations concerning fellow-officers in the department. Nor is it known that he won the delay he so much wanted.

It is certain that the District Attorney has evidence against Hayes which he believes constitutes ground for an indictment. It is understood that the demoted Inspector prefaced his request for delay by a demand to know whether the District Attorney meant to indict him, and that Mr. Whitman was forced to respond that this was certainly his intention, that not only did he mean to indict him, but that he had three counts against him on any one of which an indictment could be found.

Hayes dropped the subject of indictment instantly to turn to that matter seemingly more interesting to him—his trial. He explained the need of delay if he were to be indicted by declaring that first he wished to call Deputy Commissioner McKay in his own defense and to show through him that the charge he had made concerning Mr. Waldo's orders was correct, and had been admitted by the Police Commissioner in the presence of Mr. McKay.

Hayes seemed possessed of a full realization of the effect his testimony would have on the Police Department in general, on Commissioner Waldo in particular, and on Mayor Gaynor, perhaps, more than any other. He declared that he had a suspicion which amounted to a certainty that if it could be avoided his trial would not be called, but would be postponed again and again. He declared that he didn't believe Mr. Waldo had any stomach for putting him on trial, and then it was that he explained his belief by the boast that his testimony would end Mr. Waldo's Commissionership within twenty-four hours.

Whitman to be at Police Trial.

Hayes declared that his one desire was for a speedy trial, and besides begging Mr. Whitman to drop all indictment proceedings until after the police trial, he asked him to use his influence in bringing about a speedy hearing. Whether or not the District Attorney made any promises as to the time that he would hold off indictments is not known. Mr. Whitman will be present in the trial room when Hayes goes on the stand to-morrow morning, and it is believed that the District Attorney will withhold any action that he may have in hand at least for a reasonable length of time.

Hayes is to be a witness later before the John Doe inquiry, it seems assured, as it is understood that in his conversation with the policeman, Mr. Whitman cautioned him that whatever information he gave might be employed by the District Attorney in framing questions to be put to him at Justice Goff's hearings. Hayes laughingly asked what Mr. Whitman would do if he told a different story on the witness stand, to which the District Attorney replied that he would summon Hayes's counsel, Thomas D. Thatcher, who was present at the interview, as a witness.

Hayes, unafraid as he appeared to be of any action against him later, explained in detail just how he expected to prove the truth of his assertion regarding Waldo's orders. He said that when he was in charge of the Fourth Inspection District, with headquarters in the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, Deputy Commissioner McKay called on him one evening and told him that he had discovered that several gambling houses and disorderly resorts were operating within his territory.

Mr. McKay called on Inspector Hayes to close them at once, and then the Inspector, driven of necessity, explained that he could not do so, that he was acting under orders from Commissioner Waldo in taking no action against these places without a direct order from the Commissioner. Mr. McKay was startled, amazed, and incredulous. He replied angrily that Hayes as an Inspector had no right to make such a statement to him, a Deputy Commissioner, and he demanded that Hayes accompany him to the presence of Mr. Waldo and there repeat his allegations.

This, Hayes is understood to be ready to swear to-morrow, is exactly what occurred. He and Mr. McKay visited Mr. Waldo in his office, where the Deputy Commissioner repeated Hayes's statements, and then sat back waiting for the Commissioner to pronounce them unqualifiedly false. But Mr. Waldo did no such thing, according to Hayes. Instead, and to this Hayes is expected to testify to-morrow, the Commissioner declared after a time that perhaps Hayes's phrasing had not been exactly his own, but that it was in line with Mayor Gaynor's plan for outward order and decency that these places be not disturbed, and that perhaps just then it would be well to take no action against them.

McKay to Testify on the Point.

On the assumption that Hayes is telling the truth, the question of his success at to-morrow's trial is one solely dependent on Mr. McKay. The Deputy Commissioner is a West Point man, and it is inconceivable to his friends that he should dodge in the smallest degree, even to save his chief and his own official post. Men who know Mr. McKay declared last night that if the circumstances were such as Hayes had related there was absolutely no doubt of Mr. McKay's course in the matter; he would tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. Mr. McKay himself was out of town last night.

The incident in which Mr. McKay figures is only one of several that Hayes related to the District Attorney, however. Throughout the conversation he posed as a policeman who always had tried to do his duty, and he declared that time and again he had sought to place policemen in front of the doors of disorderly resorts and gambling houses, only to receive orders from Headquarters that such action was not in line with the Mayor's outward order and decency idea.

In particular, Hayes is understood to have called attention to his attempt to station a man outside of Canfield's gambling house, which before the reapportionment of the districts was in his territory. In this case he was ordered to remove the man, though he himself knew that the place was running wide open.

In another instance Hayes is said to have declared that he laid specific evidence before the Commissioner without any subsequent action by Mr. Waldo. The instance is that of a Police Captain concerning whom word reached Headquarters that he had been accepting graft. He was transferred at once, and Hayes is said to have related that Mr. Waldo ordered him to investigate.

The Inspector found, after much work, that the Captain had been receiving $220 a month from the liquor dealers of his precinct in return for his failure to press excise violations. Hayes now charges that he reported this fact to Mr. Waldo, but that subsequently the guilty Captain was not brought up on charges and nothing worse than the transfer which had already occurred ever befell him.

Commissioner Waldo was asked about this case yesterday, and denied absolutely that Hayes had ever made such a report to him. Another story which was heard yesterday and which was put up to Mr. Waldo was that a certain politician had interested himself on behalf of Rosenthal and that after he had pleaded with Mr. Waldo for his good graces, Rosenthal was allowed to open his uptown house. To this the Commissioner replied simply that Rosenthal had been closed and that this should speak for itself.

Rosenthal Political Victim.

In the closing up of Rosenthal's resort and in the stationing there of a policeman, not in front of the door but inside the house for every hour of the twenty-four, those who learned of Hayes's story yesterday saw a new working of the "System." Whatever might have been the outward order and decency idea in relation to other places it certainly was not put into operation in the case of Rosenthal, and the explanation offered yesterday was one that has been heard before—that the big politician never intended that Rosenthal should operate, believing that were the police to have some victim who should come to the attention of the public, they could more easily overlook other friends of the politician who the latter was anxious should run unmolested.

On the merits of the Rosenthal case, so far as the closing of the gambling house is concerned, Hayes is understood not to have committed himself. Regarding the gambler's death, however, it is understood that Hayes declared the theory accepted by many of the public was the theory accepted by most of the police.

Hayes also attacked Becker's honesty.

What he was doing was known, and why he was doing it, and Hayes is said to have declared that if Commissioner Waldo was ignorant of what almost every other man in the department knew, he certainly could pretend to little knowledge of the department.

Waldo's Attitude in Writing.

Friends of the ex-Inspector made public yesterday a letter from Commissioner Waldo to Chief Magistrate McAdoo, which, they asserted, was strong corroborative evidence of Hayes's contention that there was an order against raiding resorts or gambling places without direct authorization from Mr. Waldo. Here is the letter:

Police Department, City of New York,
Office of the Commissioner,
July 22, 1912.

Hon. William McAdoo, Chief City Magistrate, Belgrade Lakes, Me.:

My Dear Judge: I have your letter of July 20. Under the present regulations of the department members of the uniformed force and of the Detective Bureau are not permitted to enter alleged gambling houses, saloons, or alleged houses of prostitution for the purpose of obtaining evidence.

All work in connection with the enforcement of law against places of this character is intrusted to a special squad, known as the "Central Office Squad."

The police officer had no right to refuse to serve a warrant at the request of a Magistrate. I hope you are having a pleasant vacation and to see you upon your return.

Sincerely yours,
R. WALDO, Police Commissioner.

The circumstances of the writing of this letter are said to have been these: A warrant had been issued by Magistrate Corrigan on last July 14 against a resort and it was given to Detective Charles Q. Nelson to serve. The latter declared that he could not do so, giving as the reason that he was not permitted to enter a disorderly house without first notifying the office of the Chief Inspector and getting permission. Magistrate Corrigan was so astounded that he addressed a letter to Mr. McAdoo, who wrote to Mr. Waldo for first-hand information.

It is said that Hayes has other letters which he will submit as evidence at his trial. It was expected that his lawyer, Thomas D. Thatcher, would have something to say last night, and it was hoped he might make public something about these letters. He had announced earlier in the day that he might have a statement to issue at the Bar Association last night. There, however, he said he had decided to make no statement. He admitted that he had been in conference with District Attorney Whitman for more than an hour last night, but said he couldn't give any details of what it was about.

"Will you say whether your interview with Mr. Whitman to-night was in regard to what happened at the conference last night or about some new facts which are to be brought out?" Mr. Thatcher was asked.

"I do not wish to commit myself at all," was Mr. Thatcher's rejoinder, "but I think that you can probably imagine what Mr. Whitman and I were discussing."

Next Mr. Thatcher was asked if the question of immunity for Inspector Hayes had been brought up in his talk with Whitman.

"I don't see any reason for immunity," he replied.

Dix to Call New Term.

Mr. Whitman's conference with Mr. Thatcher last night came at the conclusion of a busy day. In the morning he went to Albany to consult with Gov. Dix over the calling of a new Grand Jury panel from which might be selected the Extraordinary Grand Jury which is to sit with Justice Goff in the John Doe inquiry.

Mr. Whitman did not return to the city until about 6 o'clock last night, and he would say then only that he had had a satisfactory trip. He declined to tell the result of his conference. Dispatches from Albany, however, stated that Gov. Dix had readily granted Mr. Whitman's request and had set Oct. 7 as the day for the convening of the new Grand Jury. He reappointed Justice Goff to take charge of this new Extraordinary Term.

To-day Mr. Whitman will have to turn his attention for an instant from the general investigation to the matter of the trial of Lieut. Charles Becker for Rosenthal's murder. Justice Goff will sit in Extraordinary Term and Mr. Whitman will appear before him to make his motion for a special panel of 250 talesmen from whom to select the jury that shall try Becker. Notice of the motion was served on Justice Goff the other day, and he will sit to-morrow especially to receive it.

It would not be astounding if John F. McIntyre, counsel for Becker, were to be in court. He is far from satisfied with events in the case so far, and it is known that he will push his efforts on Becker's behalf almost to the point of becoming in contempt of court. He is most dissatisfied with the early date set for the trial, and should he appear in court to-day it is believed that it will be for the purpose once again of asking a delay. He said yesterday:

"I am not going to do anything that is disrespectful to the court or anything that may cause criticism on the part of the public. Neither do I intend to do anything that may be deemed by Justice Goff to be improper or contemptuous. But I certainly will do everything that the law will permit me to do. I want a reasonable amount of time to prepare the defense of Lieut. Becker."

He added that he would make a motion when the case is called again on Sept. 12, but that he is not at liberty to say what this motion will be.

There is no motion anticipated on the part of Mr. McIntrye except one for a change of venue. It has been known for some time that he contemplated making this motion, but it is known, too, that he intended not to make it until he was satisfied that he had exhausted every effort to persuade Justice Goff to grant him what he believes to be only proper delay.

The trial of Becker cannot come too speedily for Mr. Whitman, on the other hand. Already one of his witnesses has left the city, spirited away, the District Attorney believes, by the influences of the "System," and yesterday it became known that Louis Kreese, the Coney Island waiter, the man who identified Jack Sullivan, the newsboy, as one he had seen at the murder scene, was in fear of his life.

Kreese is being guarded day and night by a detective of Mr. Whitman's staff, and it is not that he shall not leave the city so much as that he may not receive injury that the District Attorney is supplying a guard. Kreese, as a rule, spends the day in the office of Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss, and at night he is escorted to his home by Detective Robert Stewart. Stewart accompanies him in the daytime also if he wishes to make an excursion from the District Attorney's office, for the little waiter admits he is in deadly fear of attack.

COUPE TO MAKE DEPOSITION.

Witness, Near Breakdown, Says Police Did Not Try to Get Murderers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PRESTON, England, Sept. 4.—Thomas Coupe, in an interview to-day, said he did not see the crime actually committed, but saw the assassins escape immediately afterward. He added that he was prepared to assist the District Attorney by giving a deposition to the American Consul. He denied making charges against the police attributed to him.

Coupe mentioned further that he was on the scene of the crime within five seconds of the firing of the shots and actually saw the murderers getting into their motor car to go away. Although it was 2 o'clock in the morning, the illuminations were so bright that if possible it was lighter than day itself, and he had a clear view of the incidents he described.

Coupe emphatically denied that he received any money from the defense or from any person interested in the murder in order to induce him to leave the United States. He said he would not accept a bribe in any circumstances.

Later he issued this statement:

From a window on the ground floor of the Elks' Club I saw the gray motor car so plainly that I could identify its number, and I could also identify every man who got into it. Several policemen could see everything as well as I could, but I saw nothing to indicate that they made any attempt to stop the assassins.

Coupe seems to be on the verge of a nervous breakdown. He is staying with his brother, who says he is evidently in great fear, while some of his friends express the belief that he was driven from New York by threats of death.

WALDO GETS SUBPOENA.

Summoned to Testify Before Aldermen on Sept. 16.

Police Commissioner Waldo was subpoenaed yesterday to appear before the Curran Aldermanic Investigating Committee as a witness. The Commissioner declared that he would be glad to appear and render all the assistance he could.

The subpoena was served by Charles S. Guthrie, an assistant counsel to the committee, the committee wishing to show every courtesy to the men they must summon before it. It calls for Mr. Waldo's attendance at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of next Sept. 16, just a week after Mayor Gaynor has promised to appear before the committee, and from this fact it was suggested yesterday that the committee expected to be busy for a week with the questioning of the Mayor.

This letter was handed to Commissioner Waldo with the subpoena:

Hon. Rhinelander Waldo, Police Commissioner, New York City.

Sir: We beg to hand you herewith a subpoena of the Special Committee appointed by the Board of Aldermen to inquire into police conditions, to appear before it in the Council Chamber in the City Hall at 2 o'clock P. M. on Monday, Sept. 16, 1912.

We desire to receive your testimony concerning the problems of police administration, with which you have been concerned during your term as Police Commissioner.

We appreciate your cordial cooperation, and beg to remain, yours respectfully,
HENRY H. CURRAN, Chairman.

It is expected that, in addition to Mr. Waldo, almost every man who has held the post of Police Commissioner since the Commissionership of Gen. Greene will be summoned before the committee. Every man thus summoned will receive a subponea, for Chairman Henry H. Curran said yesterday that to the Mayor alone would be accorded the privilege of appearing before the committee on invitation.

The committee has not yet arranged any schedule of hearings, and will not be able to do so until after the opening session on next Monday. This is one reason that a week has been left open for the Mayor to testify. Many of the subsequent actions of the committee will depend on the Mayor's statements, and a week was thought none too short to allow these developments.

CITY CLUB AIDS INQUIRY.

R. S. Binkerd, Its Secretary, to Act Also for Citizens' Committee.

The Citizens' Committee appointed by the Cooper Union mass meeting appointed the following Executive Committee yesterday afternoon:

Eugene H. Outerbridge, Mrs. Charles H. Israels, Charles P. Howland, Allan Robinson, Henry Moskowitz, Robert S. Binkerd, and the Treasurer ex officio.

Robert S. Binkerd, Secretary of the City Club, will act as Secretary of the Citizens' Committee. This was made possible by the co-operation of the City Club as indicated by the following letter:

Sept. 4, 1912.

My Dear Mr. Robinson: Pursuant to your request, and as a part of the City Club's contribution to the important public work undertaken by the Citizens' Committee, we are glad to make arrangements whereby Robert S. Binkerd, Secretary of the City Club, may serve as Secretary to the Citizens' Committee.

While reserving its necessary right of independent judgment on recommendations your committee may make, the City Club cordially approves your plan of attempting the removal, as far as possible, of the causes of such corrupt conditions as may be found to exist in the Police Department. We suggest that your work should also cover the attitude of the courts in so far as they interpret and apply the criminal law.

To these ends we pledge you the co-operation of the City Club, and in particular the aid of the club's Committees on Police and on Courts.

Congratulating you upon the efficient organization of your committee, I am, cordially yours, CHARLES H. STRONG, President.

BAR RAINES LAW HOTELS.

Lahey's Men Turn Away Men and Women at All Doors.

Throughout the Tenderloin last night plain clothes men of Inspector Lahey's staff were stationed outside of the entrances of the Raines law hotels in the district. Their business was to keep all couples from entering the hotels, and, in fact, lone men and women were turned away. Capt. McElroy of the West Thirtieth Street Station declared he knew nothing of the move, and Inspector Lahey could not be found.

OHIO MOOSERS CONVENE.

Two Thousand Delegates Gather to Nominate Full State Ticket.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 4.—Nearly 2,000 delegates, representing every county in Ohio, attended the first Progressive Convention in the State to-day. State Chairman Walter F. Brown, in introducing James R. Garfield as Temporary Chairman, said:

"They call us the third party, but the last shall be first and the first shall be last. The result of the election on the new Constitution shows that the Progressive Party has a mission."

Temporary Chairman Garfield said in his address that the third party had been called Socialists.

"We are Socialists in that we deal with social questions," he continued, "but we do not deal with these problems in a destructive manner. We are constructionists, not destructionists."

A full State ticket will be nominated to-morrow. Arthur I. Garford will be named for Governor, and in all probability the candidate for Lieutenant Governor will be Percy Tetlow, a miner and labor leader.

Chairman Brown has William Kirtley's resignation as the candidate for Board of Public Works on the regular Republican ticket, and Kirtley will probably be named for State Treasurer to-morrow.

John J. Sullivan, regular Republican candidate for Secretary of State, is ready to resign, and he is slated for nomination on the third ticket.

NAME TICKET IN IOWA.

Straight Bull Moosers Win Over Other Factions in State Convention.

DES MOINES, Sept. 4.—With John L. Stevens of Boone as their nominee for Governor, Iowa Progressives in convention here this afternoon put a third party State ticket into the field, after overcoming opposition to the plan by a vote of nearly 5 to 1. Mr. Stevens was named by acclamation, just as Col. Roosevelt was entering.

The speech of Col. Roosevelt interrupted the State ticket nominations, but after he left the following were named:

Lieutenant Governor, E. G. Allison of Oneida; Auditor, C. F. Meyers of Elkader; Treasurer, H. F. Baker of Lucas; Secretary of State, H. A. Morey of Waverly.

The platform indorses that of the National Convention, asserts the belief in popular rule, and declares that "the Progressive Party is here to stay."

These Congressional candidates were nominated by caucuses:

Second District, Herman K. Zeuch of Davenport; Third, R. E. Leach of Independence; Sixth, H. J. D. Patton of Grinnell; Seventh, George C. White of Nevada; Eighth, W. L. Laughlin of Mount Ayr.

Opposition to the third party ticket was evident prior to the opening of the convention. Conferences between Medill McCormick, Vice Chairman of the Progressive National Committee, and Iowa third party leaders were held last night and early to-day. A majority of those present favored the third ticket and those opposed to it had difficulty in making themselves heard.

NAMED IN HADLEY'S PLACE.

Bull Moosers of Missouri Nominate Judge Norton for Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 4.—The Bull Moose State Convention adjourned to-night after nominating a complete State ticket and naming three candidates for the Missouri Supreme bench, without compromising in any degree with Gov. Hadley's plea for fusion.

Albert D. Norton, Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, was unanimously indorsed for Governor. The withdrawal of two regularly nominated Republican candidates for State office and their candidacy urged for the same offices on the Progressive Party ticket caused much enthusiasm.

The two nominees are J. H. Mason of Springfield, Republican nominee for Attorney General, and Green K. Greer of Sikeston, nominee for State Auditor. Both have notified the Secretary of State not to put their names on the Republican ballot.

F. W. Niedermeyer of Columbia won the nomination for State Auditor without much of a struggle, and Mason's name, after being presented as a candidate for Attorney General, was withdrawn, and Arthur M. Hyde of Princeton, [illegible] County, was nominated unanimously.

BULL MOOSE BOOMS STIRRING UP STRIFE

Syracuse Convention To-day Promises Not to be as Harmonious as Expected.

WOODRUFF FOR PRENDERGAST

Controller or Hotchkiss Likely to be Named for Governor—Committee Seeks a Terse Platform.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 4.—With the opening of the first State convention of Col. Roosevelt's National Progressive Party, scheduled for to-morrow forenoon, there are indications to-night that it may not be quite as peaceful and harmonious as some of the promoters of this latest venture in politics professed to believe when they arrived here a couple of days ago.

Then all the talk breathed of brotherly love, and every one in a conspicuous position professed a willingness to efface himself if that would conduce to the comfort of some other deserving member of the party. To-night this golden rule has apparently fallen into oblivion. Rival candidacies are discussed with a degree of heat that would make an old-time politician feel quite at home in the hotel corridors and in the rooms where the booms are harbored. There have even come veiled threats from influential quarters that the steam roller might be put in commission if certain booms do not subside.

At a late hour to-night, while the platform builders were still hammering away arduously in an effort to knock superfluous verbiage out of the utopian declaration of Bull Moose principles, there were rumors that a lively and interesting debate, to use no more belligerent term, might ensue when the finished product is offered to the convention either to-morrow or the day after. In connection with this State Chairman William H. Hotchkiss made the announcement that former Congressman Bourke Cockran, who is a candidate for Congress again—this time on the Bull Moose ticket—would have a few remarks to make about the platform, and that it was not at all unlikely the convention would continue to Saturday. It is scheduled to close on Friday night.

With the slate and the platform unfinished, about the only thing settled is that the convention will be called to order at 11 o'clock and that former State Senator Frederick M. Davenport, college professor, will act as Temporary Chairman.

In that capacity Senator Davenport ordinarily would deliver the keynote speech, and, in fact, has prepared an address which will furnish attractive reading and sound well, but it has been heralded far and wide that the real keynote is not to be sounded until Friday forenoon, when Hiram W. Johnson, the Progressive Governor of California and Vice Presidential nominee on the Bull Moose ticket, will open his speech-making campaign in the East by addressing the Bull Moose State Convention here.

Many Delegates for Hotchkiss.

From the outset it has been apparent that the bulk of the sentiment has been for State Chairman William H. Hotchkiss and Controller William A. Prendergast for Governor. Other names have been mentioned, such as Bainbridge Colby of New York, ex-Senator Frederick M. Davenport and Dean Carlos C. Alden of the Buffalo University Law School. Of the last three only Mr. Colby seemed to have the strength worth mentioning.

Mr. Hotchkiss has all along told his friends that he would not be a candidate under any circumstances, and all his friends believe that he has been sincere in his protestations. But to-night, when the delegates began to arrive, it was found that nearly every other man and woman among them wore a Hotchkiss badge. This made the advocates of some of the other candidates reach the conclusion that an organized movement had been quietly underway to further the candidacy of Mr. Hotchkiss in spite of the latter's unwillingness to stand.

The Brooklyn delegation, with 230 votes in the convention, went into caucus immediately upon arrival, and after electing Timothy L. Woodruff Chairman, passed a resolution indorsing Controller Prendergast for the nomination. Mr. Prendergast attended the meeting, and declared that he would accept the nomination if offered.

There are a good many delegates and leaders who, while they have the greatest respect for the Controller, would look upon his nomination as unwise on account of the differences between him and the Catholic Church authorities in New York City. They believe that his nomination would array against the ticket a certain element in the Church. The friends of Mr. Prendergast, on the other hand, are anxious that a test should be made at this time. This sentiment is shared by Mr. Hotchkiss.

In the delegation from New York County, with its 350 votes, according to Francis W. Bird, Chairman of the New York County organization, there is a preponderance of sentiment for Mr. Hotchkiss.

The tentative slate to-night has these names:

For Governor—William A. Prendergast of Kings.

For State Treasurer—No choice.

For State Engineer—Harry W. De Graff of Montgomery.

Party in Committee's Hands.

The affairs of the Bull Moose Party in this State to-night passed out of the hands of the close corporation, which up to the present time has controlled its destinies, to a State Committee representing the enrolled voters of the party in the various districts throughout the State.

The transfer took place this evening when the new committee met and organized by electing William H. Hotchkiss Chairman and Jacob L. Holzmann Secretary. George R. Manchester, who was provisional Secretary, will be utilized where his political experience and ability as an organizer will serve to the best advantage. August Heckscher, the New York financier, who is the Treasurer of the National Progressive Party in this State, according to a statement made to-night, will retain that position.

Under a set of rules brought in by a sub-committee the National Progressive State Committee will be composed of 175 members. Of these 150 will be elected from Assembly districts, and 25 members at large will be chosen by the Assembly district representatives on the State Committee. These will include the ten directors of the Bull Moose corporation, one woman representative from each of the nine judicial districts in the State, and six representatives of the colored element in the party.

The ten directors who have surrendered the corporation into the hands of the State Committee are William H. Hotchkiss, Chairman; Jacob L. Holzmann, Secretary; William A. Prendergast, Oscar S. Straus, Henry L. Stoddard, Timothy L. Woodruff, George W. Kirchwey, Francis W. Bird, James G. Fitzgerald, and Ernest Harvier.

In framing the rules affecting the functions of the committee the plan of the older parties has been largely followed. The members will serve for two years, or until their successors have been selected, and the committee will be the sole judge of its own membership.

The three women members of the State Committee, duly elected by the men of the party in the localities where they live, are Miss Mary E. Dreir of Kings, Mrs. William Grant Brown of New York, and Mrs. William Van Arness of Orange.

A sub-committee, with Miss Mary E. Dreier as Chairman, was named to make up the slate of Presidential Electors. Another sub-committee, of which Joseph A. Griffin of Syracuse was appointed Chairman, was intrusted with the task of picking a Temporary Chairman for the Bull Moose State Convention, which is scheduled to open here to-morrow.

Chairman Hotchkiss impressed on members of the committee the necessity of [illegible] Bull Moose candidates who can only get on the ticket that way.

"If there ever was a damnable statute it is the Levy Election law," Mr. Hotchkiss told the meeting. "If anything that law ought to speed the dethronement of both old parties, for it was conceived and enacted as the result of a conspiracy between both machines. The Levy law will go down to its grave with the two machines."

The meeting approved this denunciation, as it did Mr. Hotchkiss's comment on the construction placed by the courts on a provision in the Federal Constitution under which directors of National banks are barred from becoming Presidential Electors. A member of the committee asked Mr. Hotchkiss if it would be permissible for a Director in a National bank to resign his position for the purpose of becoming a Presidential Elector and after performing his electoral functions becoming a Director again.

"When a law is such a fool law," said Mr. Hotchkiss warmly, "evasion in my opinion is warranted. If I were a Director in a National bank I would resign just long enough to qualify and serve."

One departure, among others, from accepted convention standards, is the absence of the candidates' placards and pictures about the hotel corridors. The only decorations in the Onondaga Hotel, the headquarters of the party, are a few neatly printed cards giving the location of the various delegates' headquarters and an artistic picture of a bull moose's head, with the legend "Vote under this emblem." Neither are there any orators, turbulent or otherwise. The first visible suggestion that there are any candidates in the field came to-night when a few Prendergast, Hotchkiss, and Colby badges appeared.

About the most notable thing of all, however, is the absolute freedom from any form of secrecy. Not only are all the committee meetings free for all, but the big men of the party here do not keep themselves locked in their rooms. They wander about the corridors and talk freely to anybody on any subject. Every move is open and above board.

Women Delegates Cheered.

With the arrival here to-night of some 3,000 delegates to swell the 1,000 or so already on the ground, Syracuse has finally taken on the aspect of a real convention city. While it is one of the strangest conventions ever held in the State, it is also one of the most interesting.

The special train from New York bringing the delegation from Kings County arrived to-night. Nearly a hundred women alighted with the men and formed a procession to their hotel. These women furnished a remarkable sight. A number of them were gray-haired and elderly. Others were middle-aged, and looked as if they had just left their husbands and children at home, while some were young and pretty.

All carried suitcases and trudged along a mile of streets behind a band playing a National air, and all sang as Salvation Army women do as they march to an open-air meeting. One woman carried a baby. They took equal chances with the men, and asked for no favors. When they arrived at their hotel they stood in line for half an hour until they were able to get to their rooms.

A curious crowd that lined the streets watched the procession quietly at first, and then broke into cheers. Not a derisive word was spoken, and no one laughed. It seems to have come to be the settled order of things to take the women delegates at their own estimate.

The delegation from Erie County also arrived, and they, too, marched through the streets to the Onondaga Hotel. Gray-haired, serious-faced women led them. When they passed along the hotel corridor, each with a bandanna handkerchief on the end of a cane or an umbrella, they received a rousing reception. The New York delegation came later, and they, too, were greeted noisily by the crowds. The women from New York City who headed the procession were Miss Maud Ingersoll, Mrs. Harriett Johnson Wood, Miss Bertha Rembaugh, Miss Florence Guernsey, Mrs. Charles Scribner, Mrs. John Corbin, Miss M. Overland, Mrs. Milton L'Ecluz, Mrs. William G. Demerest, Miss A. K. Fosser, Miss R. I. James, Miss Annie Rhoades, and Miss Annie Hutchinson.

The women attended the caucuses of the various delegations in the evening and discussed candidates.

With the arrival of the New York and Kings County crowds the first really active Gubernatorial boom was launched here. Timothy L. Woodruff had been busy all day stirring up sentiment for Controller Prendergast, and when the Kings County delegation arrived Mr. Woodruff was at the station with a band and several Prendegast banners. Mr. Woodruff is working hard at this convention. He is an entirely different person from the spectacular person of other State Conventions. His famous vest is missing altogether. Wearing a negligé shirt with a soft collar and a light suit of subdued pattern he frequents the hotel corridor all day fervid with Bull Moose enthusiasm. He led the delegates from the station, hustled to see them safely quartered, and boomed Mr. Prendergast at their caucus. Mr. Woodruff also took a prominent part in the deliberations of the leaders. He said he was firmly convinced that the Bull Moose candidate for Governor would be elected.

Another interesting figure about the Onondaga Hotel corridor is Oscar Straus. Mr. Straus is not as young looking as some of the other Bull Moosers, but he is just as active. He is willing to talk Bull Moose sentiment by the hour, and he is also satisfied that the Bull Moose candidate will win.

"I think the selection of the candidate for Governor will be between Mr. Prendergast and Mr. Hotchkiss," he said. "Both are good men and both will make a good fight. There is a little sentiment for Bainbridge Colby, but I don't think it amounts to much. The delegates want either Mr. Prendergast or Mr. Hotchkiss."

Seek a Terse Platform.

Col. Roosevelt's St. Louis speech, in which he said that the platform of the Progressive Party would be carried out, started the Committee on Resolutions to work this morning with a good spirit. All day yesterday the platform was hammered at, and at nightfall a tentative draft of about 4,000 words had been shaped. It pleased those members of the committee who had their pet planks nailed fast in it.

Word came from Mr. Hotchkiss that 4,000 words were twice too many for a platform. He thought that 2,000 words were more than any conscientious citizen would read. He said the platform should be built of short, sharp, terse sentences. Hence the committee went to work again to curtail the platform.

There was a good deal of friction at the start. The Rev. Dr. F. W. Betts grew angry with N. C. Tuckerman, a Dutchess County farmer, who wanted the agricultural plank changed because it "promised no protection to the farmer." Mr. Tuckerman said that unless the views of the Agricultural Committee were adopted the farmer vote would be driven away and he would be compelled to resign as a member of the party. Dr. Betts said that Mr. Tuckerman's threat to resign unless he had his own way made it impossible for any man to vote fairly on the question.

Mr. Tuckerman's threat to resign caused an uproar, and a dozen men wanted to speak at once. The cooler heads, who have been weaving bright dreams of the strength to come from the farmers, tried to quiet the noise. Frank L. Ferguson of Queens County moved that the paragraph be referred back to the Agricultural Committee. This was adopted in a hurry.

The Democrats on the committee have been objecting to the Nation-wide character of the preamble. They wanted this feature stricken out and a preamble dealing only with State issues inserted. Judge Frederick E. Draper, Jr., of Troy drew up another preamble, which he is trying to have adopted. He said that the only issue before the people was the one of boss rule, and he insisted that the preamble ought to deal with this matter, and that it ought to mention names and be strong and militant. His preamble contained this paragraph:

"The State of New York has been completely Tammanyized, not by the Democratic machine and Murphy alone, but by the Republican machine and the equally offensive Barnes. Acting together, whenever their joint interests have demanded immediate instead of secret action, these two forces of corrupt government have worked for the same ends."

HAMMOND ASSAILS COLONEL.

Left the Party When He Could Not Rule, He Says—Asks Questions.

John Hays Hammond, who was Special Ambassador of the United States to the coronation of King George V., issued an open letter to the voters of Massachusetts last night. This letter declared:

"Until 7 o'clock on Saturday night, June 22, 1912, the principles, the machinery, and the associations of the Republican Party were good enough for Theodore Roosevelt. Until that hour, he was prepared to lead the Republican hosts against the common enemy; but after that hour had signalized his defeat as a candidate for the nomination, Theodore Roosevelt induced himself to believe that the Republican Party no longer measured up to its political responsibilities and opportunities

"Under the machinations of Theodore Roosevelt, largely abetted by disappointed and self-seeking politicians, a new faction has been formed, which pharasaically asserts for itself a monopoly of honesty in principles and men.

"May it not be pertinent to ask the Bull Moose party how its assumption of unctuous rectitude is to be reconciled with the fact that it numbers among its chief political factors some of the most notorious bosses of the country, and that its financial backers are well-known truest magnates against whom the Federal Government under President Taft has instituted suits?

"Is it only a coincidence that the trusts, now financially promoting the candidacy of Theodore Roosevelt, are those under indictment by the Taft Administration? Is it only a further coincidence that these same trusts were regarded by Theodore Roosevelt's administration as 'good trusts' to which immunity baths were given?"

out of employment," he said, "if you want to narrow the market for labor, keep the door shut tight and you will see the whole process working in upon us in such fashion that presently things will be altered too rapidly to be suitable to the political and economic stability of the country.

"It is amazing to me that any political party should propose to fix the present condition of things upon the people and to propose to let things stand where they are. Merely to have a Government commission take charge of them is to remedy nothing. It will create no freedom. It will perpetuate and license the concentration of control.

"To remedy an evil thing by making it permanent is something I cannot understand. I shall make war upon that to the utmost of my power. To say to the people we cannot change what has taken place, but that we can stand in your place and manage is merely to proclaim a helplessness which goes to the length of despairing of individual initiative and freedom. It is the very opposite of the whole process of civilization.

"No Government has ever been beneficent when the attitude of the Government was that it could take care of the people. Let me tell you that the only freedom exists where the people take care of the Government.

Creation of Monopoly.

"There is nothing occult, nothing hidden, in the way in which monopoly has been set up. Gentlemen have told us of exact processes under oath, and do you mean to say we cannot stop a thing when we know what it is? This is not an age of unrestricted competition. We had such an age, and certain gentlemen hogged the competition. They killed the competition of people less strong than themselves. Competition ate itself up. Now we propose to look after the digestion of competition. We know the kind of competition that has produced monopoly, and we must stop that kind.

"I have heard men speak of experts on the tariff. I have lived among so-called economic experts all my life, and I know when a man pretends to be an expert on the tariff he is a fake. Because to claim to be an expert on the tariff is to claim to have digested in your own comprehension the whole business of the United States."

Gov. Wilson closed his speech with a tribute to the merchant marine as an institution powerful enough to "make the pulse of American labor beat in every quarter of the globe."

Mrs. Harriman received an ovation when she referred to the "Bull Moose standard bearer" as being in the same predicament as the Irishman who visited Paris who couldn't speak a word of French, and who, to keep from displaying his ignorance of French, ordered from a bill of fare in the order the articles were listed. After he had ordered six times and partaken of an equal number of portions of soup, he became disgusted and ordered the whole menu brought in.

When he had been served he remarked: "Ah, look at the opportunity I've killed with soup."

WILSON TO FOREIGN EDITORS.

His Views on Immigration Received by Them with Cheers.

Before placing himself in charge of the Reception Committee of the Woodrow Wilson Workingmen's League, as whose guest he came to New York, Gov. Wilson held a conference with 100 editors of papers published in foreign languages, at the National Arts Club. Gov. Wilson went to the meeting [illegible] to greet 80 editors, [illegible] Herman Bernstein, the writer, told him 100 editors were there.

It was evident from the first that the editors were in no hostile mood toward Gov. Wilson, and when he admitted he had done in his writings, [illegible] the practice of admitting without inquiry immigrants brought here by steamship companies the editors stood on their feet to applaud. They cheered again when he outlined his ideal of an immigration policy or arrangement by which every voluntary immigrant would not only be welcomed but assisted in every possible way to gain a foothold in this country.

"Your very cordial greeting," said the Governor, "confirms my impression that you do not consider me the American and you the foreigners.

"There is a certain sense in which we do America an injustice by classifying ourselves as native born and foreign born.

"I suppose that every one of you has realized that where the immigrant gets his real introduction to the life of this country is through his children who go to the public schools, and that the children feel that they are introduced into American life sooner than their parents do. And when you imagine a movement which makes the schoolhouse the centre of the community life of a neighborhood, when you imagine the neighbors gathering there in the evening and going to school to one another in the discussion of public affairs and of those matters which concern all equally, you are imagining the thing which is likely to be more potent than any other to restore the original character of America.

"If we can hit upon a standard which admits every voluntary immigrant, and excludes those who have not come of their own motion with their own purpose of making a home and a career for themselves, but have been induced by steamship companies or others to come in order to pay the passage money, then we will have what we will all agree upon as Americans.

"I am speaking to you as also Americans with myself, and just as much Americans as myself, and if we all take the American point of view, namely, that we want American life kept to its standards, and that only the standards of American life shall be the standards of restriction, then we are all upon a common ground, not of those who criticise immigration, but of those who declare themselves Americans.

"Of course, if the immigrants are to be allowed to come in uninstructed hosts and to stop at the ports where they enter, and there to compete in an over-supplied labor market, there is going to be unhappiness; there is going to be deterioration, there is going to be everything that will be detrimental to the community, as well as detrimental to the immigrant. And therefore it is to the interest of the Government that the Government itself should supply, or, at any rate, encourage, the instrumentalities which will prevent that very thing, will multiply the ports of entry for that purpose, for example; will ease and facilitate and guide the process of distribution, and will, above all things else, supply the sympathetic information which is the only welcome that is acceptable to those who come.

"And therefore I close, as I began, by a very respectful protest against calling yourselves foreign editors or anything with the word foreign in it. Your newspapers and magazines are published in languages which are not the general language of America, which is modified English, but at this stage of the melting-pot process every language in which you print a paper is largely used in the United States, and is used for the conveyance of American ideas."

BULL MOOSE HOLD GAINS IN VERMONT

THE LEGISLATURE IS SAFE

Representatives Will Insure the Election of Republican State Ticket—Democrats See National Victory.

How the Candidates View Result.

By Telegraph to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Sept. 4.—The gratifying Democratic gains in Vermont point to a glorious victory for Woodrow Wilson in November.

HARLAND B. HOWE,
Democratic Candidate for Governor.

By Telegraph to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES

RANDOLPH, Vt., Sept. 3.—Reports received indicate that election for Governor is thrown into Legislature. The vote is gratifying to me and the Progressive Party, and is a certain indication that the party has great strength throughout the country.

FRAZER METZGER,
Progressive Candidate for Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

RUTLAND, Vt., Sept. 4.—While the Republicans will control Vermont for another two years, yesterday's vote is indicative of much unrest within the party. The vote received by Allen M. Fletcher, Republican nominee for Governor, was the smallest cast for any Gubernatorial nominee since the party was organized in 1856.

The unofficial total vote for Governor reached 65,033. There was no election by the people, but a sufficient number of Republican members of the Legislature were chosen, either yesterday or at the bye-elections to-day, to insure the seating of Allen M. Fletcher of Cavendish in October, as well as the rest of the Republican State ticket.

The total vote of the State for all five candidates was: Allen M. Fletcher of Cavendish, Republican, 26,259; Harlan B. Howe of St. Johnsbury, Democrat, 20,350; Rev. Fraser Metzger of Randolph, Progressive, 15,800; Clement F. Smith of Morrisville, Prohibition, 1,443; Fred W. Suitor of Barre, Socialist, 1,181.

In 1910 the total vote for Governor was: John A. Mead, Republican, 35,263; Charles D. Watson, Democrat, 17,425; Edwin R. Towle, Prohibition, 1,044; Chester E. Ordway, Socialist, 1,055.

The Republicans will have no difficulty in seating their candidates for State offices. These are Lieut. Gov. Frank H. Howe of Bennington, Treasurer Edward H. Deavitt of Montpelier, Secretary of State Guy W. Bailey of Essex Junction, Auditor Horace P. Graham of Craftsbury, and Attorney General Rufus E. Brown of Burlington.

A number of the small towns where there was no election for members of the Legislature yesterday were still balloting at a late hour to-night through the inability of a majority of the voters to agree on the candidate. It will be some days before the exact make-up of the Legislature is known, but estimates made last night of sixty-three Republican majority on a joint ballot for Governor were not altered by the additional returns to-day.

The Republicans re-elected both their Congressmen, Frank L. Greene of St. Albans and Frank Plumley of Northfield. They carried 11 of the 14 counties and 187 of the 246 cities and towns. Their party majority of 26,817 four years ago and of 15,739 two years ago dwindled to a plurality of 5,909, the smallest margin that a Republican candidate ever secured in a Presidential year in the history of the State.

The Democrats carried two counties and thirty-eight towns, and ran up the largest total since 1880. The Progressives prevented a people's choice of a Republican candidate for Governor, carried one county, and twenty-one towns. The result of the election is encouraging to the Progressive Party. Both Progressive and Democratic leaders profess to see a good prospect to defeat the Republicans in the Presidential election. Many political observers also claimed the result in Vermont yesterday indicated an overturn of the Republican National Administration.

VIEWS OF PARTY LEADERS.

Democrats Predict Great National Victory—Republicans Still Hopeful.

United States Senator James A. O'Gorman of New York made the following statement about the Vermont election result yesterday:

"Analysis of the Vermont vote from all sides can leave but one impression to the voters of the country as to what the result in November will be. Only three times since 1856 have the Republicans failed to have a majority of from 25,000 to 35,000, and when this majority fell below 25,000 it meant Democratic success in November.

"The Republicans, with a plurality of less than 7,000, can count on nothing but defeat in November. It was expected by the third term party that they would secure not alone votes from the Republican, but also from the Democratic column. They failed utterly in doing this, for the returns show that the Democrats have gained more than 3,000 votes. We have not only held the normal Democratic vote in Vermont, but we have gained, and that gain means a complete Democratic victory in November."

United States Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma made this analysis of the vote:

"The Vermont verdict forecasts Democratic victory. Yesterday's election in Vermont is doubly significant. It proves that the Democrats are voting under the unit rule this year. It proves that the veil of the Republican temple is rent in twain. So far as this campaign is concerned, the Republican Party has gone to pieces like the one-horse shay. The Democratic candidate for Governor received yesterday 3,834 more votes than in 1908. The Republican candidate received 20,000 less. The Democratic gain was 41 per cent.

Senator Poindexter said: "The returns from Vermont State election show conclusively that Theodore Roosevelt will carry that State in November, as the Colonel is undoubtedly 35 per cent. stronger throughout the State than was the head of the Progressive ticket of the State."

There was great rejoicing yesterday at Bull Moose Headquarters in the Hotel Manhattan. Chairman George W. Perkins of the National Executive Committee of the Progressive Party gave out this statement:

"The result in Vermont is a great triumph for the new party. In a rock-ribbed State election, a party not yet officially four weeks old, in a campaign of between two and three weeks, fighting against two parties, each of which is more than half a century old, polled approximately 80 per cent. as many votes as one party and 65 per cent. as many votes as the other party."

Acting Chairman William G. McAdoo of the Democratic National Committee gave out the following statement:

"Vermont is a political barometer. The small majorities in 1884 and 1892 foretold Republican defeat. With the third term party diverting one-third of the Republican vote this year in other States, as it has done in the Green Mountain State, the victory of Wilson and Marshall should be more pronounced than any ever recorded by a political party. It looks as if the defeat of Greeley, so often cited as the greatest of political routs, will be shelved and the election of Woodrow Wilson and Thomas R. Marshall pointed to by future generations as the most decisive victory at the polls in our history."

Chairman Charles D. Hilles of the Republican National Committee followed up his optimistic analysis of the Vermont vote on Tuesday evening by sending telegrams yesterday to Gubernatorial Candidate Allan W. Fletcher, State Chairman Williams, and Congressmen Greene and Plumley of Vermont, congratulating them on the Republican showing.

PRESIDENT TAFT IS HOPEFUL.

Does Not Regard Vermont Result as Voicing National Feeling in November

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—In spite of the Vermont showing, President Taft is represented as believing that it should not give rise to pessimism. To the few persons with whom he talked to-day, the President is said to have indicated that he did not regard the outcome in the Green Mountain State as meaning that the trend of the entire Union was Democratic, or that the Progressives would make corresponding advances in States where they intend to make a vigorous fight. This view, however, is at variance with that most generally held in Republican political circles here.

MEANS BUSINESS, SAYS WILSON.

Governor Pleased with the Gain Shown by Democrats in Vermont.

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 4.—"The fact that the Democrats made substantial gains in Vermont, a Republican State, means business throughout the country," said Gov. Woodrow Wilson to-day, commenting on the election results in Vermont.

The Governor said it was difficult, however, to analyze the results in Vermont on any comparative basis because the total vote was so much larger this year than two years ago, and it was hard to trace the sources of the gains.

"One thing is sure," added the Governor. "The Democrats did not lose any votes to the new party."

TAFT OUT OF IT IN CALIFORNIA

Only by Petition Can His Electors Get Their Names an Official Ballots.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—Returns to-day from yesterday's primary election show that by petition only can Taft Electors find a place on the Republican ticket in the State this Fall.

The Republican convention, to be held in Sacramento this month, will return undoubtedly Electors pledged to Roosevelt, but the general primary law provides that any candidate may find a place on the ballot by petition, if he obtains signatures amounting, in the case of Presidential Electors, to 3 per cent. of the total vote cast at the last general election.

San Francisco and Los Angeles rolled up a heavy vote for the Progressive candidates. In the Congressional fight the Roosevelt men apparently carried a majority of the eleven districts, the results appearing to be:

First District—E. A. Hart, Progressive. Second District—F. M. Rutherford, Progressive. Third District—Charles F. Curry, Republican. Fourth District—Julius Kahn, Republican. Fifth District—John I. Nolan, Progressive. Sixth District—J. R. Knowland, Republican. Seventh District—James C. Needham, Republican. Eighth District—E. A. Hayes, Republican. Ninth District—C. W. Bell, Progressive. Tenth District—W. D. Stephens, Progressive. Eleventh District—S. C. Evans, Progressive.

NEVADA PRIMARY RESULTS.

Pittman, Democrat, Is Named for United States Senate.

RENO, Nev., Sept. 4.—Results of yesterday's Congressional, State, and county primaries in Nevada, so far as received, assure the nomination of Key Pittman, Democrat, for the United States Senate; Clay Tallman, Democrat, for Congress, and P. A. McCarran, Democrat, for Justice of the Supreme Court.

On the Republican ticket E. E. Roberts, incumbent, is nominated for Congress over August Frohlich, representing the Progressive sentiment in the party. Senator W. A. Massey was nominated without opposition by the Republicans for United States Senator.

The vote averaged not 50 per cent. of that registered.

GOV. ALDRICH INDORSED

Bull Moosers in Nebraska, However, Decline to Name Full Ticket.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 4.—The Nebraska State Convention of the Progressive Party has indorsed Gov. Aldrich and Congressman Morris, as Republican candidates, and the six Roosevelt Electors. Two Electors were named to be placed on the ticket by petition, to be voted for by Progressives in place of the two Republican Electors who are known to favor Taft. The platform adopted included a woman suffrage plank.

At a conference between Gov. Aldrich and a number of the State leaders in the new movement the putting out of a third party State ticket was decided to be inadvisable owing to the present attitude of many of the Republican candidates for State office who, though leaning toward the new party, are not willing to leave the Republican Party ticket.

IOWA CITIES COLD TO COL. ROOSEVELT

FARMERS AND WOMEN CHEER

Special to The New York Times.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Sept. 4 (On board the Roosevelt train.)—Following Senator Cummins's declaration for Roosevelt, but against the third party, the Presidential candidate of the Progressive Party to-day invaded Iowa and concluded his day by addressing the State Convention here.

Mr. Roosevelt went from the convention to a conference with Cummins, addressed a labor meeting, and then started for St. Paul. He made it perfectly plain that he was for a third party ticket in the State.

Senator Cummins's declaration yesterday that he was for Roosevelt, but opposed the nomination of a third party ticket still stands despite the action of the State Convention.

The Senator will vote for the support of Roosevelt, but will not take a very active part in the campaign, except in advocacy of the State ticket. He is in a peculiar position, which makes it necessary for him to maintain his party regularity so far as State politics is concerned, to avoid any decrease of effectiveness in the next fight for United States Senator. He and the Colonel, however, understand each other and are thoroughly harmonious.

Iowa presented a curious situation to the student of Bull Moose crowds. The cities were cold to the Colonel, while the country districts were wild for him. The cities have always been the stronghold of "standpatism" in Iowa.

Nevertheless, the cities turned out large crowds to see the Colonel. There are 10,000 people in Oskaloosa, and there were 10,000 people in the crowd that Roosevelt addressed or that saw him as he whizzed by in his automobile.

In Des Moines business was apparently suspended, to judge by the holiday crowds that filled every window in the business blocks, and the crowds from the station to the convention hall were the biggest Des Moines has ever seen, but in both these places there was little enthusiasm.

Oskaloosa is a "standpat" centre. It is the brains and heart of the old "standpat" district which John F. Lacey so long represented in Congress. Lacey himself was in the crowd which Roosevelt addressed to-day from the platform of his car at Ottumwa, in the same district, and that crowd was made up of farmers who were wildly enthusiastic. Lacey watched the cheering farmers with a grim face. If he had gone to his home in Oskaloosa he would have seen something that would have brought more balm to his soul.

What happened at Ottumwa was duplicated in all the country districts. The farmers and their wives and children rushed to the train cheering the Colonel.

At one little back prairie station, where the train stopped for a few seconds, there was a very old woman in the crowd that had been waiting for hours. She carried in her hand three or four flowers she had picked out of her garden. The Colonel, who had been receiving enormous floral tributes at all the cities where he stopped, received this gift with gentle courtesy.

While Roosevelt was addressing the crowd of curious persons in Oskaloosa a typical Iowa farmer passed near the automobile in which the newspaper correspondents were sitting. He was a young man with common sense written all over his brown face.

"Are you for Roosevelt?" THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent asked as he passed.

He paused, looked up, and said: "You bet I am."

He was about to pass on when he was asked: "Who will carry this State?"

"Wilson," was the unexpected answer. And then jerking his thumb over to the big but silent crowd which was still listening to the perspiring and gesticulating Colonel he said:

"But if you have got any sense you can tell as well as I can why they don't cheer. The only cheer you heard was my own sweet voice; I can't elect him all alone."

The Colonel arrived at Keokuk early this morning. The first part of his journey was encouraging, for it was all through the country districts. The first facer was administered at Oskaloosa and the second at Des Moines, where a big parade had been planned. On his way to the Coliseum he was greeted by a great but silent crowd. At the convention hall a mixed quartet welcomed him with the refrain:

"Then here's to yonder morning, whose light begins to shine; to Roosevelt, who's marching on before."

Hot and perspiring, the Colonel plunged at once into his speech. He made a slip by calling his hearers, "Men and women of Vermont," and there was a friendly laugh, which the Colonel met my saying: "We're going to turn the trick in Vermont in November—that's why I said that."

Most of the men were in their shirt-sleeves, and some one called out:

"Take off your coat, Teddy!"

The Colonel hesitated a moment and then declined.

"This is only nominally a three-cornered fight," he began. "In reality the fight is between the party of the people, on one side, and on the other the bosses and the beneficiaries of privilege who will throw their weight to which ever of the old parties they think can beat us.

"You'll find long before election day—already there are symptoms of it—that the old Republican Party has been swept aside. The fight lies between us and the old machine Democracy. I appeal to every former Democrat who is loyal to the principles of Jefferson and Andrew Jackson to stand with us, and I appeal to every former Republican who is loyal to the principles of Abraham Lincoln.

"The official Republican Party of to-day bears to the party of Lincoln the same resemblance that a ship which has been captured by pirates does to the ship before it was completed. Barnes, Penrose, Guggenheim, and the rest of them wouldn't have known what was meant by Republican principles if you had mentioned them.

"Those men represent the crooked alliance between crooked politics and crooked business which has been the curse of American life. They knew at the Republican Convention in Chicago that they were insuring the defeat of themselves. They expected the Democratic Party to come into power, but they thought we would confine ourselves to putting the other set of bosses into power, and that, after four years, they would come back again. Nothing is gained by changing the whip of Barnes, Penrose, and Guggenheim for the scorpion of Murphy, Sullivan, and Taggart. All bosses look alike to us.

"I see that Mr. What's-his-name, that Congressman from East St. Louis, Barthold—he is one of the highwayman—has asked Mr. Cummins to debate the Texas, California, and Washington contests at Chicago. I hope Mr. Cummins will refuse, for the reason that I wouldn't debate with a pickpocket the ownership of a watch he has just stolen. If the police are handy I'll hand him over to them. If they are not I'll tend to him myself. Any man, any candidate for Governor or other office, who has knowledge of the facts, and supports Mr. Taft, gives us the right to say that he is not competent to pass upon honesty in public life.

"Now a few words to the men who were formerly Democrats. I want to call your attention to this difference between the Chicago and Baltimore Conventions. The victory at Baltimore for Mr. Wilson was achieved because the bosses finally concluded that his victory meant their victory. At Chicago the bosses knew that our victory meant their defeat.

"If the Democrats succeed in November it means that every boss will be enthroned in his own State. The representatives and beneficiaries for privilege will feel that they have a new lease of life. It means precisely that."

"To-day Judge Stevens told me about an old stand-patter of the steam-roller type, who said to him: 'Taft is beaten. I am going over to Wilson to beat the Progressives. We're going to throw the lever clear over the way.'

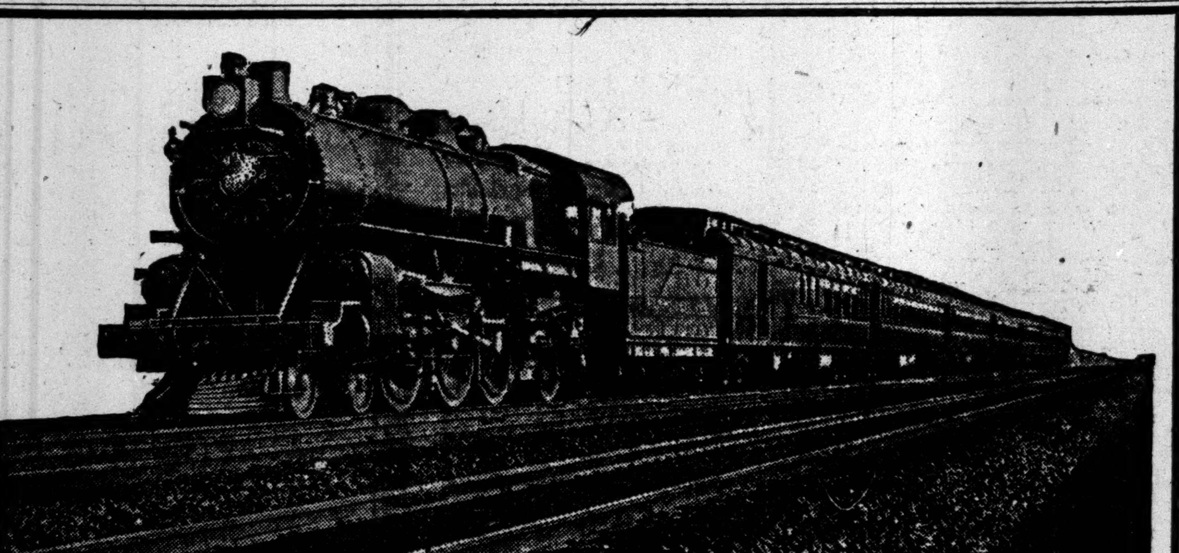
"Where Mr. Wilson is getting support of that type we have the right to ask every independent Democrat who believes in the principles for which Democracy nominally stands to come with us. I ask every Democrat who really believes in the right of the people to rule to come with us, for every representative of privilege, every boss, is going to his side."

Of the tariff Col. Roosevelt said:

"I have remained attached to the doctrines the Progressives taught three years ago. I don't believe in free trade. On the other hand, I don't believe in the stand-pat Republican tariff. I believe there are a great many shams and humbugs in the Payne-Aldrich Tariff bill. Among the shams and humbugs was the tariff law. A little sham board was established. It was better than no board, but it has such small powers that it worked with extreme slowness, and nothing was accomplished. Our proposal is to have a real Tariff Commission. We favor a commission which will work speedily, so that in a few months, if the Progressive Administration comes in, it can take up and report on schedule after schedule."

Col. Roosevelt prophesied disaster unless the principles of the Progressive Party were put into effect.

"We are striving to correct abuses," he said, "which, if they are not corrected, may some day bring the mighty American Republic down on the heads of our children or our children's children."



High Grade Service

Above is a reproduction of a photograph of the "Pennsylvania Special," the 18-hour night express en route from New York to Chicago.

It partially depicts the high standard of Pennsylvania Railroad service between New York and the great centers of the country.

The multiple-track roadbed is a model of rock-ballasted, dust-free construction, and is as smooth and well-protected as science and skill can make it.

The train is all-steel from "cow catcher" to observation platform, electric lighted and comprehensively and conveniently appointed.

Safety, Comfort, and Speed in admirable degrees are the prominent attributes of this service.

WOMEN DELEGATES TAKE THEIR BABIES

ROOSEVELT IDEA PORTRAYED

Many Other Women Accompany Husbands and Relatives Who Are Delegates.

The special train for the Progressive Party Convention at Syracuse which left New York at noon yesterday carried with it the women delegates. It was a train of ten cars besides the baggage and buffet cars, and the last cars were given over especially to women.

It was a joyous party and distinctly Rooseveltian. It was not only suffrage, but it represented the Roosevelt of earlier days of advice-giving to mothers—fear of race suicide and a desire for the perpetuation of the race. There were not only women and mothers on the train, but little children and babies.

The women's cars witnessed the most delightfully domestic scenes. A little chap, who was to see his first political convention before the first celebration of his birthday, lay on one of the seats before the train left the station, a silken banner waving over his head, the Stars and Stripes, while he talked Bull Moose politics in vehement "Goo, goos."

"Two rear cars for women only," called and reiterated the train man, but that merely served to send many of the women further along, and every woman who could boast a man escort went with him into one of the other eight cars. Most of the occupants were men, some in their shirt sleeves lounging comfortably; some with their coats on taking life more seriously, or card players who began a game before the train left the station, but alternating with these were women in their silk gowns or street suits with white shirtwaists.

The women were all on time. Miss Maud Ingersoll, daughter of the late Robert Ingersoll, had no ticket when she arrived, but that did not prevent her making a vigorous protest and getting through the gates, while a watch was set for Mrs. Edward Lauterbach, who was carrying the missing billet.

Mary Donnelly, a Bull Moose organizer, was in her element. Though nominated as a delegate, she remained in New York, and, wearing a bandana over the green ribbons of her sombrero, and carrying another in her hand, she interviewed every man delegate as he came in, and urged him to work for eight-hour labor laws, a fight against child labor, schoolhouses for polling places, and woman suffrage.

Every trainman she decorated with Bull Moose buttons. Passenger Agent Jenkins of Syracuse, who was going up on the train, sent for a special lot of the emblems.

Several of the women delegates to the State Committee meeting went up on the 8 o'clock train. Miss Bertha Rembaugh of the State Headquarters was on the 12 o'clock train. Mrs. Helen Secor Tonges, an ardent Bronx leader, and Mrs. Grace Wolterbeek of Brooklyn were among those who departed.

There was the usual line-up and flashlight photographs before the train pulled out, features with which the women as suffragists are familiar, but there was more of a general air of domesticity than in any "Votes for Women" body that ever left New York.

BOURNE OUT FOR ROOSEVELT.

Oregon Senator Declares Primaries Showed He Was Republicans' Choice.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Senator Jonathan Bourne of Oregon, who was exclusive custodian and patentee of the "second elective term" idea in the Republican ante-convention campaign of 1908, has joined the Bull Moose Party after some hesitation.

His announcement of his intention to support Col. Roosevelt's candidacy follows close on the publication of the Colonel's long letter to Senator Clapp of Minnesota, in which the Colonel told of Senator Bourne's efforts in 1908 to bring about a settlement of the Government's case against Standard Oil.

COLONEL REJECTS COMPROMISE

Turns Down Offer of Republican Support in Missouri on Terms Offered.

KEOKUK, Iowa, Sept. 4.—An offer of support from the Republicans of Missouri was rejected yesterday by Col. Roosevelt, it was learned to-day, on the terms under which it was tendered.

Col. Roosevelt received the offer when he reached St. Louis, and he was led to believe that if he accepted it some of the most influential members of the Republican organization would be behind him in his fight for the Presidency. His refusal was made publicly when he was addressing the State Progressive Convention, although the delegates were not in a position to know the full significance of his words.

The terms of the offer were that if Col. Roosevelt would induce the Missouri Progressives to refrain from putting a full State ticket in the field, and would indorse the Republican candidates, the support from Republican sources would be given.

"I received letters from certain prominent Republicans of Missouri in which they said that they would support me if we would not put a State Progressive ticket in the field," said Col. Roosevelt to-day. "I gave my answer to them in my address to the Progressive Convention."

In his speech Col. Roosevelt advised that complete tickets should be put in the field, except in States in which either of the old party organizations could be taken into the new party.

STATE DEMOCRACY FOR WAR.

To Organize in Every Assembly District Against Murphy.

The County Committee of the Empire State Democracy met yesterday at 505 Fifth Avenue and was presided over by Julius Henry Cohen. Among those present were John Brooks Leavitt, Joseph M. Price, J. Hampden Dougherty, ex-Deputy Police Commissioner Bert Hanson, and George Haven Putnam. The committee indicated that it would oppose indorsement of a Democratic Gubernatorial candidate subservient to Charles F. Murphy, and that if such a candidate should be nominated the committee would petition the State Committee of the Empire State Democracy, which meets on Sept. 19, to put an independent ticket in the field.

It was resolved at yesterday's meeting to establish organizations in every Assembly district of Manhattan and the Bronx. An Executive Committee to undertake this work was chosen, consisting of Bert Hanson, Robert S. Noble, Jr., Isaac H. Klein, A. L. Gutman, Julius Henry Cohen, George Haven Putnam, Francis B. Pollack, J. Hampden Dougherty, and Lawrence B. Dunham.

OUR RAILS THE CHEAPER.

America Beats Sheffield for a Big English Contract.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MANCHESTER, Sept. 4.—The City Council to-day agreed by an overwhelming majority to place a large contract for steel rails with an American firm instead of a Sheffield firm.

One Councillor said the American tender was £807 ($4,035) cheaper than that from Sheffield, the American goods were equal in quality, and delivery was quicker.

Another Councillor urged that it would encourage English manufacturers to equip their works on American lines if they got work from English corporations. A third said English workmen were idle while the Council was sending work to America.

The Council decided that it would be wrong to throw away the ratepayer's money in order to encourage Sheffield manufactures.

DEPEW SAILS TO TESTIFY.

Subpoenaed by Senator Clapp's Committee—To Stump for Taft.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew arrived in London to-day and will sail in the Adriatic tomorrow, a week earlier than they expected owing to the fact that Mr. Depew has been subpoenaed by the Senate investigation committee that is examining the Penrose charges.

"I expect to testify the day after my arrival," said Mr. Depew. "I don't know what I can tell them or the reason I am called except the reference to me in Mr. Harriman's letter to Sidney Webster, in which I was said to be one of the contributors. It is true that I did contribute."

Asked how much he gave, Mr. Depew said: "I prefer to wait until I see what the committee wants to know. It also may be curious to know what Mr. Harriman said to me about it, but I don't want to say anything now.

"Of course, the whole purpose of the investigation is to find out whether Mr. Roosevelt accepted aid from the so-called trusts. Although I took an active part in the 1904 campaign and met and talked with Mr. Roosevelt a great deal, he never mentioned the subject of campaign contributions to me in any shape.

"I have seen statements by my Democratic friends that the total Republican campaign fund in 1904 was about $12,000,000. This is absurd. The money collected during the last four campaigns did not total that. Perhaps the largest amount ever raised was that collected by Mark Hanna for McKinley in 1896. He got together $4,000,000.

"One must not forget that until recently it was no crime for corporations to contribute to campaign funds. In fact, it was regarded as the proper thing to do."

Mr. Depew said it was his intention to go stumping for Taft as soon as he returned.

TO HEAR ROOSEVELT OCT. 2.

Senator Clapp Denies Archbold Gave Him Campaign Fund Documents.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Senator Clapp reappeared in Washington to-day after his campaign tour in New Hampshire, and after a few hours' work in his office departed for the Eastern Shore of Maryland, where he will make speeches tomorrow afternoon and night.

As to the statement attributed to John D. Archbold in an interview in England, that he had turned over all documentary evidence he had in regard to the questions raised as to contributions by the Standard Oil Company in 1904, Senator Clapp said that he thought Mr. Archbold had not been accurately reported, as nothing in the way of documentary evidence had been sent to the committee additional to the letter and telegram to Senator Penrose, which he had submitted when he appeared before the committee on Aug. 23. There was another letter that was not put in the record, which was handed around to members of the committee. This letter was simply a personal letter asking assistance for Mr. Archbold's brother-in-law, who is in the army.

It is understood that Senator La Follette, has submitted to Senator Clapp a statement of the scope of the investigation with a brief of the points to be cleared up and suggestions as to the line of inquiry to be made to bring out the truth. There have been some suggestions as to the attorney to be retained to represent the committee and conduct the cross-examination of witnesses. Among the names that have been discussed are those of Louis D. Brandeis of Boston and Henry E. Davis of this city, both acknowledged as distinguished men in their line. It is expected that Col. Roosevelt will appear before the committee as soon after his Western trip as possible, probably about Oct. 2.

TO CAUTION CUBAN EDITORS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Sept. 4.—Señor Fosalba, Minister from Uruguay and dean of the Diplomatic Corps, handed to Secretary of State Sanguilly to-day a note, the contents of which, while not divulged officially, are known to contain a united request from all the diplomats accredited to Cuba that the Cuban Government take up measures to prevent further attacks by the Cuban press on Mr. Gibson, the American Minister, or on other diplomats.

Señor Sanguilly conferred with the Secretary of Justice and other eminent lawyers to-day in an effort to find if any Cuban law existed whereby the State could proceed against newspapers attacking diplomats. But the lawyers informed him that there was no such law. With a view of making every effort to prevent future similar attacks, Señor Sanguilly notified all the Havana editors this evening to meet him tomorrow morning, when it is understood that he will undertake to show them the danger to the country caused by such attacks, and obtain their promise not to make them in future.

The Government is rushing the prosecution of Maza, Mr. Gibson's assailant. It is expected that his trial will be called up within a third of the time usually required in ordinary cases.

SUFFRAGETTES CUT WIRES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Cutting telegraph wires is the latest device of the suffragettes.

Fifteen important trunk wires, some miles out of London, were cut on the night of Aug. 31. The guard of a train that was passing the spot reported that he saw women climb up the poles.

HERTFORD, England, Sept. 4.—Suffragettes cut fourteen Government telegraph wires near here a few nights ago and left a notice tacked on one of the poles stating that the damage was done because of the Government's attitude toward the woman's suffrage movement.

The offenders have not been discovered. The incident became publicly known only to-day.

GREY'S ARGUMENT AGAINST CANAL ACT

British Foreign Secretary Says It Will Involve Unduly High Tolls for Foreign Ships.

SAYS TREATY IS VIOLATED

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The British case regarding the Panama Canal is summed up in a letter written by Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, that was read before the Newcastle Chamber of Commerce to-day. Sir Edward writes:

"The British Government is making representations to the United States Government. There seems to be no doubt that the adoption by the Senate of the Panama Canal bill, containing provisions for the free use of the canal by American coastwise vessels as well as United States ships in the foreign trade under certain conditions, is a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty, as the canal will not be open on terms of entire equality to the ships of all nations.

"It follows that, if a large part of this trade is allowed to pass free, the total amounts of the tolls collected will be diminished to a large extent, and, as a consequence, general trade will in future be unduly taxed on account of this suppression of part of the earning power of the canal, and the loss will fall upon the shoulders of foreign shipowners."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Ex-United States Senator Lafayette Young, who has been on a two months' tour in Europe with his daughter, Mrs. John P. Herrick of New York, is in London for a few days before sailing for home on Sept. 11.

In a talk with a NEW YORK TIMES correspondent Mr. Young said he had found opinion in Europe solidly against preferential Panama Canal tolls. It was especially bitter in Germany. He added:

"I am opposed to what Congress has done, although I do not think the situation is as serious as it is regarded in Europe as being, since there is no doubt that Congress will undo what it has done. Certainly every vessel that goes through the canal ought to pay the same tolls.

"It was unwise legislation, but I do not think Europe fully understands that the preferential treatment of coastwise steamers applies only to trade in which Europe could not engage.

"The canal is big enough for everybody on equal terms. After the grand-stand play at its beginning by Mr. Roosevelt, who talked about its benefits to the world, we ought to be particularly careful to treat every one alike."

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 5.—The Panama Canal continues to absorb a great share of the attention of the British press. The opinion was current yesterday that the Government was likely to obstain from pressing its arbitration proposal until after the American elections, in the hope that the United States will then amend the bill.

A Washington dispatch says: "It is believed that when Great Britain fully understands that free tolls apply only to the American coastwise trade, in which British shipping cannot participate, all reasons for her desiring arbitration will disappear."

This belief finds no echo in the English press. The effect of the exemption of coastwise vessels has been fully discussed.

The charges of "Yankee perfidy," the paper said in an editorial, "had the precise effect that might have been anticipated in the American retort that Europe is strewn with examples of this alleged perfidy. This only serves to generate heat where light is wanted."

It is likely, continues The Westminster Gazette, that diplomacy will fail to arrive at a settlement, in which case the Government's course clearly is to ask for arbitration. It is then pointed out that the United States Senate's ratification of an agreement to arbitrate the question could not be obtained until after the coming elections.

In conclusion, the paper says that President Taft is so deeply committed to the principle of arbitration that his refusal to submit the question cannot be conceived.

SAYS LIFE FORMS ARISE IN MATTER

Sensational Address by President Schaefer to the British Association.

EVOLUTION STILL CONTINUES

The Possibility of the Production of Life Not So Remote as Has Been Generally Assumed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 5.—The opening last evening at Dundee of the eighty-second annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science seemed to justify the expectation that the Dundee meeting of 1912 would take a place among the most memorable in the records of the association.

So great was the eagerness to hear Prof. Edward A. Schäfer's Presidential address that hundreds of applicants for tickets were disappointed, though the hall used is the largest in Dundee. Two thousand three hundred and seventy-nine persons found accommodation. Fifteen hundred is a good average attendance at these gatherings.

In the absence of the retiring President, Sir William Ramsay, who regretted his inability to attend owing to his presence at the meeting in the United States of the International Congress on Applied Chemistry, Sir Archibald Geikie presided and introduced Prof. Schäfer as "one of our most distinguished physiologists."

Prof. Schäfer's conclusions will, it is expected, arouse a lively controversy, for, as The Times editorially says, "the biological school of thought, represented with such mastery and eloquence by the President of the British Association, though predominant, is not the only one, and the doctrine of a special property in living matter may confidently be expected to come to the front again."

For the following excerpts from the address of Prof. Schäfer THE NEW YORK TIMES is indebted to Prof. J. McK. Cattell, editor of Science, in which periodical the entire address will appear.

"As a mere word, 'life' is interesting in the fact that it is one of those abstract terms which has no direct antithesis; although probably most persons would regard 'death' in that light. A little consideration will show us that this is not the case. 'Death' implies the pre-existence of 'life'; there are physiological grounds for regarding death as a phenomenon of life—it is the completion, the last act of life. We cannot speak of a non-living object as possessing death in the sense that we speak of a living object as possessing life. The adjective 'dead' is, it is true, applied in a popular sense antithetically to objects which have never possessed life, as in the proverbial expression, 'As dead as a door nail.' But in the strict sense such application is not justifiable, since the use of the terms dead and living implies either in the past or present the possession of the recognized qualities of living matter. On the other hand, the expressions living and lifeless, animate and inanimate, furnish terms which are undoubtedly antithetical. Strictly and literally the words animate and inanimate express the presence or absence of 'soul,' and not infrequently we find the terms 'life' and 'soul' erroneously employed as identical. But it is hardly necessary for me to state that the remarks I have to make regarding 'life' must not be taken to apply to the conception to which the word 'soul' is attached.

"The fact that the formation of such a conception is only possible in connection with life, and that the growth and elaboration of the conception has only been possible as the result of the most complex processes of life in the most complex of living organisms, has doubtless led to a belief in the identity of life with soul. But unless the use of the expression 'soul' is extended to a degree which would deprive it of all special significance, the distinction between these terms must be strictly maintained. For the problems of life are essentially problems of matter; we cannot conceive of life in the scientific sense as existing apart from matter. The phenomena of life are investigated, and can only be investigated, by the same methods as all other phenomena of matter, and the general results of such investigations tend to show that living beings are governed by laws identical with those which govern inanimate matter. The more we study the manifestations of life the more we become convinced of the truth of this statement and the less we are disposed to call in the aid of a special and unknown form of energy to explain those manifestations.

"The most obvious manifestation of life is 'spontaneous' movement. We see a man, a dog, a bird move, and we know that they are alive. We place a drop of pond water under the microscope, and see numberless particles rapidly moving within it; we affirm that it swarms with 'life.' We notice a small mass of clear slime changing its shape, throwing out projections of its structureless substance, creeping from one part of the field of the microscope to another. We recognize that the simple movements characterizing the Amoeba limax—the slug amoeba. We observe similar movements in individual cells of our own body; in the white corpuscles of our blood, in connective tissue cells, in growing nerve cells, in young cells everywhere. We denote the similarity between these movements and those of the amoeba by employing the descriptive term 'amoeboid' for both. We regard such movements as indicative of the possession of 'life'; nothing seems more justifiable than such an inference.

"But physicists show us movements of a precisely similar character in substances which no one by any stretch of imagination can regard as living; movements of oil drops, of organic and inorganic mixtures, even of mercury globules, which are indistinguishable in their character from those of the living organisms we have been studying: movements which can only be described by the same term amoeboid, yet obviously produced as the result of purely physical and chemical reactions causing changes in surface tension of the fluids under examination.

It is therefore certain that such movements are not specifically vital, that their presence does not necessarily denote 'life.' And when we investigate closely even such active movements as those of a vibratile cilium or a phenomenon so closely identified with life as the contraction of a muscle, we find that these present so many analogies with amoebiod movements as to render it certain that they are fundamentaly of the same character and produced in much the same manner. Nor can we for a moment doubt that the complex actions which are characteristic of the more highly differentiated organisms have been developed in the course of evolution from the simple movements characterising the activity of undifferentiated protoplasm; movements which can themselves, as we have seen, be perfectly imitated by non-living material. The chain of evidence regarding this particular manifestation of life—movement—is complete. Whether exhibited as the amoeboid movement of the proteus animalcule or of the white corpuscle of our blood; as the ciliary motion of the infusorian or of the ciliated cell; as the contraction of a muscle under the governance of the will, or as the throbbing of the human heart responsive to every emotion of the mind, we cannot but conclude that it is alike subject to and produced in conformity with the general laws of matter, by agencies resembling those which cause movements in lifeless material.

The Meteorite Theory.

"Various eminent scientific men have supposed that life has not actually originated on our globe but has been brought to it from another planet or from another stellar system. Some of my audience may still remember the controversy that was excited when the theory of the origin of terrestial life by the intermediation of a meteorite was propounded by Sir William Thompson in his Presidential address at the meeting of this association in Edinburgh in 1871. To this meteorite theory the apparently fatal objection was raised that it would take some 60,000,000 years for a meteorite to travel from the nearest stellar system to our earth, and it is inconceivable that any kind of life could be maintained during such a period. Even from the nearest planet 150 years would be necessary, and the heating of the meteorite in passing through our atmosphere and its impact with the earth would, in all probability, destroy any life which might have existed within it.

"But the acceptance of such a theory of the arrival of life on the earth does not bring us any nearer to a conception of its actual mode of origin; on the contrary, it merely serves to banish the investigation of the question to some conveniently inaccessible corner of the universe, and leaves us in the unsatisfactory position of affirming not only that we have no knowledge as to the mode of origin of life—which is unfortunately true—but that we never can acquire such knowledge, which it is to be hoped is not true. Knowing what we know, and believing what we believe, as to the part played by evolution in the development of terrestrial matter, we are, I think (without denying the possibility of the existence of life in other parts of the universe) justified in regarding these cosmic theories as inherently improbable—at least in comparison with the solution of the problem which the evolutionary hypothesis offers.

"I assume that the majority of my audience have at least a general idea of the scope of this hypothesis, the general acceptance of which has within the last sixty years altered the whole aspect not only of biology, but of every other branch of natural science, including astronomy, geology, physics, and chemistry. To those who have not this familiarity I would recommend the persual of a little book by Prof. Judd entitled 'The Coming of Evolution,' which has recently appeared as one of the Cambridge manuals.

"I know of no similar book in which the subject is as clearly and succinctly treated. Although the author nowhere expresses the opinion that the actual origin of life on the earth has arisen by evolution from non-living matter, it is impossible to read either this or any similar exposition in which the essential unity of the evolutionary process is insisted upon without concluding that the origin of life must have been due to the same process, this process being, without exception, continuous, and admitting of no gap at any part of its course. Looking therefore at the evolution of living matter by the light which is shed upon it from the study of the evolution of matter in general, we are led to regard it as having been produced, not by a sudden alteration, whether exerted by natural or supernatural agency, but by a gradual process of change from material which was lifeless, through material on the borderland between inanimate and animate, to material which has all the characteristics to which we attach the term 'life.' So far from expecting a sudden leap from an inorganic, or at least an unorganized, into an organic and organized condition, from an entirely inanimate substance to a completely animate state of being, should we not rather expect a gradual procession of changes from inorganic to organic matter, through stages of gradually increasing complexity until material which can be termed living is attained? And in place of looking for the production of fully formed living organisms in hermetically sealed flasks, should we not rather search Nature herself, under natural conditions, for evidence of the existence, either in the past or in the present, of transitional forms between living and non-living matter?

"The difficulty, nay the impossibility, of obtaining evidence of such evolution from the past history of the globe is obvious. Both the hypothetical transitional material and the living material which was originally evolved from it may, as Macallum has suggested, have taken the form of diffused ultra-microscopic particles of living substance, and even if they were not diffused but aggregated into masses, these masses could have been physically nothing more than colloidal watery slime which would leave no impress upon any geological formation. Myriads of years may have elapsed before some sort of skeleton in the shape of calcareous or siliceous spicules began to evolve itself, and thus enabled 'life,' which must already have possessed a prolonged existence, to make any sort of geological record. It follows that in attempting to pursue the evolution of living matter to its beginning in terrestrial history we can only expect to be confronted with a blank wall of nescience.

Life Still Produceable.

"The problem would appear hopeless of ultimate solution, if we are rigidly confined to the supposition that the evolution of life has only occurred once in the past history of the globe. But are we justified in assuming that at one period only, and, as it were, by a fortunate and fortuitous concomitation of substance and circumstance, living matter became evolved out of non-living matter—life became established?

"Is there any valid reason to conclude that at some previous period of its history our earth was more favorably circumstanced for the production of life than it is now? I have vainly sought for such reason, and if none be forthcoming the conclusion forces itself upon us that the evolution of non-living into living substances has happened more than once, and we can be by no means sure that it may not be happening still.

"It is true that up to the present there is no evidence of such happening; no process of transition has hitherto been observed. But, on the other hand, is it not equally true that the kind of evidence which would be of any real value in determining this question has not hitherto been looked for? We may be certain that if life is being produced from non-living substances it will be life of a far simpler character than any which has yet been observed in material which we shall be uncertain whether to call animate or inanimate, even if we are able to detect it at all, and which we may not be able to visualize physically even after we have become convinced of its existence.

"But we can look with the mind's eye and follow in imagination the transformation which non-living matter may have undergone, and may still be undergoing, to produce living substances. Well may we ask ourselves why the production of living matter alone should be subject to other laws than those which have produced and are still producing, the various forms of non-living matter; why what has happened may not happen. If living mater has been evolved from lifeless in the past, we are justified in accepting the conclusion that its evolution is possible in the present and in the future.

"Indeed, we are not only justified in accepting this conclusion, we are forced to accept it. When or where such change from non-living to living matter may have first occurred, when or where it may have continued, when or where it may still be occurring, are problems as difficult as they are interesting, but we have no right to assume that they are insoluble.

"Since living matter always contains water as its most abundant constituent, and since the first living organisms recognizable as such in the geological series were aquatic, it has generally been assumed that life must first have made its appearance in the depths of the ocean. Is it, however, certain that the assumption that life originated in the sea is correct? Is not the land surface of our globe quite as likely to have been the nidus for the evolutionary transformation of non-living into living material as the waters which surround it? Within this soil almost any chemical transformation may occur; it is subjected much more than matters dissolved in sea water to those fluctuations of moisture, temperature, electricity, and luminosity which are potent in producing chemical changes. But whether life, in the form of a simple slimy colloid, originated in the depths of the sea or on the surface of the land, it would be equally impossible for the geologist to trace its beginnings, and were it still becoming evolved in the same situations, it would be almost as impossible for the microscopist to follow its evolution. We are therefore not likely to obtain direct evidence regarding such a transformation of non-living into living matter in nature, even if it is occurring under our eyes."

ITALY SAYS SHE MUST HAVE TRIPOLI

Absolute Sovereignty Demanded, but Turkey Need Not Formally Admit It.

WILL RETURN THE ISLANDS

But Reforms Must Be Granted to Them, and Italy Wants Stampalia as a Naval Station.

CHIASSO, Switzerland, Sept. 4.—Italy is determined to maintain her hold on Tripoli and Cyrenaica. No great advance has yet been made in the unofficial negotiations for peace which are now going on in Switzerland between Italian delegates and representatives of the Turkish Government. The former, while expressing their readiness to make concessions on behalf of Italy in secondary matters, have declared it impossible to give in on several vital points.

Italy demands absolute and complete sovereignty over Tripoli and Cyrenaica, without, however, exacting its recognition from Turkey. It demands the evacuation of the territories by the Turkish troops, and it is pointed out that the Administration at Constantinople might find a way to meet these demands by proclaiming the independence of these territories, trusting the Arabs to govern themselves.

Italy pledges herself to grant general amnesty to all Arabs not undertaking any reprisals against the Italian Government, and promises that the sovereignty of the Kaliph in religious matters shall be respected. Italy will reimburse the Porte in an amount corresponding to the value of all Government properties which existed in Tripoli before the war and also that part of the Ottoman debt guaranteed by Tripoli's revenues, deducting from this sum the expenses for the maintenance of the several thousand Turkish prisoners.

It is also proposed that Turkey shall immediately readmit Italians to the Ottoman Empire under the same conditions as prevailed before the war.

Italy will keep Stampalia as a naval station, but she will return to Turkey the other islands in the Aegean on condition that their nationality shall be respected and that their political and administrative organization shall be conducted on the lines set forth in the proposal of Count Leopold von Berchthold, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister. Finally, Italy will grant to Turkey the same concessions as were granted by Austria when that power annexed Bosnia and Herzegovina.

The representatives of several of the islands, including Rhodes, although they have not been received officially by the Italian delegates in Switzerland, have communicated with the Italian Foreign Minister, the Marquis de San Giuliano, to whom they submitted a memorandum outlining the desires of the islands. In brief, they declare that if it is impossible to remain under Italian sovereignty or to be annexed to Greece, autonomy must be granted similar in form to that granted to Crete; otherwise they will oppose by force the re-establishment of the old order of things.

CARRIED UP BY AIRSHIP.

Three Soldiers Cling to Ropes and Drop to Death.

BUDAPEST, Sept. 4.—Three soldiers were instantly killed to-day by a fall from an airship which was engaged in military manoeuvres.

The airship was being prepared for an ascent and was held down by more than 100 soldiers. A heavy wind prevailed and a sudden gust carried the airship away. It rose rapidly and all the men released the ropes but three.

These held on until exhausted, and fell one after the other.

COLLISION IN LONDON TUBE.

Eighteen Hurt—Engineer's Presence of Mind Prevents Big Disaster.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—London's first tube collision of any consequence occurred to-night near the Caledonian Road station of the Piccadilly tube. Eighteen persons were injured. But for the presence of mind of the engineer the accident might have been much more serious.

At 7:30 P. M. a crowded train on the line from Finsbury Park to Piccadilly was standing at the Caledonian Road platform when an express from Finsbury Park to Hammersmith caught it up. The express was not stopping at that station, but fortunately the driver of the oncoming train saw the danger in the nick of time, and, exerting all the strength of the brakes, attempted to bring the train to a stop before it reached the rear of the stationary train. His efforts were but partly successful. They reduced the speed, but could not prevent the express from running into the stationary train.

In a moment, with the cutting off of the electric current, which takes place automatically in the section of the line where the accident occurred, the station was plunged into darkness excepting for the feeble glimmer of a few oil lamps. Then confusion reigned.

"People in the train shrieked," said one of the conductors of the stationary train, "and a rush was made for the train gates. As they open inward and as the passengers were pushing against me from behind, I could not open the gates for some time."

Meanwhile, in the half light, men and women were extricating themselves from the wreckage. After the excitement of the first moments had subsided order was restored, and the four lifts of the station plied incessantly, taking the shaken and startled passengers up to the booking office hall, and thence into the street, where a number of taxicabs were waiting to take the injured away.

It was generally supposed that the system of signals in use in the tube was automatic and rendered such an accident as a collision impossible. An official said to-night that the automatic system in use was almost perfect, but it was not found possible entirely to eliminate the human factor. On leaving a terminus it was the duty of the driver to close a trip-arm on the front coach. The rest was entirely automatic. Special officers were detailed to see that this duty was done, but it was impossible to watch the departure of every train leaving a terminus.

DENIAL BY MISS MORGAN.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Sept. 4.—THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent to-day received the following note from an intimate woman friend of Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan:

"There is not a vestige of truth in any report concerning an engagement between Count Boni de Castellane and Miss Anne Morgan.

"Miss Morgan asks me to deny this story officially and finally."

RODKINSON'S ASSAILANT MAD.

Woman Who Shot American Sent to Asylum for Criminal Insane.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—After eight months' incarceration in a prison hospital, the young Russian woman who shot the American promoter, Norbert Mortimer Rodkinson, here on Jan. 5, has been officially pronounced a dangerous lunatic and transferred to the asylum for the criminal insane at Herzberge. Mr. Rodkinson has just received word to this effect from the Crown prosecuting authorities. He said to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent to-day:

"At the time of the shooting I did not care to correct untrue statements that were published in the German press, as I did not want to anticipate the court proceedings. I relied upon all the facts coming out at the trial. There will be no trial, however, as the woman is of unsound mind.

"I now feel at liberty to say that all the reports were based on statements made by the woman as a consequence of her insanity. She was a former employe of mine at St. Petersburg. On several occasions she applied to me for pecuniary assistance. When her demands became too frequent I refused further aid. Her murderous attack and unsuccesful attempt to shoot herself followed. These facts represent the sum total of my connection with the unfortunate affair."

Mr. Rodkinson was shot three times, but had a miraculous escape and speedy recovery.

GEORGE REPUBLIC AND ITS FOUNDER

MR. GEORGE IS JUST MOVING

Leaving Freeville Voluntarily, to Let His Republic in Its Manhood Make Its Own Way.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This morning, to my amazement, mortification, and regret, I find in THE TIMES a long article upon matters at the George Junior Republic at Freeville, in which occur some very serious misstatements and violations of official propriety, and my mortification is caused by the fact that for such violation I am, partly at least, responsible.

Yesterday morning a representative of THE TIMES called upon me at my house in Auburn and frankly retailed to me a story concerning the Junior Republic which had been given to his paper. The story was one of the kind where a large amount of falsehood is mixed with sufficient truth to make it hard to deny and impossible to affirm.

I made a plain statement of the whole matter to your representative, believing that it was due THE TIMES to give it full means to determine the falsity of its informant's statements; even where the matter was obviously not intended for publication. And in confirmation I offered to add copies of various letters and reports which I held as President of the George Junior Republic Association.

It was my own understanding that before any of this material was to be made public I should have further talk with your representative or some one in authority at THE TIMES. That my understanding was not clear to your representative is made evident by your unfortunate publication this morning.

So much for the matter in general; now as to some particulars. The head lines of your article begin as follows:

> George to Leave Junior Republic.
> Founder of Freeville Colony for Boys and Girls Practically Forced to Quit.

> Republic's Troubles Continued, Though George Was Cleared of Charges.
> Agrees to Live Elsewhere.

Such statements are hateful because so exasperatingly wrong, and so exasperatingly right—in spots. They are half truths, "ever the blackest of lies." Mr. George does not intend to "leave Junior Republic," although it has recently been his intention, as his printed letter fully explains, to remove his family from Freeville. He has not been "practically forced to quit"; how can a man be forced out of his own home and off his own land?

There is no agreement "to live elsewhere." There is no agreement of any kind. Mr. George, voluntarily and very unselfishly and with a farsighted wisdom which all must admire, finds that the republic which he founded, nursed, and brought up has reached an age where it ought to shift for itself without his direct parental oversight. He realizes that so long as he lives in Freeville citizens and helpers will constantly be running to him for advice and assistance. He knows that he cannot give such advice and assistance without incurring the charge of interference, yet it is impossible for him not to feel the keenest interest in the republic and every citizen in it. In short, Mr. George's position is a good deal like that of a loving father with his son who has attained manhood. Theoretically he does not want to interfere with the boy's freedom; practically he can't help doing so—his love drives him to it, even when he knows it is better for the lad to go out into the world and gain his own experience.

No differences of opinion concerning the principles of the Junior Republic exist, or have ever existed, between Mr. George and the Trustees; it is simply a case of business organization. All parties have come to a realizing sense that as long as the inventor of the business remains about the establishment, it is human nature for the workmen to consult him rather than the official Superintendent, with resulting business demoralization. It is because the republic has come to the place where its business of manufacturing good citizens should be allowed to run without help from the inventor that Mr. George and his Trustees are face to face with their new and difficult problem.

THE TIMES's article says: "The troubles of the republic * * * have long been coming to a head. For several years the position of Mr. George has not been a pleasant one, and his final decision to leave the republic and make his home elsewhere is the outcome of the bitter opposition on the part of many of the republic's friends to Mr. George's past management of the institution," &c.

Here again we have the half truth. Of course, "the troubles have long been coming to a head." What "troubles" there are have been inherent in the thing from the beginning; exactly as they are in every organization of any kind, business or otherwise. But there has never been "bitter opposition to Mr. George's past management," and his intention to move his home from Freeville has not been determined by any such opposition, past or present. Neither, as I have pointed out, is his intention of transferring his home elsewhere in any true sense "leaving the republic." Some years ago Mr. George voluntarily resigned all official connection with the Freeville republic; he became an official of the National association, with duties all over the United States wherever junior republics have been started, and he now has obligations toward the movement at large greater than any that obtain at Freeville.

Space does not permit, nor would it be desirable to go over in detail all the unfortunate statements and misstatements in the material supplied to THE TIMES. I have, I hope, said enough to indicate the truth, and to show the spirit in which Mr. George and his Trustees are trying to meet the problems of the Junior Republic. Problems difficult enough at best, but rendered doubly so when malice prompts misinformation.

THOMAS M. OSBORNE.

NO ILL FEELING, SAYS GEORGE.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 4.—William R. George, in a conversation over the telephone to-day, said that the report that he had agreed to leave the George Junior Republic, at Freeville, was misleading. He denied that there was friction at the Republic and declared that whatever move he would make in the future would be for the benefit of the whole chain of Republics. He did not deny that he might ultimately spend more time at other institutions, and possibly move elsewhere, but he said his mind was not yet made up on what he would do. He declared that whatever new arrangements would be made at Freeville would be friendly, and that there would be no ill-feeling.

"I have long thought that the Republic should not be a one-man institution," he said, "and since I became a member of the National Association of Junior Republics I have not been manager of the local institution. Other Republics that have been formed are crying for more of my time, and in justice to them I should spend more time at the various Republics. The Freville branch can run without my personal oversight just as well."

In spite of Mr. George's statement, it is well understood in this city that there has been friction about the management of the Republic, some of Mr. George's ideas being considered entirely too Utopian by the trustees. He is not a practical business man and is much of a theorist, and it was these differences that led to Mr. Osborne's resignation. It is believed here that Mr. George will certainly leave Freeville, and before very long.

LOUD IN PRAISE OF "DADDY."

Citizens of His Republic Admire His Unselfish Withdrawal.

Special to The New York Times.

AUBURN, N. Y., Sept. 4.—The story in to-day's NEW YORK TIMES of the proposed withdrawal of William R. George from active participation in the work of the Junior Republic at Freeville, which he founded, caused many there to manifest disappointment to-day in spite of the fact that rumors of Mr. George's intended departure to engage in the more important work of the National Association of Junior Republics had been current for some time.

The sacrifice made by Mr. George in removing himself from his beloved labors in Freeville to demonstrate that the Junior Republic principles are of permanent application and will survive when the founder is not present to give his personal attention to the details, was commented upon by citizens and adult helpers, and they were loud in their praises of "daddy." That certain old charges should have been revived recently caused general annoyance, because they had been investigated five years ago when first made, and dropped from consideration.

At the annual founder's day exercises many graduates determined to dispose of the allegations, and a committee, after holding a meeting, issued a signed memorial declaring their unswerving loyalty to Mr. George and condemning those who had revived and circulated the rumors against him.

MAY SELL UP GEN. SICKLES.

Sheriff to Ask for an Auction of His Effects to Satisfy Judgment.

There is danger that the furniture, bric-a-brac and personal effects of Gen. Daniel E. Sickles may come under the shrieval hammer of Julius Harburger. And, although Gen. Sickles was Sheriff of New York County himself twenty years ago, Sheriff Harburger is so devoted to his ungracious duty that he will send counsel before Supreme Court Justice Newburger to-day to argue against any delay of the sale.

Several months ago the Lincoln Trust Company obtained a judgment of $8,066 against the General. Because of the delays in the settling of the judgment Supreme Court Justice Giegerich at length ordered Sheriff Harburger to sell sufficient of the General's effects at his residence at 23 Fifth Avenue to satisfy the trust company's claim. This order is returnable to-day before Justice Newburger and will result in summary action on the part of the Sheriff unless Gen. Sickles shows good cause to the contrary.

In his affidavit the civil war veteran, who is past 80 years, declares that the effects in danger of levy are the result of years of collecting in all parts of the world. They consist of collections of antiques, exotic decorations, and oddities of furniture and bric-à-brac which will fill up several rooms of the General's Fifth Avenue apartments. It is estimated that they would fetch more than $200,000 at an art sale.

TOMBS KEEPER DISMISSED.

Found Guilty of Neglect of Duty in Guarding Fosbrey.

Keeper William J. Hoolihan of the Tombs Prison, who was charged with being responsible for the escape of Reynolds Fosbrey, the murderer, was discharged from duty yesterday after a trial before Commissioner Whitney of the Department of Corrections.

The trial took place in the Tombs Prison and the evidence clearly showed that Hoolihan had neglected his duty, in that he did not visit the cell of the murderer every hour, as the regulations require. Night Warden Nicholas J. Jones, who was temporarily suspended from duty, was the principal witness against Hoolihan. He said that on two separate occasions he discovered the keeper asleep, and that even when he discovered that Fosbrey had escaped, Hoolihan acted like one who had just arose from a sound sleep.

Hoolihan denied all the charges against him. Warden Fallon was also called as a witness against the keeper and said that he had clearly neglected his duty in not visiting Fosbrey's cell.

After discharging Hoolihan Commissioner Whitney said that there was no one eligible to fill his place on the civil service list, and that he could not appoint another keeper in his place until another list was made out. Commissioner Whitney also remarked that a man on duty over between 600 and 700 prisoners could not afford to neglect his duty in one particular, and especially so when he knew that he had a desperate man under his direct care.

Night Warden Jones will be tried on similar charges Saturday, and it was also hinted that some further dismissals might take place in a short time.

DEAD WOMAN'S HEIRS ACCUSE HER LAWYER

Austro-Hungarian Consulate Asks Surrogate to Remove Burton W. Gibson.

DROWNED WHILE WITH HIM

Will Named Him Executor in $10,000 Estate — Recalls His Connection with Kinnan Case in 1906.

With the filing of a petition in the Surrogates' Court yesterday by the Austro-Hungarian Consulate in this city, asking that the court revoke the letters testamentary issued to Burton W. Gibson, a lawyer, of 55 Liberty Street, in the matter of the will of Rosa Menschik Szabo, and praying for the appointment instead of Dr. Fritz Fischerauer, the Austrian Vice Consul, as administrator of her estate, it became known that the consulate and the Pinkerton Detective Agency have for some time been investigating strange features of Mrs. Szabo's death, and circumstances, said to be equally strange, by which the will probated by the lawyer as hers was obtained. The petition contains an affidavit reciting a cablegram from the Chief of Police of Vienna, in which Gibson is said to be "suspected of murder."

Mrs. Szabo, whose estate was said by close friends yesterday to have exceeded $10,000 by her own admission to them, was drowned in Greenwood Lake, in Orange County, on July 16 last, while rowing in a boat with Gibson. He himself clung to the boat and was rescued from the lake. Immediately afterward, according to the statement of Deputy Sheriff Willis C. De Graw of Orange County, as told in an affidavit of Alphonse P. Rink, a Pinkerton detective who has been investigating the case, Gibson hurried to the room which Mrs. Szabo had occupied in the Ferncliffe Hotel, examined her belongings, and packed her bag. Then he hurried to New York, where, according to Rink, he examined all her belongings at her home, 46 West Sixty-fourth Street, and shipped six trunks of her possessions to his home at 292 Carmita Avenue, Rutherford, N. J. Other goods, according to the detective, were sold by Gibson to a Mrs. Stern of 68 West 104th Street. The lawyer attended also to the burial of Mrs. Szabo in Staten Island.

Find Her Heir Dead.

On Aug. 1, according to the petitioner, Gibson applied for probate of a will dated July 12, 1912, four days before Mrs. Szabo's death, in which he was named as executor. Gibson is alleged to have represented at this time that Mrs. Szabo's only heir was her mother, Mrs. Petronella Menschik, who, he said, lived near Chicago. The investigators say they have also found that a paper purporting to be a waiver of citation of Petronella Menschik and dated July 21, 1912, was annexed to the petition for probate. A woman said at the time to be Mrs. Menschik was introduced before Donald Lyon, a notary public of Kings County, it is said, and signed the waiver.

The queer thing about the matter, according to the petitioner, is that Mrs. Menschik, mother of Mrs. Szabo, is said to have died two years earlier in Vienna, and never to have been in this country at all. Moreover, according to advices received by the investigators from the police of Vienna, Mrs. Szabo has at present five brothers and three sisters living in Austria, despite Gibson's alleged statement to the court that her mother was her only heir.

At the office of Arpad A. Kremer, counsel for the Austrian Consulate, it was said yesterday that this phase of the matter would be laid before District Attorney Whitman to-day with a possibility of proceedings for subornation of perjury. In his affidavit annexed to yesterday's petition, Mr. Kremer says that an inquiry addressed to the Chief of Police of Vienna on this phase of the matter after Mrs. Szabo's death, was answered by the chief in this cablegram:

> The mother, Petronella Menschik, died in February, 1910. Five brothers and three sisters are alive. Gibson suspected of murder.

The investigation into the strange circumstances surrounding Mrs. Szabo's death and her lawyer's possession of the will making him her executor, was brought about first through inquiries by George Teichman of 830 West Fifty-fifth Street, a captain of hotel bellboys at the Hotel Knickerbocker, and his wife, both of whom had known Mrs. Szabo for many years and had long been her neighbors.

Story of Dead Woman Told.

Teichmann used to write letters to Austria for Mrs. Szabo and read such as came for her, since she could neither read nor write, he says. Mrs. Teichmann told what she knew of the case as follows yesterday:

"Mrs. Szabo and her husband came to this country about twenty years ago. He was, or called himself, a baron, and was unable to do much in the line of work here. He used to give Latin and piano lessons, and for a time he was a clerk in a bank. But a few years later they were divorced and Mrs. Szabo thereafter supported herself. She procured an excellent position as housekeeper for a Fifth Avenue jeweler who died a few years ago, and in six years she saved up, as she told us, more than $10,000. Shortly after her husband's death she went by the name of Mrs. Rosa Ritter. For some months before she used that name, saying that it sounded more euphonious than Szabo.

"On July 27 last she was to have sailed for Austria on the steamship Kaiser Franz Josef I., taking all her money with her, to settle down permanently there. Some weeks before that, she said she had consulted her lawyer, Gibson, about the money. She used to tell me that somehow she didn't like him; that she was sure something would happen. She said he always used to ask her to go out with him, automobiling and the like, and that she would not do so.

"We grew uneasy when July 27 neared and we heard nothing from her and did not have her come to say good-bye. We did not know then that she had gone to Greenwood Lake with Gibson weeks before. On July 27 a young man called at our door. He was about 38 years old, smooth shaven, blond, and stalwart. He squinted somewhat, and wore eyeglasses. He wanted to know whether we had received any letters for Mrs. Ritter.

"'Why?' I asked.

"'Because she wants me to get them for her,' he replied. 'She is going to get married to an old man in Chicago.'

"I laughed. I told him that couldn't be, because she had told me she would never marry here, but was going home with her money. I did not know at that time that Mrs. Szabo had been dead eleven days.

"'Oh, yes, she is going to marry,' replied the man. 'They have been corresponding a long time.'

"'That is impossible,' I retorted, 'for Mrs. Ritter could neither read nor write. My husband had to attend to all her correspondence.'

"Thereupon the man became very much flabbergasted, and with almost no further words hurried away. I became suspicious, and soon afterward made my husband go down to the Franklin Bank, where Mrs. Szabo had money on deposit, and where he told them not to allow any of it to be withdrawn. He discovered that Gibson had been at the bank to withdraw money from Mrs. Szabo's account as her executor, and that the bank had insisted on his showing her death certificate. That is how we learned of her drowning in Greenwood Lake. We learned later that Gibson had withdrawn money from her account in other banks. Then we put the facts before the Austro-Hungarian Consul, and the investigation was taken up more systematically. As for us, we have no faith whatever in the authenticity of the alleged will which Gibson is said to have presented as coming from Mrs. Szabo. She always told me that she would make no will until she got to Austria."

At Gibson's office, 55 Liberty Street, it was said yesterday that the lawyer was away and had been since last Friday a week ago. At his home in Rutherford it was said that he was motoring in the Catskills and was not expected back before to-day.

Lawyer and Kinnan Case.

Gibson figured under peculiar circumstances in the public prints once before. In July, 1906, he was held in $25,000 bail by Coroner McDonald of the Bronx at the close of an inquest into the death of Mrs. Alice C. D. Kinnan. Gibson had offered for probate a will of Mrs. Louisa Stenton, mother of Mrs. Kinnan, leaving Mrs. Stenton's property to her daughter, and in event of her daughter's death to Percey McElroy. Gibson was named as executor. The witnesses were Mrs. Kinnan, Gibson, and his wife. One night Mrs. Kinnan was found dead on the porch of the house where she and her mother had lived alone. Her skull was crushed by blows. The Coroner's jury could not fix the blame for her death, however, and although Gibson was held in bail by the Coroner he was released the next day on habeas corpus proceedings, since there was no charge against him. Subsequently he sued Coroner Schwannecke and Coroner McDonald for $50,000. The suits have not yet come to trial. A month after Mrs. Kinnan's death suit was brought against Gibson in Mrs. Stenton's name and against another lawyer, to declare void their title to thirty-five lots in the Bronx, worth about $100,000, which it was declared the defendants had obtained by fraud. Mrs. Stenton was declared incompetent, and died in 1909. She was declared to have died intestate and an administrator was appointed. The murder of Mrs. Kinnan was never cleared up.

Another suit is still pending against Gibson in the Supreme Court. Hugh F. Trainor, who reads little and can write only his name, says in this suit that he signed at Gibson's suggestion several papers which he later learned were confessions of judgment amounting to $24,000. He wants Gibson to return him $20,000 on this account.

RUTHERFORD, N. J., Sept. 4.—Burton W. Gibson, it was said last night, might be home to-morrow. His housekeeper explained that the roads were so bad after the storm he could not drive his automobile home. She was asked if she had been in communication with him and refused to answer. Just where in the mountains he is she would not say.

3 FIREBOATS FIGHT BLAZE.

East River Building Wrecked and Two Firemen Hurt.

The building at 426-436 East 106th Street, occupied by the J. W. Stolts Casket Manufacturing Company, was wrecked yesterday afternoon by a fire that did $85,000 damage and partly destroyed the adjoining building, the home of the Cook Spring Company. Chief Kenlon superintended the two hours of fire fighting and his forces were augmented by three fireboats.

The fire started in the basement of the Stolts building, but the eighty employes, men and girls, reached the street in safety. The only injuries were received by Brady and Rodgers of the fireboat Hewitt. They were standing on an extension roof behind the building, and when it collapsed and dropped them to the ground they were painfully though not seriously cut.

VISITING ENGINEERS SAIL TO WEST POINT

Prince Gargarin of Russia Says He Knows Now Why Our Army Engineers Are So Efficient.

CADETS OUT ON PARADE

The foreign delegates attending the sixth triennial Congress of the International Association for Testing Materials in this city had a good time yesterday on an excursion trip given to them by the local engineering societies. The congress adjourned after the forenoon session to enable the delegates to take the steamer Sagamore, which left her dock at the foot of Twenty-third Street and North River for the United States Military Academy at West Point. About 300 of the visiting engineers made the trip, and many of them were accompanied by their wives. A luncheon was served on board the boat, and everything was done to prove to the visitors that American Hospitality was as represented.

Upon the arrival of the excursionists at West Point they were received by the Commandant and the officers of his staff, who went with them about the grounds and buildings. The delegates were delighted with what they saw, especially the military and naval engineers who have been sent by their Governments to attend the congress. Prince Gargarin of St. Petersburg, one of the most eminent military engineers of Europe, expressed the warmest approval of the Academy and the system of instruction given in engineering subjects.

"West Point is vastly superior to the military schools maintained in Europe," said he. "The efficiency of American Army officers, especially your engineers, has always been a cause of wonderment to me, but the puzzle is solved now. The feats accomplished by American engineers in the Philippines would have been impossible had it not been for the training given them at West Point."

The entire cadet corps was drawn up for review upon the parade ground. The military bearing of the cadets and the precise manner in which they went through their evolutions greatly impressed the visitors, while the ladies were much taken with the showy dress uniforms of gray and white.

"They look like soldiers and will make good soldiers," was the comment of Prince Gargarin at the conclusion of the review.

After the last file of cadets had wheeled off the parade ground an informal reception was tendered to the visitors in the officers' quarters. After this was ended the delegates again boarded the Sagamore for a night sail down the Hudson. The scenery along the river greatly impressed the excursionists. A seven course dinner was served on the boat, which was over in time to permit the delegates to crowd to the upper deck and watch for the lights of Manhattan.

During the forenoon session of the congress the delegates were divided into different sections and met in various assembly rooms on the eleventh floor of the Engineering Societies' Building at 29 West Thirty-ninth Street. Tests for metals were described and discussed in Section A, before which branch of the congress Prof. Lyon read an exhaustive treatise on the relative corrodibility of irons in waters.

The speaker maintained that irons corrode generally in simple water and in very dilute solutions of salts. Stronger solutions caused local corrosion, he said, while very strong solutions caused no corrosion whatever.

The limited concentrations between general and local corrosion and between local corrosion and no corrosion at all, he explained, served to discriminate as to corrodibility of a sample. Of two samples the one having the largest range between these two limits was the more corrodible. The salts used in the experiments by Prof. Lyon were sodium carbonate and caustic potash.

H. Baucke described the action of electrolytes on metals under stress. Where steel balls possessed internal stress from hardening, he declared, the condition might be readily ascertained by the action of an electrolyte which causes them to crack. Cracking of boiler plates, the speaker added, was a symptom of fatigue, the metal trying to recover its character as a crystalline solid. In fatigued plates, he concluded, flaws might also be induced by action of an electrolyte.

In Section B of the congress Bertram Blount, M. Gary, F. Schule, and J. Bied read papers upon tests for cement and stone, while before Section C McGarvey Cline of the United States Forestry Bureau outlined the general scope of investigations made by the Forest Products Laboratory of the United States Forest Service to determine the chemical, physical, and mechanical properties of commercial timbers of the United States.

There will be no general session of the congress to-day, but the various sections will convene at 9 o'clock and will hold sessions throughout the morning and afternoon. To-night Prince André Gargarin of Russia will deliver an illustrated address in the main assembly hall of the Engineering Societies' Building upon the subject, "Autographic Stress-Strain Recording in Impact Tests."

At 8 o'clock to-night an informal reception to foreign delegates will be given by the American Society of Civil Engineers at its house, 220 West Fifty-seventh Street. A feature of the reception will be an illustrated lecture by Alfred D. Flinn upon the Engineering Activities of New York City.

SUFFRAGISTS BEAR UP UNDER OHIO DEFEAT

Fight On All Over Again, They Say — Boodlers and Gamblers Counted in Opposition.

ANTI-SUFFRAGISTS REJOICE

Republican Women Politicians Charge It All to Women in the Bull Moose Party.

While the women suffragists all over the country have been concentrating their efforts to bring the suffrage campaign in Ohio to a successful termination, they were not altogether cast down yesterday at the news of defeat. Some of them said that they were prepared for it, knowing the power against them. Others said it was a mere matter of money and organization in the opposing forces, and all agreed that the defeat only made more earnest work necessary, and that the Ohio women, with the initiative and referendum law passed, would begin over again.

Miss Helen Varick Boswell, head of the woman's department of the National Republican Party, said that the women of the Bull Moose Party had caused the defeat in Ohio.

"Women have complained with reason that this has been a man's world," said Miss Boswell, "but we do not see that the men will be any more reconciled to having it turned into a woman's world."

Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, President of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, is pleased, of course, with the result. She says that the anti-suffragists, with little organization and less money, have triumphed in an important State, and this will have its influence upon the other States. She believes that now, with the increased agitation for suffrage and women going into actual political work in the men's organizations, the time has come when the men must consider the subject seriously, and take a decided stand upon the question of whether women shall remain in the home or come out into public life.

"We expected victory, and at the last minute there is a surprise and we find we have been defeated," said Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett, Secretary of the National Woman Suffrage Association. "It is inexcusable that we did not win, but we had many different things working against us besides lack of money and organization.

"The women worked with devoted self-sacrifice, and there never was a campaign in the history of suffrage with such a large army of women in it. The National Association gave $2,000 a month to the work and it is bankrupt. Massachusetts sent eight of her best workers, Pennsylvania her best organizer, Rhode Island and New Hampshire more help, and many women went there at their own expense to help the cause.

"I hope they will keep up their organization and begin the work over again. It somehow seems so tragic that the women should be defeated after all their efforts."

"The defeat was not a surprise to me," said Miss Caroline I. Riley of the Press Bureau of the National Suffrage Association. "The forces against the women were mighty, being made up of grafters, boodlers, monopolists, machine politicians, gamblers, white slavers, and others of that class. But a splendid educational work has been done, and women will go at it again."

Mrs. Stanton Blatch of the Woman's Political Union, Mrs. John Rogers, Jr., and Miss Eleanor Brannan are all in Ohio. Mrs. Arthur F. Townsend, the Treasurer, who also took part in the campaign, said in the office here yesterday:

"What do I think of the defeat in Ohio? I don't like to say, for fear the ceilings would fall. No perfect lady could put my feelings into words. But there is the initiative and referendum, and the women will go to work again."

Mrs. John Winters Brannan of the Woman's Political Union raised $1,000 for the Ohio campaign in Cazenovia, Mrs. Frederick Hazard giving $500. Mr. and Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw sent Miss Jeanette Rankin to the Ohio campaign as a paid organizer for weeks. Mrs. W. Penfield, head of the party, went personally to work.

"I sent a telegram of sympathy to Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, the Ohio State President," said Mrs. Laidlaw yesterday, "and one to the workers, congratulating them upon their efforts. But we are not stopping to mourn, but to plan for the future."

"The less said the better," said Mrs. A. C. Fisk, leader of the Bronx. "I am an Ohio woman myself, and it has been hard for me not to be in the fight, but there is no time to mourn. We must go to work."

The Rev. Anna Shaw, National Suffrage President, was in Ohio the last days of the fight, and also Miss Harriet May Mills, the New York State President.

Miss Boswell of the Republican Party and Miss Mary Wood, the Secretary, issued this statement, accusing the Bull Moose women politicians of causing the Ohio defeat. The statement says in part:

> The time is not yet ripe and especially in this part of the country where the women do not have the vote, for party conventions to be dominated by women or even for them to have a very prominent part. The new party has made a merit of putting women in a position toward politics that instantly puts the majority of men in all parties on the defensive against what to them is a new and seems an anomalous encroachment.
> It has been proven conclusively that the staunch suffragists of this country, those who have borne the brunt of the struggle for many years are not anxious to have the question of suffrage made a matter of partisan politics. The resentment against this false attitude of parties towards suffrage is not at all confined to men. Thinking women, and especially those most interested in the adoption by States of equal suffrage for women, share this feeling.

The special meeting of the Executive Committee of the New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage yesterday morning after expressing its gratification at the defeat of the woman suffrage amendment in Ohio issued a statement, saying that the German element in Ohio came out strongly against suffrage, and "the weight of the Catholic vote was also cast against it." The leaders of the movement opposed to woman suffrage, it says, "have always contended that the demand for woman suffrage came from the clamor of the minority of their sex."

"It is going to be interesting to watch the effect of all of this after the election," Mrs. Dodge remarked. "With the women going into practical politics I think the men will begin to look at the matter sanely and seriously and take the trouble to study it. I say that this must be either right or wrong—it must be one thing or the other, and that is what the men must decide. After the election, when they have seen what the effect is of women in politics, then they must know what they think—no one then can sit on the fence."

At the National Headquarters of the Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage they had the pamphlet issued by the Catholic Church of Ohio last Sunday. It was marked "Issued under the auspices of the Catholic Press and Catholic Organizations of Ohio," and covered the forty-one proposed amendments with comments and directions after each: "Vote yes" or "Vote no." The negative was given after the amendments to confer the privilege of suffrage on women and upon their eligibility to office. They also order a negative vote for the initiative and referendum, which, however, was passed.

OHIO WOMEN TO FIGHT ON.

They Will Use Initiative to Bring Up Suffrage Next Year.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 4.—Every amendment to the Constitution voted on yesterday carried except woman suffrage, and Ohio is to have as radical a Constitution as any State in the Union.

Nearly all of the cities rolled up substantial majorities against suffrage, and the majority of rural precincts also registered objection to the equal franchise. In this city, however, suffrage received a majority of 4,460.

Returns from considerably over one-half the precincts in the State give the vote for suffrage as 105,577, and against 160,745; for liquor license, 142,640, against 76,139; for the initiative and referendum 161,577, against 95,879; for primary elections 172,287, against 76,010.

The overwhelming defeat of woman suffrage is attributed by its supporters to the activity of the liquor interests against it and the apathy of the laboring men and Socialists, whose support was expected, but who failed to go to the polls in any large numbers. The work of the saloons is thought to be shown by the large adverse majorities polled in the big cities, where they are strongest.

Suffrage leaders, far from discouraged by the defeat of their amendment, announced to-day a plan for a new campaign. The initiative is to be used to bring the question before the voters again. By this method an appeal to the General Assembly will not be necessary, as a petition of 10 per cent. of the voters will be sufficient at any time to place a constitutional amendment before the people.

A vote cannot, however, be taken before November next year, as the regulations for the initiative provide that petitions must be in the hands of the Secretary of State ninety days before the election, and that the proposals for new laws can be voted on only at a regular election.

"The Woman Suffrage Organization will be continued," emphatically declared to-day Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, the suffrage leader. "Why, we haven't even conceded defeat. Our fight from now on will be along educational lines. We have at least awakened the women by our campaign."

The liquor license amendment will reduce the number of saloons in Ohio by over 2,000. On Jan. 1 all saloons will theoretically go out of existence, and the Legislature will have to fix the regulations under which licenses will be issued. This does not mean, however, that there will be a period of no saloons, as a saving clause says that the present laws will remain in force until the transition can be made. The amendment prohibits breweries from owning saloons, and keeps immoral characters out of the saloon business.

The vote on the license question was small, running in the large cities 10 to 15 per cent. behind the vote on the other questions. The amendment abolishing capital punishment will have the smallest majority of all. The vote cast at the election was small, being less than a half of the total enrollment.

HIS INJURED ANKLE STOPS TAFT'S SPEECH

Pain Forces Him to Abandon His Address to the Congress of Applied Chemistry.

LAWN PARTY AT WHITE HOUSE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—It was a tired and pain-racked President who arrived in Washington to-day for a twenty-four-hour stay. The ankle injured two years ago while he was playing golf at Beverly and strained again yesterday on the same links pained him greatly during the night journey from Boston, and in consequence Mr. Taft got little sleep. He was weary when he reached here, and the pain was acute.

Several hours of rest in his own bed put the President in better shape, but he showed signs of suffering when, sitting in a wheel chair on the White House lawn this afternoon, he received the members of the International Congress of Applied Chemistry.

The purpose of President Taft's return to Washington was to receive the visiting chemists at the White House and make an address at their opening session. But when he reached the convention hall, having gone there direct from the Union Station, he felt so ill that he decided to postpone his speech, and was taken to the White House.

In the afternoon the President was sufficiently recovered to be wheeled about the White House grounds at the lawn party given to the foreign visitors, and to address them briefly in the East Room. He dwelt particularly on the patent system.

"I note," he said, "that you consider the question of patents in the United States. We have given to patentees a very valuable monopoly, and whether we have made this too great or not is now under consideration by a commission.

"There is certainly great room for improvement in the machinery of our Patent Office, and it would be well if more value could inhere in the issuing of a patent as an evidence of real property. Now, until it has been fought through the courts, people do not seem to regard a patent as possessing a great deal of monopoly value.

"I may add that one of the great opportunities for reform, in my judgment, is in the shortening of patent litigation and the reducing of its expense. It is not essential to make a record of 10,000 printed pages at $50 a day for experts and $100 a day for patent lawyers. I have no objection to experts or patent lawyers, but I think we can have too much of both of them.

"What ought to happen is that the expert should be examined in open court on the principal points of the case and then dismissed, and that we should not have that interminable system of records."

One of the stories in circulation to-day was that President Taft was really suffering from gout. This was denied with emphasis by those close to the President. He was attended on the trip from Beverly and is still under the care of Major Thomas Rhoads, his military aid, who is a surgeon in the army.

The President will go to New York to-morrow and, with Mrs. Taft, will start on a short cruise on the United States Naval Yacht Mayflower. The rest he will get at sea is expected to put him on his feet again, literally and figuratively. It is probable that the President will not return to Washington till after the election.

WIFE HAS AVIATOR ARRESTED.

Mrs. Beatty Charges That He Struck Her When She Found Notes.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Sept. 4.—George W. Beatty, the aviator, will appear before Justice John Buhler here to-morrow morning on a charge of wife-beating.

The warrant for Beatty's arrest was sworn out on a complaint made yesterday by his wife, formerly Miss Genevieve O'Hagan of New York. Mrs. Beatty alleged that her husband, on finding her with some of his letters in her possession, choked and dragged her across the floor. She says that the letters were love missives, and that her husband was furious when she charged him with them.

The Beattys have been at a hotel here for some weeks, and rumors of their infelicities have been rife for some time.

According to the report of the appraisal of his New York estate, Thomas Clarke, a financier of Liverpool, England, and head of Clarke's, (Liverpool,) Limited, who died in January, 1911, left a fortune of $2,141,154. The appraisal of his New York estate was filed yesterday in the Transfer Tax office of the Surrogates' Court by Deputy State Controller Wallace S. Fraser, and shows that he owned securities in this country worth $45,479.42.

St. Andrew's Brotherhood Convention

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Twelve hundred delegates arrived to-day for the twenty-seventh annual convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. The organization, which was started in Chicago in 1883, now has 25,000 members in all parts of the world. The convention will continue four days.

HIGH TARIFF NOT CAUSED BY HIGH COST OF LABOR

Fallacy of the Familiar Contention That the Big Wages We Pay Make Protection Necessary and Have Caused the Increased Cost of Living.

By JOHN JEROME ROONEY.

No defense of the high "protective" tariffs of the past fifty years in the United States and the high prices of commodities caused thereby has been more exploited than the excuse that these tariffs, and these excessive prices, were made necessary in order to pay the high wages prevailing in this country.

The inference from this statement was, and is, that a high rate of wages and a large weekly, monthly, or yearly wage output caused a high cost of production of commodities, especially manufactures, and that employers must be compensated by a bonus in the form of tariff-raised prices for the extra outlay. Otherwise, so the plea ran, the process of production could not go on.

This statement, or argument, has been made so familiar by repetition that it has become the central doctrine of the high tariff creed, though it is contradicted by a thousand familiar illustrations on every side.

Put in concrete fashion the contention is that an operative receiving $1 or 50 cents a day is cheaper in the cost of production of the article worked on than a man or woman receiving $2 per day.

Hence, the purchasers of the article, so runs the claim, must be taxed a higher price, through the "protective" or price-raising feature of the tariff thereon, to make up the loss or excess wages paid by the manufacturer, as compared with the lower wages of the foreign operative.

The statement looks plausible, yet is totally misleading in practically every application of it to industry in this or any other country.

A few minutes' examination will demonstrate its falsity.

Take, for example, the report of President Taft's Tariff Board on the wool schedule, (K,) less than a year old. Here is a board, the majority of whose members are "protectionists," appointed by a "protectionist" President, reporting solely to him. On Dec. 21, 1911, Senator Smoot of Utah (certainly not a "free-trader") presented to the Senate a "Synopsis of the Report of the Tariff Board on Schedule K, relative to the duties on wool."

This report was based on the elaborate world-wide examination of the board into the cost of production of wool and woolens, as a proposed basis for a revision of the schedule according to "the difference in cost of production" standard of the Republican platform of 1908.

Here, at last, should be proof of the handicap, the invariable burden of paying a high rate of wages. Yet, we find on Page 11 this (to "protectionists") startling statement:

> Wages are much higher in the United States, but wages are in themselves no necessary indication of relative cost of production. Frequently it is found that high wages and low labor cost go together. The question at once arises whether the labor in American woolen and worsted manufacturing is more efficient than such labor abroad, or whether by more efficient management or greater speed in machinery the American manufacturer is able to get a larger product per operative in proportion to the difference in wages.

Study that statement carefully. It contains the whole secret of labor cost in production. In plain terms, the labor cost in the unit of production, a yard of cloth, a ton of iron, a pair of shoes or gloves, &c., depends on the efficiency of the producing labor.

A high rate of production, by the laborer, gives high wages and a low labor cost in the unit. Arithmetically, divide the total product of the laborer by the total wages he receives and you have the percentage of labor cost in the dollar's worth of product. The higher the output of product the lower is the labor cost per yard or pair. The higher the product the higher the aggregate wages of labor; so that, clearly, high wages and high product must, under normal organization of industry, work together.

Yet this very efficiency of American labor and the higher wages received in some industries, though of a much lower standard in the "protected" ones, are put forward as a burden and handicap to the American employing producer.

That this statement of the Tariff Board is not an offhand saying is proved by another remark at the close of the "Synopsis," (Page 19,) to this effect:

> The productive efficiency per one-man-hour for machine operatives and machines in the scouring, carding, combing, drawing, and spinning departments, with 168 separate labor costs per pound, show wide differences of efficiency and cost, but indicate in general that the lowest labor costs per pound were in mills paying the highest wages.

There is the truth, at last, under official seal, and by an authority that cannot be questioned by the out-of-date defenders of the worn-out political shibboleths about "our high paid laboring man being exposed to the pauper class of Europe."

The high paid man, whether in shop or office, is the least expensive man to his employer, assuming, which is pretty safe, that the employer is not willing to pay something for nothing. High wages flow from high production. There is no other place for wages to come from except from the product, and that is the true source of wages.

It is, manifestly, impossible to pay high wages for any length of time, unless the product of labor and capital, working together, is large.

Familiarly, this is seen in the saying that "the highest priced man is cheapest in the long run." The labor of the hand looms of China, or India, at 12 or 10 cents a day, has no chance in competition with the product of the labor of the power looms of Lancashire, with wages fifteen or twenty times as high, in the aggregate, by the day or the week. The latter labor is actually cheaper, in the unit of product, to the employer, than the low-priced and really high-cost labor of the less productive men.

Why? Because the labor cost in the yard is less in Lancashire or New England. Otherwise, it would be impossible to sell, continuously and in greater quantities, these products of the power looms in the markets of the East.

A further illustration of this principle, which, upon close view, scarcely needs illustrating, is found in another protectionist authority of the highest standing, the late James G. Blaine. When Secretary of State he caused to be issued a report on the "Cotton Goods Trade of the World," (Department of State document, June 25, 1882, Pages 98 and 99,) where, after showing in detail the wages of spinners and weavers in Lancashire and Massachusetts, he uses these words, doubtless startling to many, both in the figures and the "efficiency" point made:

> The hours of labor in the Lancashire mills are 56, in the Massachusetts mills 60 per week. The hours of labor in the mills in the other New England States, where the wages are generally less than in Massachusetts, are usually 66 to 69 per week. Undoubtedly the inequalities in the wages of English and American operatives are more than equalized by the greater efficiency of the latter and their longer hours of labor.

Here is a direct statement, under the hand of Mr. Blaine, that "efficiency" determines the time, amount of wages, and, strange to some "protectionist" ears, the statement that the English operatives are paid higher wages, product and time being considered, than our alleged highly paid wage earners in the New England mills.

Such is, substantially, the case to-day; even more so, because of the greater proportionate cost of living here compared with England in the two periods. But "that's another story."

Ex-Secretary of State Thomas F. Bayard writing, some years ago, to the late Jacob Schoenhof, the economist and special State Department Commissioner, "to inquire into the economy of production in Europe," used these striking terms in speaking of the Schoenhof report:

> The facts you have adduced and your deductions irresistibly establish the proposition that low wages do not mean cheap production, and that the best instructed and best paid labor proves itself to be the most productive—so that the rate of wages and the cost of production are not alternative nor equivalent expressions, although so frequently and ignorantly confused.
> As the efficiency of labor is increased, prices will be lessened, and this creates new demands, so that successful and progressive industry implies a necessity for wider markets, and a minimum of artificial restriction in the commercial world.
> Mechanical excellence is one of the fruits of technical education, and the command of every market follows the workman who can produce what is best and at the lowest cost.

What a contrast such an utterance is to the muddled and misleading utterances on "wages" put out by the defenders of a tariff system that pretends to raise wages by taxing the great body of wage earners in every article of their daily living!

In a daily financial paper of this city appeared yesterday a statement regarding the wonderful progress our American automobiles are making in England and on the Continent. The President of one of the American companies, Laurence Moore, who is now in England, is quoted as saying:

"It is idle for England to hope to compete with our men, who are working at a high rate of production and are earning enormous wages."

American wheat and flour are daily laid down in Liverpool and every part of the world and undersell—that is, are cheaper—than the wheat and flour of Russia and the Continent.

The Northwest farm laborer earns $2 to $3 per day, with board; the transportation labor is paid to three times the wages of similar labor elsewhere. The Russian or East Indian farm hand receives a meagre wage—from 10 to 20 cents per day.

The illustration is familiar and convincing. Does the Northwest farmer need "protection" on wheat from the Russian wheat because he pays higher wages? The answer is obvious. His labor cost, in the bushel of wheat, is less than the labor cost of the Russian or Indian farmer, working with his ryot, unproductive farm hands.

High daily or weekly wages do not mean high labor cost, but the contrary. High aggregate wages are no excuse for demanding subsidies, in the form of tariffs, from the consumers, meaning all the wage earners themselves.

When the rate of wages paid is low, as is the case in the majority of "protected" industries here, and the tariff subsidies high, the abuse becomes intolerable.

Some other excuse for this system of private taxation must be found.

The "high wages," and consequent high production cost, cannot stand examination.

England won back the British international trophy for motor boats yesterday, when Maple Leaf IV. took the third and final race of the series for the world's championship over the thirty-mile course in Huntington Bay after a contest which bristled with exciting periods.

Reliance III. finished second, but the other three starters, Ankle Deep and Reliance II., both American defenders, and Mona, the other English entrant, broke down and failed to finish.

Maple Leaf IV.'s time for the four rounds of the course was 48:16, thus showing a speed of 37.89 knots, or 43.57 statute miles, per hour, a new world's record. Her actual time from start to finish was 47:46, she having lost 30 seconds in getting away from the gun, which averages 37.90 knots, or 43.585 statute miles an hour, thus beating the best mark of Baby Reliance II., made in her winning race last Saturday.

To delve still deeper into figures brings out that Reliance II., which started twenty-nine seconds after the gun, went over the first lap of the course in the amazing time of 11:17, a speed averaging 40 knots, or 46 miles an hour, which quite overshadows anything ever done in a competitive way over a distance anything like seven and one-half miles.

Ankle Deep Fastest Boat.

It was conceded on all sides, however, that the fastest boat in the race, when unassailed by accident, was in all likelihood Ankle Deep, which, when in the lead of Maple Leaf IV. by something like a mile and a half, had the misfortune to have her port propeller almost wrenched off, thus putting her almost out of commission and out of the race as far as even getting over the course was concerned.

At the time of her accident Ankle Deep had only about three miles to run in order to complete her task, being well straightened out in the run down the Lloyds Neck side of the triangle. With her indicator showing forty-five miles an hour at the pace she was going, the boat suddenly veered almost at right angles to the course and ran around in circles before it was found that the port propeller had been wrenched so badly that one of the blades was jammed through the transom.

This left an easy victory for the better of the English boats, Maple Leaf, which Ankle Deep had been simply running away from all through the lap which was to bring such lamentable fortune to the hope of America.

In commenting upon the hard luck of Mr. Mankowski, the owner and helmsman of Ankle Deep, one of the members of the American committee stated that the racing of Reliance II. during the major portion of the first lap in the immediate wake of Ankle Deep was annoying, as there was no occasion for it, and it simply made the strain on the latter's propellers twice as much as is ordinarily the case. It was his idea that it was during this trying period when the American boats were "racing their heads off" that Ankle Deep had first had some damage done to her.

No time was lost by the Governors of the Motor Boat Club of America in arranging for the sending of a challenge for the cup, and the race had hardly been finished when H. H. Melville, Henry R. Sutphen, Joseph H. Hoadley, August Heckscher, and James A. Blair, Jr., announced that A. Jackson Stone, the representative of the Royal Motor Yacht Club, would be the bearer of a challenge in behalf of American boats for next year's contest.

There was plenty of speculation on the result of the contest, probably $10,000 changing hands at the Château des Beaux Arts. Lou Betts wagered $5,000 on the English nominations with an American who was unknown to any one about, while there were a number of bets of much lesser amounts. A well-known bookmaker was looking for E. Mackay Edgar, the owner of Maple Leaf, who was said to be willing to back his boat's chances and offered to bet him $2,000 even, but he was unable to have his proposition accepted.

Conditions Were Just Right.

It early developed that during the morning Reliance III. had taken the measure of Mona in an impromptu race of one lap, in which the English boat had been beaten over half a mile. It was said that this is what prompted the confidence in the American craft on the part of those close to J. J. Ryan, the builder of the Blackton entries.

Aside from the supposed line which had been obtained on the English challengers through their racing and the morning brush, the perfect conditions which prevailed warranted the almost unlimited confidence which was expressed by those who had the welfare of the American boats at heart.

For the major portion of the course it was like the proverbial mill pond, with just a semblance of breeze to help tone down the heat of a blazing sun. It was Reliance weather and water, and Mr. Blackton chuckled in anticipation of success. "Wait until you hear these engines bark to-day," said he. "They'll use real gas."

The three American boats were ready for the contest a half hour before it was started, being tied up to the officials' boat, the Anahma, belonging to Commodore August Heckscher. The pilots came aboard, set their watches to the chronometer and then awaited the word. The challenging craft, Maple Leaf and Mona, showed on the scene in plenty of time and all settled themselves for the stirring contest which was to follow.

All were in action at the preliminary gun at 1:55, as the race was to start promptly at 2 o'clock, with the exception of the Reliance III. over which Jay Smith and W. Bugh, the helmsman and mechanician, were working in an endeavor to remedy magneto trouble.

Mona First to Get Away.

In the skirmish to get over the line with the gun Montagu Batting on the English boat Mona used the best generalship, coming up to the line at his best speed. For an instant, and in an endeavor not to overdo the thing, he shut off his power when twenty yards from the line, only to be awakened by the boom of the gun which found him two seconds behind in getting over. A dozen seconds later Ankle Deep boomed across, while at 2:00:29 and 2:00:30 Reliance II. and Maple Leaf IV. shot by at their best speed.

All this while and up to the period two minutes and fifty-five seconds after the gun Reliance III. had lain almost inactive Contrary to the rules governing the contest, she had been shunted to a more advantageous starting position in order to anticipate the awakening of her engines. She finally got away and tore up the course in a chase for the leaders.

In the race up the first stretch Ankle Deep overhauled Mona, and before the turn was reached Reliance III. had also run past the English boat. Ankle Deep apparently ran a bit wide, but was the first to get around the mark, being closely followed by the supposed best of the Blackton boats. Before Maple Leaf had made the turn Reliance III. had got away from the post, going at a ripping clip.

Showing her best pace, Reliance II. appeared to be catching Ankle Deep on the outer leg of the course, and it was expected that before the second stake had been reached that Reliance II. would show in front. The Mankowski boat was running very fast, however, and withstood the efforts of her teammate to overhaul her. It was nip and tuck around the turn at Lloyd's Neck and down the straight on the opposite side of the course.

Down the back stretch Ankle Deep and Reliance II. raced a length apart, with the first named plunging because of the wash occasioned by the proximity of the Blackton boat. Maple Leaf tore along at a uniform pace, but was gradually set back by the tremendous speed of the leading craft. Around the Beaux Arts turn Ankle Deep and Reliance II. were almost on even terms, but upon being straightened out for the run home of the first lap the latter got by and beat Ankle Deep to the line by two seconds amid the roar of the flotilla.

Reliance II.'s Record Lap.

Reliance II. had traveled the first round in 11 minutes and 17 seconds, an average speed of 46 miles an hour, and the fastest ever accomplished by a motor boat in competition. She was humming along with every cylinder working faultlessly. Ankle Deep was only hitting the high spots and was going in her kindliest style.

Thirty-two seconds afterward the Maple Leaf followed the American boats with scarcely a murmur, her Royal Yacht Squadron blue ensign standing out in bold relief. All these boats were well on their way to the turn at the top for the second time when Reliance II. and Mona were making the Beaux Arts turn. Reliance III. led Ankle Deep around the mark into the outer leg.

Across this part of the course Ankle Deep ploughed in an endeavor to head Reliance II., but no appreciable impression was made. At this stage Maple Leaf was over a quarter of a mile to the rear of the leaders. In racing around the outer stake Ankle Deep took the premier position when Reliance II. stopped momentarily, but long enough to have the Mankowski boat open up a gap of an eighth of a mile. Reliance II. got started again before Maple Leaf reached her and still led the English boat by about 220 yards.

This was the order of the leaders past the finish of the second lap in which Mankowski came through with all power on leading Reliance II. by a quarter of a mile. Ankle Deep came in for a great send-off as she slipped by the line at 2:23:32, 26 seconds ahead of Reliance II. Maple Leaf was just 49 seconds to the rear of the leading American boat.

In the race to the outer turn for the third time Ankle Deep held her own with Maple Leaf, but Reliance II. had lost eighteen seconds in the run up the stretch, finally stopping before the turn was reached. Ankle Deep raced across the outer leg, throwing spray fifteen feet high and showed no diminution of pace.

So fast was her pace that when she reached a given point in the backstretch it developed that she had gained nine more seconds on her English rival and was exactly one minute in the van.

Mona Gives Up the Race.

Mona went past the officials' boat at about this time, and apparently had burned out a bearing, as she was on fire, caused by the breaking of an oil pipe, which allowed the liquid to run down to the bottom of the boat. She finally gave up the race half a mile up the course from the starting line.

Traveling with a uniformity which was the most wonderful thing ever seen in motor racing circles Ankle Deep slipped by for her third lap, both engines working harmoniously. She had tacked on eight more seconds to her lead over Maple Leaf, and the American adherents were congratulating themselves at this stage because of the three-quarters of a mile advantage she had over the more feared of the English boats.

With her helmsman showing absolutely no concern, Ankle Deep continued on her journey, and was easily increasing her advantage over Maple Leaf. The run around the outer leg was made with no decrease of speed, and she got into the side straight, with the sweets of victory almost being tasted by Mankowski, when a shout went up that she had stopped. This was quickly confirmed, when it was seen that she was gyrating and the Maple Leaf gaining on her speedily.

The latter soon gave the unfortunate Ankle Deep her wash, and continued on to victory and one year's possession of the trophy by the English, her time being 48 minutes, 16 seconds elapsed, the fastest ever recorded. The deduction of the 30 seconds she lost at the start shows an actual performance of 47:46. Reliance III. came through three minutes and a half after the winner, having been outpaced by her in every round, and being actually a minute and five seconds slower.

Reliance II. Blows Out Cylinders.

The mishap to Reliance II. resulted in the blowing out of two of her cylinders. That Maple Leaf did not do even better was said to have been caused by the fact that she had a four-inch sheathing of boards over her rudder which had been damaged early in the series of races, and which was said to have occasioned the most careful manipulation. Mankowski came over to the committee boat after the race and congratulated the English representatives, and showed himself a good loser despite the hardest of hard luck, as it was termed by Americans and English alike.

Later in the afternoon a ten-mile race was held with the Chin Chin, driven by Philip Melville, a winner over Mona, an American boat, Frank McCormick, helmsman; Den, with Mrs. Joseph Hoadley at the wheel, and Elco, driven by Miss Florence Riley. This was over a ten-mile distance in laps of two and a half miles each. Chin Chin subsequently beat Adventi in a race of one round.

A fine field is expected to turn out for the mile trial, which takes place on Huntington Harbor this afternoon. Commodore Blackton announced that he would have out both of the Reliances, and anticipates the making of a new record, displacing 1 minute and 7 seconds, which is now the mark.

HISTORY OF THE RACE.

Trophy Returns to England After an Absence of Five Years.

The British International Motor Boat Trophy, or the Harmsworth Cup, was presented in 1902 to the Royal Motor Yacht Club as a perpetual trophy by Lord Northcliffe, and nine races have been contested since that time. The first race was held July 11, 1903. S. F. Edge's Napier Minor was the victor. The event was held near Cork, Ireland. The second race for the cup took place at Ryde, on the Solent, July 30, 1904, and, to the disappointment of all who expected to see phenomenal speed, the race proved a series of breakdowns and mishaps. The Napier Minor, winner of the 1903 event, again captured the cup, although it was by no means the fastest boat in the race. This year for the first time an American representative took part in the contest. This was the Challenger, which made the best time in the race, but perhaps caused Challenger's defeat.

The third race took place Sept. 11, 1905, at Arcachon, France, and proved to be a walk-over for England, as the United States entry, Dixie and Challenger, were withdrawn. The Napier II. was the winning boat. Because of lack of entries the race for the trophy in 1906 became a local affair. It was expected that the Dixie would participate, but her owner preferred to keep her home and enter her in the important races in America. The Yarrow-Napier covered the course in the fastest time and the cup technically remained in England.

For the 1907 race the Dixie went over to England to capture the cup and was successful. The race was held at Southampton Aug. 2 with the Daimler I. and Daimler II., both owned by Lord Howard de Walden. The Dixie covered the course in 1:15:44 3-5, showing an average speed of 31.8 statute miles an hour. Dixie was three-quarters of a mile ahead of her nearest competitor at the finish.

On Aug. 3, 1908, took place the greatest motor boat race the world has thus far known, when Dixie II. defended the trophy. Dixie II. defeated the English boats, Wolseley-Siddeley and Daimler I., by a good margin in each race. In a trial race on the following day Dixie II. established a world's record of 36.049 miles per hour, (for her size.)

The Royal Motor Yacht Club sent a challenge in 1909, but this was subsequently withdrawn, as no new boats had been built in England, but in the following year the races were again held on Long Island Sound, and Dixie II. defended the cup. The three boats sent over were Pioneer, Zigorella, and Maple Leaf III., the latter, however, was unable to start. Dixie II. won from start to finish and averaged a speed for the entire course of 30.15 nautical, or 34.7 statute miles an hour.

The American boats again showed their superiority over their foreign contestants, the Dixie II. winning the race by 59 seconds. The English boat, Pioneer, was second. The race was held at Huntington, L. I.

With Maple Leaf IV.'s victory yesterday the trophy returns to England after remaining in the United States for five years.

POWER OVERSTRETCHED.

It seems to be the opinion of Senator Jonathan Bourne, Chairman of the Senate Committee of Post Offices and Post Roads; of the other members of that committee, of Congress, and of the President of the United States, that this is a Government of unlimited powers. Accordingly, the act making appropriations for the service of the Post Office Department for the current fiscal year contains an amendment inserted by the Senate Committee providing that newspapers must twice a year file with the Post Office Department a list containing the names of their editors, publishers, owners, or the owners of the shares of their capital stock, and of "known bondholders, mortgagees, or other security holders," together with a statement of their circulation. Furthermore, the newspapers must twice a year publish this statement in their own columns. What will happen if newspapers refuse to comply with this enactment? The penalty is that they "shall be denied the privileges of the mails."

By what authority, other than this act, would the Postmaster General proceed to exclude from the mails newspapers refusing to file or publish these statements? It is the business of the Postmaster General to make provision for the transportation of the mails. Is the ownership or is the circulation of a newspaper any concern of his or of the department? How are those matters related to the business of carrying the mails? Would not the Postmaster General run considerable risk in attempting to exclude from the mails newspapers failing to publish these statements? Lotteries are forbidden in this country, the transportation of lottery tickets from one State to another is forbidden; newspapers publishing lottery advertisements may be excluded from the mails; newspapers containing articles of an immoral nature, unfit for publication, may be excluded from the mails. But can a newspaper which offends in none of these particulars be shut out? The law may draw the line against articles having no innocent use, like lottery tickets, or like absinthe, the importation of which is forbidden. Can it draw the line against newspapers, which have come to be considered a necessary of life—newspapers wholly unobjectionable in the character of their contents, for the sole reason that they decline to publish matter the insertion of which is ordered by a statute of exceedingly doubtful constitutionality?

The freedom of the press is guaranteed and protected by the First Amendment to the Constitution, which declares that Congress shall make no law "abridging the freedom of speech or of the press." If Congress should pass a law forbidding the newspapers, under pain of exclusion from the mails, to publish anything about Senator Jonathan Bourne's efforts to establish amicable relations between the Standard Oil Company and the Roosevelt Administration, or concerning the charge that Senator Warren had been guilty of fencing in public lands for private use, the freedom of the press would be invaded, the Constitution would be violated, and nobody would pretend that the Supreme Court would hold such an act to be constitutional. Is it consistent with the guaranteed freedom of the press that Congress should order, not the omission, but the publication of certain articles or statements? What is the difference? But if it be held that the Post Office Department may exclude from the mails newspapers refusing to publish circulation statements and a list of their owners, then is there any detail of private business as to which Congress may not decree publicity? Where is the line to be drawn?

This provision of the Post Office Appropriation bill is not only very silly, very foolish, and altogether unnecessary, but it represents an extreme stretching of the powers of the Federal Government. It is exceedingly doubtful whether any such power exists, or whether the constitutionality of this provision of the law can be sustained. This amendment to the Appropriation act imposes a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $500 upon any editor or publisher who prints matter for pay or any other valuable consideration unless the matter is plainly marked "advertisement." Conviction is to be had "in any court having jurisdiction"—a Federal court, naturally. But what have the Federal courts to do with the business of a newspaper carried on within a State? It may be said that valuable consideration is received for every news article published in a newspaper. News helps circulation. Is that to be punished, upon conviction, by a fine? No finer example of "jay" legislation was afforded by the late unlamented session of our Congress. Compliance with this law would be chiefly embarrassing, not to the newspapers of the great cities, at which it was particularly aimed, but to the little newspapers in the districts of the Congressmen who voted for it. The attempts of the Postmaster General to enforce this extraordinary legislation will be awaited with interest.

WHAT DOES DR. WILEY MEAN?

Mr. Roosevelt can take no credit for the enactment of the Federal pure food law. Dr. Wiley says so. Far from favoring it, according to The Times's Washington correspondent yesterday, the ex-Chief Chemist asserts that Mr. Roosevelt "urged upon "Messrs. Heyburn and Mann the "withdrawal of the Pure Food bill"; and the Chairmen of the House and Senate committees in charge of the measure persisted in defiance of the man in the White House.

If what Dr. Wiley says is true, it amounts to a scandal. President Roosevelt has posed before the public, both at the time the act was passed and ever since, as its savior from adulterated and deleterious foods. True, he appointed the Remsen Board of Consulting Scientific Experts, clearly against the letter and spirit of the act, to override the decisions of the Bureau of Chemistry. He consented to the hamstringing of Dr. Wiley by the Board of Food and Drug Inspection, also illegally constituted and dominated by the obstructive McCabe. And he justified the manufacturers of saccharine before it was finally ruled that they were adulterating foods with a harmful substance. Yet the people supposed that he was trying to safeguard their interests.

Now Dr. Wiley says Mr. Roosevelt was all the while secretly opposed to the act that he signed. Dr. Wiley should explain his statement fully, in justice both to the Progressive chieftain and to the public.

THE WILSON WOMEN.

The campaign argument sent out by the Woman's National Wilson and Marshall Organization is, so far as we have seen it, sensible, candid, and of practical value. It is not tainted with special pleading; it is not weakened by excessive emphasis; it is not needlessly hortatory. It is distinctly more sane and more likely to influence the minds of reasonable people than a good deal of the stuff sent out by the men of either party.

Two classes are addressed, the women with votes and those who, without votes, and perhaps not wishing them, may influence their families and their friends. For these the campaigners provide two general kinds of arguments, one referring to the tariff and its effect upon the cost of living and one to the work that Dr. Wilson has done, or helped to do, as Governor of New Jersey for the protection of the rights of women and for the promotion of their legitimate interests. It can hardly be denied by the most convinced opponents of women's "interference" in politics that these are matters that "come home to the bosoms and the business" of women as well as of men, and even more closely and more persistently. For the great mass of married women, for all except a class relatively very small, the cost of living is a matter of intimate, and often of anxious, personal concern. It is well that they should study carefully the effect of the tariff on the cost of living and the policy of parties with reference to the tariff. Since it is a matter that affects them directly, it is their right and their duty to try to understand it, and it is the right and duty of those who reach a definite conviction regarding it to act upon it, by influence if they have not votes, and by both if they have votes.

The review of Gov. Wilson's action as to laws "of special interest to women and children" embraces matter of like interest and is fairly and reasonably presented. There are some thirty of these laws, which is a large number for the less than two years in which Mr. Wilson has been Governor. Some of them are direct legislation; some are for indirect regulation; some simply provide for careful study of subjects proper for legislation. Among them are a law limiting the employment of women to sixty hours a week, one for a woman's reformatory, another providing a standard in trained nursing, and one requiring matrons in jails. This legislation is mostly novel in New Jersey, and it is undoubtedly due to the influence of Gov. Wilson, to his personal effort, and to his remarkable talent for arousing interest in able men and working with them that his State is thus brought into the rank of the more advanced States of the Union. This is true also of much of the beneficent legislation relating to health, to the protection of children, and to the promotion of the interests of the working classes.

Gov. Wilson would be the first to acknowledge that the matters just referred to do not come directly within the scope of the Federal Government, for the Chief Office of which he is a candidate. He would be the last to seek support by promises regarding them which he could not carry out. But it is not so much what he has done as the spirit in which he has done it and the methods he has used to accomplish his aims that may properly influence the action of women—and of men, too—as to his candidacy. His spirit and his methods have been those of a careful, conscientious, and practical statesman. The Woman's Organization calls attention, for example, to his appointments on commissions of great importance devoted to investigation and study as well as to administration. They have been of the highest character and made absolutely without regard to politics or to any consideration other than fitness. When the Governor wanted an expert for Commissioner of Education he took Dr. Calvin Kendall, formerly Superintendent of Schools in Indianapolis. When he wanted a Commissioner of Charities and Correction he took Joseph Bowers, whose excellent work has in part been done in the New York House of Refuge for Boys. For the State institutions he made like selections, many of them women. It will be noted that he did not hesitate to ignore silly State pride—or greed—and take the best where he could find them.

Here is basis for inference as to Gov. Wilson's fitness for the Presidential office. Working for like aims, in like spirit, and with the same methods, he is likely to work as well in the larger office as in the smaller. That is a fact which the women of the land may well consider.

OHIO.

The vote on Ohio's new Constitution resulted in the defeat of woman suffrage, but in the carrying of such highly questionable amendments as that of the minimum wage and the initiative and referendum. Ohio could not have done worse if the women had voted.

In the long forward look universal woman suffrage is to be deplored. The suffragists themselves prove it, involuntarily, by their argument that ignorant and vicious men may vote, while the suffrage is denied to educated women. That means that they believe in a restricted suffrage. Yet in the effort to get votes for themselves they seek to place the ballot in the hands of the mass of uneducated women, no better than the unworthy men who now have the ballot. But the extension of the suffrage to include all classes of both sexes could not work such harm to Ohio as was wrought by the adoption on Tuesday of the amendments for a minimum wage, for duplicated taxes, and government by the mob. The principle of universal male suffrage was not vindicated in Ohio.

PROHIBITION MILITANT.

Mr. Clinton N. Howard of Rochester is doing his best to get the Prohibition Party in line with the Progressive. He has not his match in either of the old parties. If fervor, eloquence, and the gift of poetry are to count in this campaign he will put the cause of total abstinence from the cup that stings side by side with the cause of the universal uplift and the rule of the ideal. In notifying Mr. Aaron S. Watkins at Ada, Ohio, yesterday, that he had been nominated for the Vice Presidency, a fact which had previously escaped the notice of large numbers of Mr. Watkins's fellow-citizens, Mr. Howard eloquently remarked:

> Taft is a milk-fed elephant with a broken tusk and a Rubber Trust trunk; Wilson is a lion's whelp, clean of tooth and claw, led by an ass; Roosevelt is a "great and mighty wind," which raises the dust and creates political astigmatism among the people.

The cogency of this political argument has not been excelled even in the Progressive platform. The argument would be flawless if the remark about the lion's whelp led by an ass did not unfortunately recall the famous poem about the lady of Niger who rode on the tiger. Mr. Howard must be familiar with that poem, too, as he is a poet himself. His "Battle Hymn" was sung with enthusiasm at the notification of Mr. Watkins. We append two stirring stanzas:

Once again in old Columbia see the feast of rum is spread,
For the old Belshazzar bosses have arisen
 from the dead,
And the Nation's holy vessels long in civic temples stored
 blaspheme the holy Lord.

There are two old whisky parties who are drunk with lust for power,
Another Roose-velt one is born with beer and whisky dower,
And the wet vote is divided, heed, oh heed
 the mighty call,
The hand of God is writing, "Thou art weighed and doomed to fall."

That is the real stuff. The wet vote is, indeed, divided, and the feast of rum is spread, and there are bungholes, as Mr. Howard remarks, in the craft of the old parties. The only hope is to vote down rum, and if we could, at this writing, recall the name of the gentleman who is running for President on the ticket with the esteemed Watkins we would say a good word for him.

DEATHS IN THE STREETS.

The records of fatalities from street traffic during August make gruesome reading. Automobiles killed 18 persons, as against 7 killed in August last year; horse-drawn vehicles ran over and killed 17, as compared with 13 last year; and a disaster in Queens brought the total of deaths from trolleys to 13, as against 4 in August, 1911. There were 48 deaths in the streets, just twice the number during the corresponding period a year ago.

Secretary Cornell of the National Highways Protective Society, which has gathered these statistics, declares that the fatalities could unquestionably be checked and reduced by increasing the number of motor cycle men. "The streets of this city are becoming as perilous as a battlefield," Coroner's Clerk Le Brun says. There were 376 deaths in 1910 and 423 in 1911, and, in 1912, the number will be alarmingly increased. The Aldermen's Committee on Regulation of Motor Cars agrees with Secretary Cornell that policemen with bicycles and motor cycles are needed to pursue reckless drivers and bring them sharply to account. Cannot Commissioner Waldo spare more men for this needed service?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Free Lectures by Some Great Men.

Appreciation of the importance which attaches to the Eighth International Congress of Applied Chemistry, beginning here on Friday, probably does not lack, for it is well known that the delegates are the most eminent representatives from many countries of a profession whose members share with engineers alone the honor of having had more than any one else to do with those practical applications of science that have characterized the last half century.

Less commonly understood is it that while many of the papers to be read will be of a nature too technical for comprehension outside of the professional circle, many others will have what is called "popular interest," and that a special effort has been made in the management of the congress to emphasize this feature of it. Of particular appeal to the general public will be the four free lectures to be delivered in the Great Hall of the College of the City of New York, 138th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, the first on Sept. 6, and the others on Sept. 9, 10, and 11, each to begin at 4 o'clock. These will provide opportunities for all who choose to hear simple expositions of the latest advances in chemistry, made by recognized leaders in four of its branches.

Prof. Gabriel Bertrand of Paris will explain the part played in biological changes by minute quantities of the matter called dead or inert, and show how such substances may cause life to begin or end, and how the continuance of the vital processes are dependent upon their presence.

Dr. Carl Duisberg of Elberfeld, Germany, an official in one of the world's greatest chemical manufacturing companies, will exhibit and discuss the many specimens which he has brought over with him to illustrate recent achievements in technical chemistry. No such display has ever before been made to Americans, and it includes an automobile tire made of synthetic rubber that has traveled in service over 10,000 kilometers—several times as far as the distance guaranteed by any tire manufacturer using natural rubber.

Prof. William H. Parkin of Manchester, England, son and brilliant successor in scientific research of the man who discovered mauve and founded the enormous coal tar industries of to-day, will speak on the permanent fireproofing of cotton and the possibility of making non-combustible draperies.

The fourth lecture will be by Prof. Giacomo Ciamician of Bologna, Italy, who comes from the oldest real university in the world to tell us about the photochemistry of the future and of the deductions to be drawn from the fact that actinic rays build up the materials of plants.

Preparing for a Big Experiment.

One of the bills recently signed by President Taft went through Congress without attracting much attention in or out of that body. It is, however, of no small importance and interest, because it opens the way for making an agricultural experiment on a scale larger than was ever before attempted in any country.

The bill authorizes the setting aside for five years of twelve square miles of land in order that a complete test may be made of that much-discussed product of Luther Burbank's skill, the spineless cactus. He is to select the land he wants in California, New Mexico, Arizona, and Nevada, but it must be "unappropriated, "non-mineral, non-irrigible, non-timbered, "and unreserved"—in other words, parts of the public domain for which no present use is known and none is expected, unless he can find one. If, at the end of the five years, he has growing on this land at least 100,000 cacti edible by cattle—and can then convince the Secretary of the Interior that the experiment has been a success—then the land will belong to Mr. Burbank? By no means. He will merely be allowed to buy for $1.25 an acre such tracts of it as the Government owns outright, and for $2.50 an acre those in a railway grant.

The bill, therefore, need not be denounced, in spite of its granting special privileges to an individual, since it amounts to little more than letting Mr. Burbank, at his own or private expense, see if he can confer upon the country the huge favor of vastly enlarging its cattle-producing regions. Twelve sections is a negligible fraction of the permanently arid land in the West and Southwest, and nobody will begrudge him his option on them, for that is all he gets.

The food value of the cactus plant has long been known, as well as its capacity for growing where almost nothing else will, but there exists rather grave doubt as to whether Mr. Burbank's high expectations in regard to his spineless variant will ever be realized. Of course, without any water at all it cannot live, and with very little its growth is very slow. The cactus does not live in deserts from preference, but simply because it has been driven to them by plants more aggressive and more highly developed. It has thorns because without them it could not live anywhere, and the spineless cactus, being, from its own point of view, a reversion, not an advance, will have to be protected by its cultivators from its many enemies. And that means, perhaps, that it cannot be cheaply grown.

Why Cubans Dislike Us.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to give my explanation of the facts which make the Cubans, and many other Latin Americans, hate you in return for favors you have done them. The Cubans feel grateful for the lot of good you have done them. But what irritates them, what makes them hate you, what prompts them even to insult your Consuls, is the fact that you humiliate them, you make them feel that they are under heavy obligations to you. You are always bragging about the favors you did or did them.

Any American that goes to a South American country has the silly and stupid idea that he can do as he pleases and that he is better than the people around him. He does not take any pains to keep his idea to himself, either, therefore he soon is disliked and even hated. You should not blame anybody for this hatred but yourselves. Do not mention too often the Monroe Doctrine; say less about the "favors" you did them; do not interfere with their affairs, and you will soon notice a great change. J. L. ARMAS.

CHARM OF FRENCH LABEL.

Reader Deprecates American Deference in Perfumery Matters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In last Sunday's Times there appeared a special cable from Paris which is below the standard of accuracy that obtains in the columns of your esteemed journal. There is no need to go to France or any other country of production for reliable information on perfumery matters, for there are no statements regarding crop conditions, &c., that are not promptly known by the American importers of raw perfume materials and the American perfume manufacturers. Exactly the same materials come to this country as are found in the wholesale markets of France and of every other country where perfume is manufactured in any quantity, but to the American reader, especially the American woman, there seems to be some indefinable charm about anything with a French label.

The cold and wet Summer that has prevailed all over Europe has had practically nothing to do with the flower crops, for the reason that violets are gathered in February, and all the remaining flowers, excepting jasmine and tuberose, are gathered and distilled by the early part of July. Many of the crops have been meagre, because of unfavorable weather conditions.

Otto of Rose, a Bulgarian production, has had an abnormally small yield, with the result that the price all over the world is $12 to $16 an ounce, depending on brand and quality. This price is about 50 per cent. higher than last year, but as this product is liable to very violent fluctuations, there is no special significance attached to the rise, for next year the price may drop to $5 an ounce.

Violet and other essences are not higher than last year, and the highest quotation in this market for essence of violet, for instance, is $2,500 a kilogram, as against $20,000, the figure that you quote. Most of the flower essences run about $130 a kilogram.

Oil of geranium, used principally for perfuming toilet soaps, is considerably higher, and this factor has led to the increased consumption of artificial geranium. The same is the case with lavender and bergamot, though to a lesser extent.

Only two or three unimportant artificial perfumes are made from coal tar. There is a general belief that coal tar figures very prominently in the manufacture of artificial perfumes, but that idea is very erroneous, most of these products being constituents of essential oils, or derivatives of same, as, for instance, artificial violet which is made by a certain treatment of citral, which is the principal constituent of lemon grass oil.

It is to be regretted that Americans have not been made acquainted with the fact that American perfumes are made from exactly the same materials as are used by French firms, the only difference being in the fact that the French make an art of commerce, while too many Americans make a commerce of art.

POLITICAL DRUG VENDORS.

Does The Outlook Free Its Columns of Notices of Their Panaceas?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the last number of The Outlook, Mr. Roosevelt's mouthpiece, appears an article under the above heading. It speaks of the bill lately passed by both houses, which "adds to the Pure Food and Drug act the further prohibition of the use upon the package containing a drug of any 'false and fraudulent statement' as to 'any curative or therapeutic effect' of the drug." * * * The Outlook makes the following comment:

> There is no public need that any claim as to curative powers should appear on any medical preparation, and there is every reason, from the point of view of the public welfare, that no such claim should appear. The time will come when every such claim on a label will be illegal.

So much for pure drugs. In the advertising section of the same magazine is a page devoted to the Progressive Party, the dispenser of political pure drugs for the suffering masses. The label reads:

> To put through this splendid programme will bring about a new era in our National life, insure prosperity for all, prevent industrial unrest, and give to the people their rights.

How can Mr. Roosevelt honestly promise to "insure prosperity for all"? That would be anticipating the millennium. Does The Outlook think the time will ever come when such a label will be illegal?

Would Pension Ex-Presidents.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In order to prevent the scandalous descent into the arena of dirty politics of our Presidents and ex-Presidents, where well-earned and splendid reputations have been so grossly soiled, would it not be well to add to a limited Presidency, (of, say, seven years,) a pension for life of half salary, with requirement not to engage in any profession or business?

This would provide a dignified retirement, such as all nations should have for their ex-rulers, and still allow us the benefit of their experience and wisdom, with the voice and pen of those whose hearts should beat unselfishly, not for party or class, but for the common weal. WILLIAM E. GUY.

Would He Be Faithful?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My! but Miss Carpenter, in her retort on Mrs. Atherton's "misconception" of Roosevelt's relationship to suffrage, is severe. However, Miss Carpenter doesn't disclose the number of her insurance policy, nor its terms and conditions, on the great assurer's faithfulness to the cause.

Perhaps Mrs. Atherton, being a Mrs., is justified in what I take to be her expectation that it will be "Back to the nursery for yours!" when the Bull Moose has attained his object. J. W. E.

Postage to Germany.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is disquieting to know that there are even chances that our friends in Germany will be fined for getting letters from us here in America, when we were under the impression that we had paid postage in full. The only remedy you offer is to pay 5 cents. But why should we add 150 per cent. to the legitimate price? Is there no other remedy? We have learned to lean on you for so many things, can you not help us in this matter?

Street Car Route Numbers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I note that New York is still gayly trailing along some miles in the rear of the procession of the smaller cities. On visiting San Diego, Cal., some two years ago I noticed that all the street cars bore route numbers. The adoption of a similar plan in New York City, as advocated by The Times, would do much to reduce the confusion of street car passengers. JOSEPH KERR.

Astor Will Goes Over.

Owing to a delay of a purely routine sort the will of the late Col. John Jacob Astor was not re-probated yesterday, as scheduled by Surrogate Fowler.

Egerton Winthrop, Jr., who was made special guardian of John Jacob Astor last week, arrived in town only a few days before his appointment, and, it is said, did not have time to prepare the necessary papers for the re-probate yesterday. It was iterated, however, that the delay was merely perfunctory, and that the will would be admitted anew within a few days.

The technical move of readmitting the will of Col. John Jacob Astor was made necessary by law through the birth of his posthumous son.

THE NARCOTIC WEED.

Its Potent Influence in This Country from 1612 to 1911.

In his "Farewell to Tobacco," Charles Lamb, who was very much of a philosopher, said what many other sinners not quite so wicked, perhaps, as he, would doubtless say if they were forced to choose—

"For thy sake, Tobacco, I Would do anything but die."

Glorious weed! Embalmed in verse by Byron, source of revenue, emblem of peace, solace of King and peasant alike, chum in solitude, comfort in the madding crowd, text of moralist and general agent of civilization, it holds high place among the blessings Nature has bestowed upon the children of men. Adam in the garden, royalty in palace, monk in cloister, Indian in wigwam, Irish, Italian, Turk, and German, the whole world, and particularly the shareholders of the American Tobacco Trust, after as well as before the dissolution, have rejoiced in it whether taken in pipe or paper, whether used in poultice for wounds and bruises or for purposes of mastication. Men have used it always, dreaming dreams, and, holding that they own the earth and the fullness thereof, have denied it to the other half, only to be discovered at last for the selfish creatures that they are.

It was reported the other day, and vouched for by the clerks or managers of two of the hotels in Kansas City and Chicago, that the women of the higher circles in those delightfully progressive communities have fallen into the cigar habit, that they have been "hitting the pipe," as it were, for a long time, that they affect the "two-for-a-quarter" style and want them strong, and are "smoking them just the way they began smoking cigarettes." Of course, there is no truth in the report; but why shouldn't they it they wish? It is to be hoped that they will not smoke in public dining rooms or in crowded cars—such vulgarity ought to be left to the men who are equal to it—equal to anything that will make them unpleasant to their kind. If there should be no monopoly in the manufacture of tobacco, why should there be a monopoly in its use? If tobacco is good for men, why should it not be equally good for women, or better, even as women are more highly sensitized than men, and in these advanced and advancing times require the narcotic influence of the blessed weed more than men? "That's what."

Probably "Circular 33," just issued by the Department of Agriculture, showing the "Tobacco Crop of the United States—1612-1911," is the beginning of a new demand for "equal rights for all" in this respect. Tobacco certainly has the right to be heard. It is one of the oldest and most respected of our field industries. It was used in Mexico when Cortez was benevolently assimilating the Aztecs, it was employed in the ceremonial rites of the F. F. V.'s when Capt. John Smith was building Jamestown, and to this day the red clay pipe, "the Powhatan," is the delight of real smokers. In 1612 the weed grew in John Rolfe's garden. In 1618 the reported yield in the Colonies was 20,000 pounds, worth in the currency of the day 54.75 cents the pound. Twenty-one years later the crop had increased to 1,500,000 pounds, worth 6.08 cents the pound, and in the first year of the next century, 1700, the crop had further increased to 28,858,666 pounds. Its value is not given, but in the preceding year the price was only 3.15 cents the pound. Things went from bad to worse, with an occasional upward trend, until in 1730 when the crop of 36,000,000 pounds was sold at the average price of 1.52 cents. The farmers kept on planting, however, always hoping for better times, and against prices which ranged during the period from 1730 to 1771 from 1.52 cents to 4.56 cents. In 1770 the crop reached the surprising volume of 107,391,329 pounds. Six years later, in 1776, the year when the Colonies broke away from the Crown, the crop was only 2,440,947 pounds. This was the smallest crop produced in any year of the century.

The largest crop ever grown in the United States was 1,103,415,000 pounds in 1910, and it sold for $104,302,856, or 9.9 cents the pound. During the war period in this country the crop was greatly reduced in volume and the prices ranged from 14.9 cents in 1864, the highest price paid in the sixties, to 9.6 cents in 1866, the year following the close of hostilities.

In 1899, the year after the Spanish-American war, the price was 6.6 cents the pound.

The largest yield to the acre was made in 1911, when an average of 894 pounds was produced.

The statistics are not complete for long periods of time, and particularly during the years of crisis. They show, however, that tobacco is essentially a peace crop. During the war on the picket lines in Virginia it was exchanged between the men of the two armies, who would rather smoke than shoot, and there, as always, it brought out the best that was in the souls of men.

There has been much complaint at the course of the market, and in Kentucky the Night Riders have sought to better prices by destroying the crops and expending their fury on the helpless and blameless victims of their hate; yet in the hundred years from 1810 to 1910 the farm value of the staple exceeded only in fourteen years the price paid for the enormous crop produced in 1910. It was claimed that the trust was crushing the life out of the growers; but the figures show that the planters got only 1.52 cents the pound for their tobacco—36,000,000 pounds—in 1790, and there was no Tobacco Trust then. One hundred and twenty years later the trust paid within a fraction of 10 cents the pound for a crop that exceeded the crop of 1790 by more than a billion pounds—nine times the price for thirty-six times the crop!

As matter of fact, the trust made a market for tobacco by improving its manufacture and extending the demand. Of course the trust was a very wicked and unlawful thing and was operated in violation of law—the Supreme Court has said so; but it paid fair prices for the raw material, judging by the available statistics of three hundred years, and made better goods than were ever offered. The trust is dead, but its good works live after it. All consumers say that American tobacco, except for a little grown in a particular district in Cuba, is the best tobacco grown, especially as it is manufactured in the United States.

Profits Here and in France.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The following figures will illustrate the American and French ways of finance:

The Chatillon & Commentry Steel Corporation of France has a capital of $3,700,000. Its net profit for last year amounted to $2,300,000.

The Republic Iron and Steel Company has a capital of $52,0000,000. Its net profit for the year 1910-11 amounted to $2,900,000.

In this country water seems to be a valuable asset. The United States is supposed to be a country run by the people and for the people. What would it be otherwise?

CONCRETE DAMS SHOULD BE SAFE

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Times comments upon the failure on Aug. 8 of the movable dam, known as Dam No. 26, on the Ohio River, near Gallipolis, just after its completion under the general direction of the Chief of Engineers, U. S. A. In this comment the failure of the Gallipolis dam and that at Austin, Penn., were coupled as having been constructed of "concrete, a substance regarding which, according to some—especially those interested in making walls in the old-fashioned way out of stone and brick—not quite everything is yet known even by the most up-to-date engineers."

Such expressions are to say the least fundamentally misleading. Well-informed engineers know that the failure of the Austin dam was due to defective foundations and possibly insufficient section, and that the character of the material of which it was built had nothing whatever to do with the failure. Dam No. 26 on the Ohio River consists of what is known as three "bear trap" piers and a Chanoine weir, a structure built in connection with a lock at the same point for the purpose of making the river navigable. The failure took place in connection with the foundations of the movable wickets of the weir. A complete investigation and report have not yet been made, but no evidence has yet been discovered showing that the failure was in any way due to the concrete. The bedrock, however, was apparently of indifferent quality, and it will probably be found that indifferent bedrock yielded and allowed the movable wickets and the concrete mass at their bases to move downstream.

It is true that a considerable number of both plain and reinforced concrete structures have failed during the past few years, and it is equally true that other masonry structures of both stone and brick have also failed, and perhaps in larger number. In some instances the excellent character of concrete as a building material has prevented failure from being disastrous. About four years ago a high reinforced concrete dam of the water works system of Pittsfield, Mass., had a part of its foundation washed away when the reservoir which it created had been nearly filled. The hole under this dam was large enough to pass freely probably the largest auto truck now in use. Although the reservoir was quickly emptied through this washout, the concrete dam bridged the gap underneath it and remained in place. The hole was properly filled, and the dam is still in use without other repair than a proper foundation, which was omitted in its original construction; it will probably remain in service for all time.

Concrete, both plain and reinforced, is one of the most reliable, durable, and satisfactory structural materials available to engineers at the present time, but, like other structural materials, such as steel and stone and brick masonry, it must be of good quality; the design of the structure in which it is used must be intelligent and competent, and its fabrication and putting in place must be properly done under suitable inspection.

In all these respects it is precisely like any other first-class structural material. Ignorant and unscrupulous builders—sometimes, I regret to say, under incompetent engineers' direction—have erected buildings, bridges, and other structures of badly fabricated concrete composed of poor ingredients, due to insufficient inspection, resulting in deplorable failures. Such experiences, however, are most unfortunately connected with the beginnings of every new field of engineering construction, as the many failures of iron bridges and some iron buildings in this city attest.

Many of the largest masonry dams in this country, such as two of those in the Croton basin and the great Ashokan Dam, about completed under the Board of Water Supply of this city, and many others which might be named, are constructed of concrete, and there is not even the shadow of a particle of evidence to show that they will not endure in every respect for ages. Similar observations can be made in connection with the largest arch bridges which have ever been built in this country or any other, such as those recently completed and now in use at Philadelphia, Penn., and at Spokane, Wash.

Whatever may be the excellence of the masonry of a dam, if its foundations are dangerously defective early failure is assured. But that distinction should be carefully made, otherwise most erroneous impressions may be conveyed concerning one of the best structural materials at the service of the engineer at the present time. W. H. BURR.

BEACH GRABBERS AT CONEY

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Please give opportunity for some of our city and State officials to look on this picture:

The ocean front of the world's finest city—the Coney Island shore—is still left unadorned by a causeway, or "boardwalk," and still held under the heel of the spoiler—the beach grabber—who, like the pig in the trough, is injurious to his own interests as well as his brothers'. Because, if all the grabbers were forced back from the land which belongs to the public and a causeway built along the shore the beach would become such an attraction that the property of these grabbers—the property abutting on the causeway—would quickly double in value.

There are parks in our city which are visited by so few that every look of satisfaction they put on a man's face costs the city a dollar, whereas an ocean front causeway would be visited by so many millions annually that said effects could there be produced at a cost of less than 2 cents per dozen.

The ocean front of little Atlantic City is made a fitting setting for the curling waves of the sea and the rainbow that lives in the spray, but although our city is the richest in the world its ocean front is given up—and without any payment of tax or lease fee—to the cabin of the courtesan and the shack of the Bath House John.

Under the government of Tammany the Turk nobody looked for any improvement, but under a "reform administration" the country expected to see a change. S. N. STEWART.

A VACATION VALEDICTORY.

Farewell to silver-shining sands
 And rolling sapphire seas,
To nights of joyous revelry
 And days of golden ease,
To sails beneath the crescent moon,
 And strolls along the shore
With pretty girls, the pleasures are,
 Alas! for me no more.

Farewell to early morning dips,
 And flirting in the spray
With Venuses in bathing suits
 And caps of colors gay,
To picnics in the leafy shade
 Of hickory-nut or oak;
Vacation time is over now,
 I'm going home; I'm broke.

MINNA IRVING.

OBTAINED DECREE YEAR AGO

She Was Formerly Miss Simons and Her First Marriage Was Long Thought Ideal.

In the presence of a few intimate friends, who acted as witnesses, Mrs. Mary E. Thurston, niece of the late Edward H. Harriman, the financier, was quietly married to William L. Goff yesterday afternoon at Greenwich, Conn.

Mrs. Thurston a year ago obtained a divorce from her first husband, Charles Story Thurston, well-known patent attorney of Boston, at Reno. The divorce created much comment, as it had been believed by friends of the couple that their marriage was an ideal one. The grounds on which the decree was granted were abandonment and failure to support. At the time that it was entered, Mr. Thurston was an invalid at Saranac Lake.

Mrs. Thurston's maiden name was Mary E. Simons. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dewar Simons of this city, her mother being a sister of E. H. Harriman. Her father is a banker associated with the firm of Brown Brothers at 59 Wall Street.

The story of her first marriage has always been more or less difficult of explantation to her friends. During the first three years of her married life she devotedly tended her husband, who was a chronic invalid, even risking infection at one time when he was stricken with a dangerous fever rather than consent to leave his bedside.

Suddenly, about three years before she brought suit for divorce, she left her husband at Liberty, N. Y., where they had made their home, and returned to her parents at Arden. After that time she could never be induced to see her husband again, nor did she ever explain, unless to most intimate friends, the reason for her sudden action.

Members of the Simons family in this city were reticent when approached yesterday for details concerning Mrs. Thurston's new marital venture. They refused to give any details concerning the wedding beyond confirming the report that it had taken place.

MISS EMMA L. SHAFER WEDS.

Married to Samuel Abernathy in Hotel Bretton Hall.

The wedding of Samuel Abernathy, formerly of Belfast, Ireland, and Miss Emma L. Shafer, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Shafer of 54 West Ninety-seventh Street, took place at 8 o'clock last evening in the ballroom of the Hotel Bretton Hall, the Rev. Frederick W. Behnke officiating. The bride wore a white satin gown trimmed with duchess lace, a tulle veil held with orange blossoms, and carried lilies of the valley and white roses.

Mrs. M. E. Stroker, the matron of honor, wore blue charmeuse, and the bridesmaids, who were the bride's sister, Miss Caroline B. Shafer, and Miss B. F. Kuhmichel, were in pink charmeuse and carried pink roses. The flower girl was Miss Mildred Behnke, daughter of the officiating clergyman.

Mr. Abernathy's brother, A. C. Abernathy, was the best man, and the ushers were Hamilton Webb, John Robinson, Norman Tyler, and Thomas Brawders.

There were about ninety guests for the ceremony and reception, and a dinner followed. After spending a month at Lake Placid Mr. and Mrs. Abernathy will live at 45 Pinehurst Avenue, New York.

MISS WOODWARD A BRIDE.

Daughter of Hedley R. Woodward Marries Howard Merritt.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 4.—Miss Maud Alice Woodward, the daughter of Hedley Robert Woodward, Second Vice President of the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York, and Howard Merritt were married to-day at the residence of the bride's parents, 605 Seventh Avenue. The bridegroom is the son of David F. Merritt, a retired capitalist, of this city.

The marriage was performed by the Rev. J. Y. Dobbins, pastor of St. Luke's Church, Long Branch. After the ceremony a breakfast was served, and the couple immediately left on their honeymoon through Canada. They will spend the Winter in West Virginia, where the bridegroom has manufacturing interests.

Miss Bruns Weds G. H. Schaffer, Jr.

The wedding of Miss Edna Bruns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Bruns of this city, to George H. Schaffer, Jr., took place at 6 o'clock last evening at the Hotel Savoy. The Rev. Dr. Churchman officiated. The bride was attired in white satin, and her tulle veil was caught up with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a large muff of orchids and lilies of the valley. Miss Grace Schaffer, sister of the bridegroom, acted as flower girl. William H. Frank, Jr., was best man.

Miss O'Reilly to Wed W. J. Murray.

Mrs. Clara J. O'Reilly of Stanton Avenue, East End, Pittsburgh, Penn., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss C. Josephine O'Reilly, to William J. Murray of Richmond Hill Drive, Richmond Hill, L. I., son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew T. Murray. The wedding will take place in Pittsburgh in the Fall. This is the third engagement in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Murray this year. Miss Gertrude M. Murray will be married to Eugene Pitou of this city in the Fall. Another sister, Mrs. Frank S. Owen, was married last June.

CANALS WOULD CUT PRICES.

Congressman Small Wants Water Competition with Railroads.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 4.—The standardization in depth of all canals along the Atlantic seaboard was advocated by Congressman John H. Small of North Carolina this afternoon at the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Convention. He spoke after the report of Gen. W. H. Bixby, Chief of Engineers, U. S. A., had been read favoring the construction of a twelve-feet deep canal from Norfolk to Beaufort Inlet, N. C., at a cost of $5,000,000.

Mr. Small pointed out the importance of transportation as a factor in the cost of living, and declared that by water borne traffic the present high rates would be cut down. One condition the populous seaboard communities have to face, he said, is that many railroads either by outright purchase or under a community of interest, control the present water lines, which ought to be an aid to cheaper transportation.

The speaker discussed the municipal ownership of water terminals, and said: "No city can expect to use the waterways unless it is wise enough to insist upon proper terminals owned by and administered for the people, equipped with facilities for handling freight in a modern way. Physical connections between these water terminals and the railroads, preferably by belt lines, should be operated either by the municipality or State."

President Taft is to address the convention on Thursday afternoon, and Secretary Nagel, Gov. Foss of Massachusetts, Gov. Pothier of Rhode Island, Gov. Tener of Pennsylvania, and Gov. Mann of Virginia are also down on the programme for speeches. The visit of President Taft will coincide with the observance of the anniversary of the battle of Groton Heights.

FOG MAROONS CARMANIA.

Rebuilt Cunarder Has Been Held Up for Hours Outside the Bar.

The Cunard Liner Carmania, which arrived off Sandy Hook yesterday at 1 P. M., and anchored outside on account of the fog, was detained there all day by the thick weather and had not weighed anchor at midnight.

A peculiar feature of the fog was that it was confined within a radius of a few miles. The harbor was clear down to Quarantine, and at 6 P. M. the lookout at the station could see Coney Island, but outside Sandy Hook and the Ambrose Channel Lightship it was so dense that Capt. Dow of the Carmania and the commanders of other vessels at anchor did not dare to venture to crawl up.

This is the first voyage of the Carmania since she was burned at her dock in Liverpool three months ago, when her saloons and cabins were destroyed. She has been equipped with a gymnasium on the promenade deck, a veranda café, and a dark room for photographers, while the dining saloon has been provided with small tables, the modern Atlantic steamship idea.

The White Star liner Olympic will anchor during the night by the Carmania with 720 first cabin passengers from Southampton, and the Royal Mail steam packet Orotava from Bermuda anchored at midnight with 295 in her first cabin. All three vessels will reach their piers about 8 A. M. to-day if the fog lifts.

BELIEVES SHAW WILL COME.

But Is Not Here Now, Says Mr. Barker's Representative.

A. Toxen Worm, who is to be the New York representative of Granville Barker's company in "Fanny's First Play," said yesterday that he should not be at all surprised if George Bernard Shaw came to America to be present at the first performance of the play here. The cable dispatch in yesterday's TIMES to the effect that Mr. Shaw was believed to be in New York now he thought was rather premature. Granville Barker will not be able to come with the company that is due on the Majestic next week, and it is likely that Mr. Shaw will take his place in watching the opening of the play here.

DR. M'GEE, NOTED GEOLOGIST, DEAD

GAVE BRAIN TO SCIENCE

Self-Educated Scientist Also Bequeathed His Body to Dr. Edward A. Spitzka for Dissection.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Dr. W J McGee, geologist, anthropologist, hydrologist, author, Secretary to the Inland Waterways Commission, and expert in the Agricultural Department, died in the Cosmos Club to-day from a cancerous growth. His illness became acute several weeks ago. He was born on a farm in Dubuque County, Iowa, 59 years ago.

Dr. McGee attended country schools in Iowa for a short time, but his education was chiefly acquired by private study, which he commenced while engaged in farm work when he was between 10 and 20 years old. His self-education and practical work had made him one of the foremost men in geology and kindred sciences. While continuing his country life he studied Latin, higher mathematics, astronomy, law, and surveying, appeared as attorney in courts, and worked at land surveying in 1874-76. He invented and patented a number of agricultural instruments, working at forge and bench from 1877 to 1881. He made a study of geology and archaeology, and from 1877 to 1881 he made a geological and topographical survey of Northeastern Iowa, the most extensive ever executed in America up to that time without National or State aid, covering 17,000 square miles.

After examining and reporting upon the building stones of Iowa for the tenth census Dr. McGee in 1883 became geologist in the United States Geological Survey and was engaged seven years in surveying and mapping 300,000 square miles in the southeastern section of the United States and compiled geological maps of New York and the United States. In 1893 he was appointed ethnologist in charge of the Bureau of American Ethnology, during which he explored Tiburon Island, Gulf of California, where he made a study of a savage tribe never before recorded. He also investigated the Charleston earthquake. In 1903 he resigned from the bureau to become chief of the Department of Anthropology in the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis.

When the Inland Waterways Commission was created in 1907 Dr. McGee was appointed a member by President Roosevelt, and at the same time he was appointed soil expert in the Department of Agriculture. He was later made Secretary of the commission and held that position to the time of his death. He was one of the most effective advocates and promoters of organized effort among scientific men. He was President of the American Anthropological Association, Vice President of the National Geographic Society, Vice President of the Archaeological Institute of America, one of the editors of The National Geographic Magazine, and member of many other societies, and one of the founders of the Geological Society of America and the Columbia Historical Society. He was the author of many important works.

Dr. McGee defined love as a real "disorder of the mind. Nobody is proof against an attack of it. To speak of it as a disarrangement of the faculties," he wrote, "is by no means to describe it in terms too strong." Dr. McGee never had a given name other than the initials "W J" by which he signed his name, and also insisted that he be addressed by those initials without periods after them. He was married in 1888 to Anita Newcomb, a noted physician, daughter of the late Prof. Simon Newcomb of the University of California.

Dr. McGee left a will bequeathing his body and brain for anatomical and scientific study to Dr. Edward Anthony Spitzka, the famous Philadelphia anatomist and neurologist. Immediately after the funeral of Dr. McGee to-morrow morning at the Washington residence of Gifford Pinchot, the body will be taken to Philadelphia and turned over to the Jefferson Medical College, there to await directions from Dr. Spitzka, who has been communicated with at Good Ground, N. Y.

Arrangements for the disposition of the body and brain of Dr McGee in the interest of science were made during the last three months of his life. Through Col. Henry C. Rizer, Chief Clerk of the United States Geological Survey, letters were exchanged for Dr. McGee with Dr. Spitzka arranging for the bequest of Dr. McGee's body and brain to the specialist, also for the bequest to him of the brain of the late Dr. J. W. Powell, former director of the Geological Survey, which had been in Dr. McGee's custody since Dr. Powell's death. Dr. Powell was America's greatest geologist at the time of his death.

The will made by Dr. McGee in June declares:

> Pursuant to an intention fixed in early manhood on learning that a certain State provided by law that medical graduates should have had dissecting room experience and yet made no provision for requisite subjects; conformably with the shocking economic waste represented by the cities of the dead in the long-settled portions of the country; and, in accordance with my custom of devoting my efforts and myself to the public good, I give and bequeath my body for purposes of dissection to any medical college selected by my executor, except that my brain go, with that of the late J. W. Powell, now in my custody, to Dr. E. A. Spitzka of Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, for study and preservation at his discretion.

Dr. Edward Anthony Spitzka has studied the brains of many eminent men and of various scientists, and has probably the best collection of preserved brains in this country.

STACOM'S CO. WON TROPHY.

Captain, Courtmartialed for Substitutions, Won't Discuss Charges.

The court-martial of Capt. William B. Stacom of Company B, Sixty-ninth Infantry, will settle a question, it is believed, which for almost a year has disturbed the peace of the eleven companies of the regiment. Capt. Stacom is charged with having allowed a substitute to appear for another man of his command at a rifle contest of the regiment last year at Blauvelt. The court-martial was begun on Tuesday in the armory, Twenty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue, and will be resumed this evening.

The regiment offers annually a prize known as the Kemp Trophy to the company having the largest percentage in qualification for marksmanship. The trophy is a large bronze statuette of two Roman gladiators engaged in mortal combat. The trophy was awarded in 1911 to Company B.

As early as September, 1911, Capt. Michael J. Dwyer of Company A, which at the time was the holder of the Kemp Trophy, had two of his men, Sergts. Joseph M. Tierney and Joseph Spillane, execute affidavits to the effect that they knew certain substitutions had been made in Company B at the rifle range.

Capt. Stacom said yesterday he had no statement to make for the present. His friends declared that the charge against him would easily be disproved. Capt. Stacom, it was said, was being persecuted by former disgruntled members of the regiment whom he had offended.

WILLIAM MAILLY DEAD.

Ex-Secretary of National Socialist Party, Editor, and Dramatic Critic.

William Mailly, journalist, editor, and one time Secretary of the National Socialist Party, died at his home, 361 West Twenty-seventh Street, yesterday, after a long illness. Mr. Mailly was born in Pittsburgh, Penn., in 1871, but at the age of 3 years his parents took him to Scotland and he remained there till the age of 17. After returning to this country he worked as a coal miner in the South, where he became interested in the labor movement. From mining he entered journalism, becoming associate editor of The Birmingham (Ala.) Labor Advocate in 1895, and in 1906 of The Socialist of Toledo, Ohio.

While connected with different labor papers of the country Mr. Mailly organized Labor and Socialist Parties in many States, and was engaged in such work to the time of his last illness. He was largely instrumental in organizing the Socialist Party in Chicago, Massachusetts, and New York. In 1903 he was elected National Secretary of the party to succeed Leon Greenbaum, but in 1905 refused re-election in order to devote his time to journalism again.

During the latter part of his life Mr. Mailly became engaged in dramatic criticism, editing that department in The Twentieth Century Magazine, and writing numerous articles on the subject for other periodicals of the country. At the time of his death he was associate editor of The Metropolitan Magazine, in which he conducted the department called "The Tidings of the Times." He was a member of the Friars Club. A widow, Mrs. Bertha Howel Mailly, also a prominent Socialist, survives him.

$250,000 IS HERS IF SHE WEDS TITLE

JUST A PLAIN ELECTRICIAN

So She Hastens Here to Break the Will if She Can, but Preferring "Andy" to Any Fortune.

Counts are numerous in Italy, and so are Countesses and Barons, but their pride of blood is just as strong, and so, when Baron Federico Montenegro di Padua died in July he left his fortune of $250,000 to his favorite niece, Countess Amelia Fiaccarini Novelli of Brockton, Mass., on condition that she return to Italy within one year and marry some one in the nobility.

But fate had snarled the strings. The potential young heiress happens to be in love with one of nature's noblemen, a young electrician of Brockton, Andrew J. Gallo, and hopes to be married to him by Christmas, in spite of family opposition.

The Countess came to New York to find a lawyer, versed in the Italian statutes, in the hope of breaking the obnoxious clause in the Baron's will, although she prefers to lose the $250,000 rather than give up her Andy.

When the Countess was interviewed at the St. George Hotel in Brooklyn, where she is registered as Miss A. F. Novelli, and was asked to explain the paradox of a Countess coming from Brockton, it proved to be the old story of more ancestors than cash in the family vault.

"I am sorry the papers have gotten wind of this," she pouted, sinking gracefully into one of the armchairs in the hotel foyer. The Countess-heiress is only 20, and looks younger, being a petite brunette, with brown, dreamy eyes. She was daintily gowned in a black satin Empire dress, cut square at the neck, while a black velvet band confined the mass of dark chestnut hair.

"My father, Count Roberto Fiaccarini Novelli, died at Caserta in 1894. Three years later my mother, Countess Silva, was married to Cavalier Carlo Battinelli, also of Caserta. The following year all three of us came to New York, where my stepfather became a member of a private Italian banking house near the Old Mulberry Bend Park. But the panic of 1907 put an end to his banking career, and he is now earning a living as a salesman in Chicago, where my mother lives with him, while I went to live with the Bonellis in Brockton, who are distant relatives. It was there that I met Mr. Gallo, when I was 16, and we fell in love with each other.

"Of course, my family are down on him, and want me to live up to the terms of this horrid will, but each time I tell them 'millions couldn't buy my Andy,'" she explained with the faintest drawl. "He is such a nice, refined young man, and doesn't look a bit like an electrician," she added naively.

"My uncle—may he rest in peace—once introduced me to a Count over there," she continued, pointing in the general direction of Coney Island and Italy. "I guess he was the one who was picked out for me, and you can just guess how much I thought of him. He didn't count with me.

"I shall have to follow what my heart tells me is right," she answered, sitting up very straight and looking every inch a Countess when asked if she would persist in the love match, even if it meant the forfeiting of a fortune. "Naturally I don't want to be disowned and be married without parental blessing. And, besides, the money would put 'Andy' nicely on his feet.

"But, after all, love is the thing that counts in this world. My aunt objects very strongly to Mr. Gallo; but you know what women are. They can't seem to understand. I came here alone to consult Mr. Gulotta, the banker of Union Square, you know. I am sorry he gave the story out, but I do hope we break the will. Good-bye."

And the sympathetic reporter bowed his adieu, wishing the girl-countess a happy marriage, cash or no cash.

TRAVERS DEFEATS VETERAN TRAVIS

GOOD RECOVERY BY HUNTER

Britisher Wins from Smith, 4 and 3—Evans Easily Downs Lee—Young Players in Final Rounds.

WHEATON, Ill., Sept. 4.—Four Chicagoans, three Easterners, and one Englishman to-night remain in the competition for the National amateur golf championship.

The second elimination round of thirty-six holes to-day brought the curtain down on C. G. Waldo, Jr., of Brooklawn, who yesterday defeated Harold Hilton of the Royal Liverpool Club, the title holder. Waldo was put out by Paul Hunter of Midlothian.

W. J. Travis, former British and National champion, was eliminated by Jerome Travers, metropolitan champion and twice National champion. Travers struck a terrific pace, going out in the afternoon play hole after hole under par.

Charles Evans, Jr., of the Edgewater Club, Chicago, Western champion, with H. B. Lee of Detroit had an easy match. Evans was dormie on the twenty-seventh tee, and took the match at the next green. Schmidt meets Evans to-morrow. Warren Wood of Homewood put out former Champion W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont, who in 1910 beat Wood in the finals for the title.

The elimination of Travis and Fownes leaves the championship to be played for by young men, whose ages will average nearer 25 than 30 years.

The local players remaining are Wood, Mason Phelps, Paul Hunter, and Evans. Travers, Kerr, and Schmidt are from the Atlantic seaboard. Norman Hunter, the Englishman, is joint holder of the amateur course record for St. Andrew's.

The British player was 2 down in the morning in his match with W. P. Smith of Philadelphia, but in the afternoon rounds he struck a winning gait and played excellent golf. He squared the match on the twenty-fifth hole, and thereafter pulled away, winning 4 up at the thirty-third hole. The British contingent pinned its hope to Hunter and Hilton. The defeated champion is a close follower of his compatriot's play.

Norman, Hunter, and Wood have the international match. The Englishman, like Hilton, has been much affected by the heat. Hunter complains that his digestion has been affected. He lay down to rest by several tees this morning, going out. He plays in a jacket, as did Hilton.

The former champion said that he could not play otherwise, and that being compelled to swelter in a coat had much to do with his downfall. Hilton is staying to play off his tie for low medal score with Evans.

Travers and Travis played a remarkably even game in the morning round of eighteen holes, and though neither seemed to be up to his usual skill, the errors were about evenly distributed, and Travers finished 1 up after the players had alternated in the lead. Travers was driving badly at the beginning of the afternoon round, and Travis soon pulled up on his handicap of the morning. When once going, however, the metropolitan champion's golf was practically unbeatable, rounding out the last five holes in real championship form. In the final nine holes Travers continued his excellent playing, showing rare judgment in both driving and putting. Travis had a chance to bring the score even, but the best he could do was to halve the thirty-fifth hole and Travers won a hard match, 2 and 1. The cards:

The Evans-Lee match was too one-sided to be interesting, but served to show the Edgewater player as a dangerous contender for the title. In the first nine holes of the morning play Evans was 2 up at the turn, and striking a fast pace he added the fourteenth, sixteenth, and eighteenth, each being played in 3, and finished the morning play with a substantial lead of 5 up. Throughout the afternoon play Lee succeeded in annexing but one hole, the twenty-third, although he halved five. In the meantime Evans gave a splendid display and won, 9 and 8. The cards:

H. H. Kerr of Ekwanok played a sterling game against Albert Seckel of Riverside. From the start he held the lead, never falling behind, although the Western player squared at the thirteenth. On the home green the Ekwanok player had a splendid chance to finish the morning round 3 up, but missed a two-foot putt. The afternoon contest was replete with interest, and although Seckel played a plucky uphill game, he was never quite able to catch his opponent, who won by the narrow margin of 1 up. The summaries:

ENGLISHMEN FEEL HEAT.

British Expert Says Visitors Cannot Do Themselves Justice.

Special to The New York Times.

WHEATON, Ill., Sept. 4.—Henry Leach, the English golf writer, who has been sent to the United States by The London Daily Mail especially to describe this interesting tournament, cabled the following to his newspaper after to-day's play:

"After a comparative respite, with sweet breezes, yesterday, it was hotter than ever on links to-day, and the temperature rose to just 100 early in the morning. Little wonder British golfers cannot do themselves justice. At home none would dream of playing in such heat. Feeling is general that the heat was chiefly responsible for Hilton's defeat, and this morning bad news was circulated about early that Norman Hunter was sick with heat and very ill. American players display amazing vitality in such circumstances. Of course, all play without jackets in thin shirts, always white. They race along links as if the heat magnetized, never sauntering as we do at home. They never touch any kind of drink in the course of the round and never smoke.

"They know all the little dodges for combating the effects of heat, but their thinner blood is what keeps them going. Our men have tried playing without jackets, but it is a failure, and the only way to play Americans at their own game in such abnormal conditions is to practice it at home beforehand. Despite the [illegible] sun and drought, the [illegible] is always perfectly green, and greenkeepers must be wonderfully clever. All American vitality comes out in the style of driving, which is generally extremely good, with short, snappy swings, being much rarer than at home, the whole body going into the strokes, which are splendidly finished, and the hitting is very neat and crisp. In wooden club play Americans have little to learn from anybody, but have not mastered either pitching spots or the other fine points of the iron play.

"Albert Seckle at the eighth hole this afternoon drove 300 yards, and Warren Wood did same at the seventh this morning. The former was some sixty yards further than Norman Hunter did at same hole, and he is a very long driver. Again, Americans are silent players, taking deep pains, and thinking hard on shots, being more thorough in golf than anybody at home imagines them to be. I feel sure the general view of American golf in England is wrong, and that in the near future it will be a very serious force. Leading Americans here declare they could put a team on American links that would beat anything Britain could send four times out of five.

"Conditions of climate, however, would be unfair, but there is now some talk of organizing an American team for England, and taking their chances there. There is practically no special American golf slang. They talk about shooting a round in a certain score, and when they play a hole under par they call it 'Birdie,' and when they beat a man say they 'have laid one across him,' but that is all. In the evening after dinner in the clubhouse they assemble in circles around the table and sing glees and choruses with wild fervor, but this is often done on ice water, and they get off to bed early.

"There was a great match in the second round, which was played through to-day between the old champion and the young one, Walter Travis, who won the British championship some years ago, and Jerome Travers, who tried to emulate him two seasons since at Muirfield, and failed badly. Travis is steady and a much more accomplished golfer, but cannot last the tournament through. Smoking long cigars and putting with his favorite Schenectady, he made a strong game against his young opponent, and was 2 up at the eighth, but 1 down at the end of the morning round. He got 2 up again in the afternoon, but then Travers put up a strong sequence of wins again against him, and won 2 and 1. Travis was far better than the other from the tee, Travers using irons for all the long shots, and Travis again putted better, but the younger man is a terror at medium length iron approaches.

"Chick Evans sailed through his round in the easiest fashion, showing great form and beating Lee of Philadelphia by 9 and 8, and on present form will take much beating for the championship. He is certainly a better golfer than when he competed at Prestwick, but he says he will not be able to visit England again for many years.

"It was a pity that Mr. Hilton should have been beaten, for Waldo played a much inferior game to-day, and was at one time 5 down."

BATTLE OF MOTOR CYCLISTS.

Chapple and Hasha in First Race To-night for World's Honors at Brighton

The first of a series of three races for the motor cycle championship between Arthur Chapple of New York and Eddie Hasha of Texas will be staged to-night at the Brighton Beach Stadium-Motordrome. It was originally planned to start the championship contest last Tuesday night, but owing to the inclement weather it was postponed. If the past performances of either rider is to be taken as a criterion, this series promises to furnish the most spectacular and exciting racing of the season.

Both men are anxious to get into action, owing to the long layoff from active competition, and with such the case the outcome probably will be a thrilling race. Both riders are said to be in the finest condition. Chapple had his machine out for the first time in three days yesterday, and in a practice spin over the mile route was clocked in 0:38. Hasha has been running close to this time in his recent workouts, and also says that his machine is in tip-top condition.

The races will be at distances of one, three, and five miles. In addition to the prize money, the victorious rider will receive a diamond-studded medal emblematic of the world's championship.

Not since the inception of the sport in New York has an event attracted so much attention from its followers. Chapple is the idol of the New Yorkers, and is representing Gothom in the event, while Hasha has a large following in New Jersey, who will turn out in force to cheer their favorite to victory.

Peugeot Cars in Brighton Races.

Three Peugeot cars which have been entered in the Milwaukee races and which will arrive from Europe to-morrow night, have been nominated for the Brighton Beach auto races Saturday. One of the cars is the French Grand Prix winner, and will be piloted by Georges Boillot, who also drove the speed creation in the premier foreign event. The other drivers are Goux and Zuccarelli, both having many foreign victories to their credit.

Pitcher Demaree for Giants.

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 4.—Al Demaree, crack pitcher of the local club and sold to the New York Giants for $7,000 and several players, left to-night to report to the Giants in Philadelphia, where they are now playing. Manager McGraw wanted Demaree to report earlier, but Manager Finn refused to let him go until the Southern League race was settled. To-day, with all chances to defeat Birmingham gone and second place practically certain, McGraw's request was granted.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Sept. 4.—The Giants won and lost in the double-header with the Phillies here to-day, taking the first with Jumbo Jeff Tesreau in the box by a score of 5 to 2, and lost the second game by a count of 4 to 2. The second defeat was a thorn in the Giants' side because the Phillies won through a concentrated attack on Rube Marquard in the first inning, which netted them three runs. It was the first double-header of three which the Giants have to play here in a row, and the team was satisfied to get an even break in the opening skirmish of a gruelling campaign. Manager McGraw said that the series here would have a tendency to wear down his pitchers, but he stated that if the Giants won four out of seven they would be doing well, and if they won five of seven they would be lucky.

The most encouraging part of New York's performance was the way they hit the ball in the first game. Seven out of their eleven hits were stout two-base smashes. Six were plucked from the flinging of Earl Moore, and he finally retired from the game in the seventh inning, giving way to a novice named Mayer.

Although Tesreau was wild and erratic in the first game, he pitched wonderful ball in the pinches, and shows that he will be one of the most reliable of the pitchers for the rest of the pennant fight. They got eight hits off the Bear Hunter, but he kept them well scattered. He was nervous in his fielding and had two errors, both unruly tosses. His moist pellet was working like a charm with runners on the bases. Jeff used a little more spray with it than usual, and by the time the game was over he looked as if he had been under a flowing hose.

George Chalmers, who is a New York boy, didn't show much loyalty to his home town in the second game, when he twirled great ball and shut out the Giants and held them to three hits in the first seven innings. Then New York wanted to escape the humility of a shutout and uncorked a rally which gave them two runs, but Chalmers settled down before the Phillies lead was in danger.

Chalmers has been laid up with a sore shoulder since early in July, and has just recovered. He showed to-day that he holds the same jinx over the Giants as he has in the past. He had wonderful speed and control and fanned six of the Giants at critical times.

Rube was surely hit hard when they hit him at all, and of the eight hits which they got off him in seven innings Walsh had a homer and Paskert two doubles. It was a big jar to Rube when the Phillies reached him so early in the game. He settled down after that tempestuous first inning, but the damage was done then and it was too late.

Tesreau was inclined to be wild in the opening inning of the first game. He walked Paskert and then pulled Merkle off the bag after picking up Cravath's sacrifice hit. Magee sacrificed, and while Doyle was tossing Luderus out at first base Paskert scored. The Giants got after Earl Moore in the second inning. Murray doubled to right and Merkle fanned. Herzog beat out a tap to first base. Wilson jammed a two-bagger to centre, scoring Murray. Fletcher rolled to Doolan, who threw Herzog out trying to score. Tesreau then hung a little glory on himself by slamming a two-base drive to right field, scoring Wilson and Fletcher.

Big Jeff got into a bad hole in the same inning, but luckily got out of the difficulty with one run scored against him. Doolan beat out a hit to third base and Dodge skied to centre. Killifer singled to centre and Moore fanned. Paskert drilled a hit to left field for two bases, scoring Doolan. Doyle hurled Cravath out at first base for the third out.

New York laced Moore for a couple more runs in the fifth inning. With two out Snodgrass got a pass and stole second base. Murray ripped a double to centre, scoring Snodgrass, and Murray went home on Merkle's two-sack smash to left centre field.

A spectacular catch by Josh Devore robbed the Phillies of a couple of runs in the same round. After Paskert singled, Cravath hit into a double play. Magee singled and Luderus walked. Walsh slammed out a hit which was on its way over Devore's head. Josh ran back and got the ball after a timely leap. Moore was taken out in the seventh inning to let Miller bat for him. Miller got a single and went to second base on Fletcher's bad throw to Merkle. "Doc" remained at second base because the next three batsmen went out in order. Mayer took Moore's place in the box.

The Phillies were ever threatening and got runners on the bases almost [illegible] inning. Ten of the Phillies were left stranded. Cravath walked in the ninth inning and stole second and third bases, but there he stopped.

Paskert, the first man up in the second game for the Phillies, hammered a two-bagger to centre field. Cravath sacrificed Dodge to third base, and he scored on Magee's sacrifice fly to centre field. Luderus kept up the assault with a single to centre field, and then Walsh cudgled the ball on a line into the left field bleachers, where the fans have only to pay two bits to see the game. Walsh's homer drove Luderus home ahead of him, and the crowd set up a howl which led pedestrians outside the park to think that the Phillies had in some way come into possession of the pennant.

The Phillies looked more like champions than the New Yorks in the second tussle. They fielded like champions and made hits which were productive and timely. Doolan at short made dazzling stops and pegs. Not a hit did the Giants get off Chalmers until the third inning, when Snodgrass sent out a two-bagger. Marquard fanned, and Devore and Doyle were thrown out at first base.

Josh Devore was taken with a sudden attack of errors in the sixth inning, and with two out he muffed flies by Walsh and Doolan in quick succession. It was these mishaps which gave the Quakers their fourth run. In this inning Magee skied to Doolan and Luderus popped out to Dodge. Walsh lifted an easy fly in short left field and Josh dropped it after he had both hands wrapped around it. Doolan then steamed a long fly to deep left field. Devore got both hands on this, too, but dropped it, Walsh scoring and Doolan going to second base. He went to third base on a wild pitch, but Dodge ended the Giants' discomfort by skying to Murray.

Marquard was taken out of the game in the seventh inning and pinch hitter Harry McCormick was sent in to bat. "Moose" was there with decorations and slashed a sizzling two-bagger to centre field. Devore sent him to third base with a single to left field, and while Walsh was hurling Doyle out at first base McCormick scored. Devore scampered to third base on a passed ball and scored when Snodgrass lifted a sacrifice fly to deep right field.

BROOKLYN'S LONG GAME.

Superbas Defeat Boston in Thirteenth Inning on Hummel's Hit.

In one of the greatest pitching duels that either major league has produced this season Eddie Stack of Brooklyn triumphed over "Hickory" Dickson of Boston at Washington Park in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon. The game went thirteen innings before a decision was reached, Hummel finally bringing it to a close with a single to right field after two were out in the thirteenth inning, scoring Miller with the winning run.

Stack gave a wonderful exhibition of pitching in holding his opponents down to three hits in the long battle, but it was only through an error by McDonald with two out in the ninth inning that he escaped defeat. Two of the Boston hits were bunched off Stack in the second inning, and he allowed only one more during the game, that being a single by Titus in the tenth.

Dickson's performance was equally noteworthy. Up to the eighth inning Brooklyn failed to get a hit off the Boston pitcher, and in this chapter they got one. The visitors went into the field for the last half of the ninth inning with the score of 1—0 in their favor, due to a triple by Titus and a single by Devlin in the second inning. With such pitching as Dickson had been showing the one run looked as big as a dozen, but the unexpected happened.

Northen opened the chapter with a single to left field. Hummel flied out to Titus, and Smith's short fly fell into Jackson's hands for the second out. Most of the crowd was on the way out when Daubert dropped a single into centre field. Northen turned second at full speed and Campbell hurried the ball to McDonald at third. The ball rolled past the Boston third sacker, and Northen continued on to the plate with the tying run. Wheat was walked purposely and Cutshaw ended the inning with a grounder to Devlin.

In the thirteenth inning, after Boston had been retired in order, Brooklyn bunched two more hits off Dickson and won the game. Miller singled to centre and advanced on Stack's sacrifice; McDonald to Devlin. While Devlin was throwing Northen out at first base Miller advanced to third, and he scored the winning run on Hummel's single to right. The score:

Wilson's Homer Wins for Pirates.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Wilson's home-run drive won to-day's game for Pittsburgh, 5 to 2, and incidentally widened the margin between Chicago and New York to six full games in the pennant race. Chicago took a two-run lead in the sixth inning. Zimmerman singled and Leach walked. Saier fanned, and Evers's hit was too hot for Wagner, and Zimmerman scored. Needham then singled, filling the bases. O'Toole made a wild pitch, and Leach scored. O'Toole retired after this inning, and Robinson held the locals safe. The visitors made one run on Miller's double, an infield hit, which Zimmerman let pass down the third base line, thinking it would roll foul. On a double play Miller scored. After one out in the eighth, Carey singled, Donlin popped out, and Wagner was purposely walked. Miller then singled, and Carey scored. With two men on, Wilson hit the ball over the right field fence into the bleachers, scoring both runners ahead of him. The score:

Connie Mack's fading champions of the universe, now engaged in a desperate struggle for third place in the American League race, opened a six-game series with the Yankees on the Hilltop yesterday afternoon, and greatly improved their chances of finishing third. By crowding five games into the next three days the Champs will close their New York activities for 1912. At no time yesterday did the fallen heroes appear to be in the hunt, and they finished on the small end of a 6 to 1 count.

Inability to master the underhand pitching of little Jack Warhop was the principal cause of the Athletics' downfall. They nicked off seven safe swats at the rate of one hit per inning, and escaped a shutout on a freak play—a sacrifice fly to an infielder. Jack Coombs brought the run across in the sixth inning when he romped home from third base after McMillan had caught Collins's pop fly behind second base. But Warhop has no complaint coming on that run. Only by a wonderful play of Lelivelt did the Yankee pitcher escape having three runs registered against him in the eighth inning.

J. Franklin Baker, whose specialty is driving the bulb beyond the bulwarks, collided with one of Warhop's underhand twisters in the eighth inning with all the strength and good intentions that featured a pair of hits he collected last October off Marquard and Matty. The ball headed straight for the centre field bleachers, while Coombs and Murphy trotted around the paths in the general direction of the plate. Lelivelt was playing deep for Baker, but was not quite deep enough for this wallop. He was still going eastward and within a few feet of the bleacher rail when he threw himself sideways into the air and came back to earth wit hthe ball safely tucked in his glove. The catch cost Baker a home run and prevented three Philadelphia runs.

Fast and spectacular fielding plays were scattered throughout the game. The catch by Lelivelt was the headliner, but it did not have much on a one-hand stab by Jack Barry in the sixth inning which was turned into an out at the plate by an equally brilliant throw. Bert Daniels was resting on third base after clearing the sacks with a triple, when Paddock crashed a fast bounder toward left field. The ball was between Barry and Baker, but the former hurried backward and flagged it with his bare hand about twenty feet behind the base line. He was out of position to throw, but he took a chance and made a peg that could not be improved upon if the had a week's time. The ball sailed into Lapp's waiting hands and Daniels was an easy out at the plate. Then there was a backhand catch by Hal Chase. But what's the use? Hal gets 'em that way every day.

The Yankee first sacker had a field day with the stick. In the first inning he touched Coombs up for a single to left, trotted around to third base when Daniels dented Eddie Collins's shins with a puzzling bounder, and galloped home on Paddock's fly to Murphy in short right field. In the third Chase opened on Coombs with a double which hit the left field fence on the fly, moved along on Daniels's sacrifice, and made a great try for home when Paddock hit to Coombs. Everybody on the field except Bill Dineen thought Hal was safe, but Bill had more say than the rest of the crowd. In the fifth inning Chase pushed the ball into the centre field seats for a home run. He also figured in the busy sixth inning.

Hartzell began the sixth inning with a Texas Leaguer to right field, and got an extra base on Murphy's fumble. Sweeney beat out a bunt, and Warhop singled past second, scoring Hartzell. On McMillan's attempted sacrifice Sweeney was forced at third base. A pass to Chase filled the corners, and Daniels cleaned up with a drive to the fence in left centre field. Daniels was thrown out at the plate by Barry when he tried to score on Paddock's grounder.

The Athletics' lone run in the sixth inning was the result of a pass to Coombs, Maggert's double to left, and Collins's fly to McMillan.

Washington Pitchers Wild.

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—Washington came to town to-day declaring it was still possible for them to win the pennant, but they lost to the league-leading Bostons by a score of 6 to 2, the opening game of a series which will have an important effect upon their chances. Manager Griffith sent a relay of four young pitchers against Boston, but with poor results. Collins, for Boston, was in fine form, and received gilt-edged support from Gardner, Lewis, and Yerkes. The locals clinched the game in the second inning when they piled up four runs. Two passes which Engel gave among four hits assisted in the scoring. Gallia, who succeeded Engel, was also wild. Musser, who followed, was both wild and ineffective, Boston scoring two runs off him, and Herring, who finished, showed little quality. Gandil batted in both of the Washington's runs with a triple and a single. The score:

KILBANE AND DUNDEE DRAW.

Champion and Local Boy in Rather Disappointing Bout.

Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion, and Johnny Dundee of New York boxed ten rounds at St. Nicholas Rink last night without either showing to any advantage over the other.

For a championship affair the contest was a big disappointment. Both boys weighed in under 122 pounds at 7 o'clock and at ring time Dundee weighed exactly 122 pounds, with Kilbane two pounds heavier. The Cleveland boy exhibited no such form as might be expected of a champion—none of the speed in attack and willingness to mix that has featured the work of other holders of his title. He appeared to have too great regard for Dundee's punching power in the early rounds, and it was not until the bout was drawing to a finish and he must have felt that he was not winning that he cut loose with anything approaching speed. When he started he showed a strong right-hand punch and he landed it with full force on Dundee's face several times. But it failed even to put the little Italian in distress.

On the other hand Dundee held on the slightest provocation. An efficient referee could probably have prevented a lot of this indifferent going, which is anything but boxing.

Dundee drew the first and only blood of the bout in the seventh round with a right to Kilbane's nose, and the wallop had the effect of making the champion step a little faster than he had stepped before. From this round to the finish Kilbane showed more class as a boxer than Dundee, but he was not able to outshine the Italian by any wide margin. Dundee's old weakness—infighting—was apparent on the few occasions when the champion tried to mix in the clinches, but these occasions were decidedly few. It could all be bunched in a single round.

PRAISES AMERICAN FENCERS.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 5.—Edgar Seligman, Captain of the English Olympic fencing team, writes to The Times:

"In view of the publicity given by the press to the methods of American athletes, I should like to place on record that, in the opinion of the British fencing team and myself, it would be impossible to meet more courteous gentlemen or more loyal adversaries than the swordsmen hailing from the United States."

Hartford Grand Circuit Racing Opens After Two Postponements.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 4. — Grand Circuit racing in connection with the Connecticut State Fair was begun this afternoon at Charter Oak Park, the track being out of commission since Monday, owing to the heavy rain. It was so bad in spots, even after hours of treatment today, that the $10,000 trot, the classic event of the meet, was put over until Thursday.

Two events were carried through this afternoon, the 2:10 pace, which was won in straight heats by Knight Onward, and the free-for-all pace, which developed into an interesting contest between The Eel and Sir R., the latter taking the race after finishing last in the first heat.

Yankees in Doubleheader To-day.

The Athletics will play a double-header with the Yankees at the American League Park this afternoon. The first game will begin at 2 o'clock. Manager Wolverton will probably use Caldwell and Ford in the box for the New Yorks, while Connie Mack's pitchers are likely to be Plank and Bender. Birdie Cree may be able to resume playing left field for the local team. Pitcher Ray Keating, purchased by President Farrell from the Lawrence (New England League) Club, will report to Manager Wolverton on Saturday, or Monday at the latest. He will be taken West for a thorough trial.

Infielder Priest of Albany, Third Baseman Medkiff of San Antonio, and Pitcher Thompson of Brockton will report to Manager Wolverton to-day.

COLLEGE TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP OPENS

W. M. Washburn, Harvard's Star Racquet Wielder; Beaten by W. H. Mace of Princeton.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Sept. 4.—The annual tournament for the intercollegiate tennis championship in singles and doubles began on the courts of the Merion Cricket Club at Haverford this morning. The tournament, which brings together the representatives of Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Dartmouth, Harvard, Pittsburgh, Minnesota, and Williams, will reach the final stage on Saturday afternoon.

An upset occurred in the first round of the afternoon, when in the singles W. M. Washburn, the Harvard star, was defeated by W. H. Mace, the Princeton expert. Washburn was regarded as Harvard's strongest candidate for the finals, and his defeat was the surprise of the day. He was beaten 1—6, 6—3, 6—3.

Washburn completely outplayed his opponent in the first set, and won by six games to one. Mace, however, was in no way dismayed, and came right back at his opponent in the next set, and surprised everybody by winning by six games to three. Just to prove that this was no fluke, he took the third set by the same score.

Play is for possession of the championship trophy donated in 1900 by Isaac H. Clothier of this city. The conditions are that the annual championship tournament be played at the Merion Cricket Club, that a win in singles and a win in doubles count 1 point each, and that the college first obtaining 7 points shall retain the trophy permanently. $50,000 FOR SHOW HORSES.

E. B. McLean's Offer for Three of J. W. Harriman Stable Is Declined.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 4.—Fifty thousand dollars, offered by Edward B. McLean of Washington, D. C., for Lady Dilham, a brown mare; Elegant Dilham, a brown gelding, and Nala, a brown stallion, the property of J. W. Harriman of New York, was refused by J. H. Donnelly, manager for Mr. Harriman, this afternoon at the Newport horse show.

These horses have been big winners at the Newport show and are admired by Mr. McLean. Mr. Harriman refused $50,000 for Nala from Alexander Gammell of Scotland during the White Plains horse show last year, where Nala was a winner.

Mr. Donnelly at his stock farm in Housatonic, Mass., has received from G. L. Boissevan of New York two excellent ponies to be shown for the first time in New York next November at the National Horse Show. The Executive Committee of the Newport Horse Show have selected Sept. 1, 2, and 3 for their horse show at the Casino next year.

Harrisburg Wins Pennant.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Sept. 4.—The Tri-State League baseball season closed to-day with Harrisburg the winner of the pennant, which was cinched last week. Allentown ended the season in second place, and Trenton, Wilmington, Atlantic City, Reading, York, and Chester finished in the order named. Altoona, Lancaster, and Johnstown were in the circuit when the season began, but dropped out because of poor patronage, and Allentown, Atlantic City, and Chester took their places.

Payment of A. A. U. Dues.

There being only two days more on which dues of clubs in the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Association can be paid in order to qualify them for representation at the annual meeting on Sept. 16, President James E. Sullivan yesterday instructed Secretary Tully to notify all clubs which have not yet forwarded their dues to do so at once if they desire to vote at the meeting. Last year nine clubs (which paid their dues within ten days of the annual meeting) were barred from representation. The rules require that all dues must be paid at least ten days before the meeting. There were also several clubs barrd last year which desired to pay dues at the meeting.

TALK OF TOBACCO RIVAL.

Street Hears of Duke Organizing Against Old Trust—He Denies It.

The report was current in the financial district yesterday that a new tobacco company was soon to be launched to compete with the American Tobacco Company, the P. Lorillard Company, the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, and the other fragments of the old Tobacco Trust and the independents. The story was that it would be affiliated with the British-American Tobacco Company, and would have the backing of the First National Bank interests, with James B. Duke, Francis I. Hine, President of the First National, Daniel G. Reid, W. H. Moore, and Norman B. Ream among the controlling spirits.

Mr. Duke, who has just returned to this country after several months absence in Europe, denied the story flatly.

"You can deny it most emphatically," he said. "I never heard of such a thing."

Mr. Hine also disavowed any participation in the reported project.

"I know nothing whatever about any such plan," he said. "I have no interest, present or prospective, in the tobacco business, and so far as I know the story is made out of whole cloth."

Plausibility was lent to the story by the situation of the British-American Company since the dissolution of the trust and the fact of Mr. Duke's visit to America. The company was formerly owned jointly by the American Tobacco Company and the Imperial Tobacco Company, Limited, of Great Britain and Ireland. It was a party to agreements by which it was prevented from operating in the United States or the British Isles, the respective territories of the two parent concerns. These agreements were abrogated by the disintegration decree, leaving the British-American free to enter the American field. Mr. Duke resigned the Presidency of the American Tobacco Company and became Chairman of the British-American, taking up his residence in London.

The British-American is a large purchaser of leaf tobacco in this country and owns a number of factories here, so that it could easily enter this field, either of itself or through a subsidiary company. Despite the abrogation of the illegal agreements, however, and the distribution of the stock owned by the American Tobacco Company, the latter's stockholders, the British-American, up to this time, has not operated in any place from which it was formerly barred, although it has increased its plants in Canada, and, of course, in remoter parts of the world, such as the Far East.

For these reasons, some credence was given to the report in advance of the denials of Mr. Duke and Mr. Hine.

COTTON DUCK EXPORTS DOWN

Custom House figures show exports of domestics and cotton duck from the Port of New York in the week ended Aug. 31 to have been 4,313 packages, valued at $276,771, against 6,626 packages, valued at $642,127, in the preceding week. Despite this decline exports of this merchandise from New York since Jan. 1, 1912, to the above date, still show a gain of $1,109,467 in value over similar shipments in the same period in 1911. So far this year they have amounted to 293,536 packages, valued at $18,602,161.

Exports to Colombia, valued at $48,245, topped the week's list, followed by shipments to Chile, Central America, and San Domingo, valued respectively at $36,714, $23,671, and $23,096.

There was a slight improvement in the local export market during the week. Some small business was done, but the unsettled condition of the American cotton market made foreign buyers cautious about placing orders of any size. Pending the settlement of internal agitation in China there is not much business coming forward from that market. There is said to be a need of American goods there, however, and the ending of the unrest is now believed to be practically all that is necessary to start the demand. The softening of the cotton market is also expected to stimulate trading in these lines between the two countries when internal conditions on the other side become favorable to business. Some small orders have been received of late from the Red Sea districts, but the call for American cottons from the Philippines and other important markets is generally limited at the moment.

PIG IRON AGAIN ADVANCES.

Sales in August Great—Some Agencies Doing a Record Business.

Further advances in pig iron and a continuance of activity in this branch of the iron and steel industry was the feature of the week's developments. Commenting on the trade situation, The Iron Age says:

The week has shown no slackening in the buying of foundry iron; in some markets, particularly in the Central West, it has increased. Northern furnaces, which have long been out of line with Southern prices, have made further advances of 25 to 50 cents a ton, generally the latter figure, and for the most part are on a level nearly $1 higher than that of late July.

Our blast furnace statistics of Sept. 1 show that while production of pig iron was 100,000 tons more last month than in July, it was then only equal to the May output, and fell below that of June. The total was 2,512,431 tons, or 81,046 tons a day, against 2,410,889 tons, or 77,738 tons a day in July, when high heat and humidity were a handicap in all districts. Merchant furnaces increased their production to 21,582 tons a day last month, or by 2,000 tons a day, and steel works furnaces increased to 59,464 tons, or by 1,300 tons a day.

The industry entered September with 257 furnaces active, with a daily capacity of 82,058 tons, as against 247 furnaces, with a capacity of 78,653 tons a day on Aug. 1. September output thus promises to be at the highest rate of the year.

The Iron Trade Review says:

Sales of pig iron during August were tremendous, and some trading agencies disposed of the greatest tonnages of any month in their business experience. Many molters having become convinced that a good time to buy has arrived, have covered for their requirements up to July 1, 1913. Record breaking production and shipments were made by the mills during August, and the output of blast furnaces was also very heavy. The total production of coke and anthracite pig iron for August was 2,499,678 tons, an increase of 97,111 tons over July. The daily average production was 80,635 tons, against 77,502 tons in July.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Erlenmeyer Flasks Pay Duty as Bottles—Other Decisions.

Various articles of chemists' glassware, assessed at 60 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 100 of the Tariff act of 1897 as blown or ground glass, were protested by F. W. Braun of Los Angeles before the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday. The importer was upheld that Erlenmeyer flasks were properly dutiable as "bottles" at 40 per cent. under Paragraph 99, and that thermometer tubing should have paid duty at 45 per cent. as "manufactures of glass" under Paragraph 112, but overruled that prisms in the invoice were dutiable as manufactures of glass.

G. W. Sheldon & Co. of Chicago failed to gain free entry for a Chinese Ming Potiche, a Chinese Kang-Hi vase, and a rose lancelle vase, which had been assessed as decorated china, and which they asserted were objects of ornamental character or educational value, produced more than 100 years prior to importation.

B. Altman & Co. lost protests submitted on the record without further evidence against 60 per cent. ad valorem on braids, laces, trimmings, and embroideries.

The Columbia Phonograph Company established that 25 per cent. under Paragraph 462 should be levied on wax master records. The Collector had assessed them at 45 per cent. under Paragraph 468.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

The sweater end of the knit goods trade is receiving a number of calls for immediate shipment of merchandise already on order. Reorders are coming in freely, despite recent advances, and the manufacturers are generally busy.

Plush, chinchilla and caracul coats are in good repute this season. In certain quarters of this market a heavy business is being done on them.

Recent advices from Paris tell of the return to favor of watered taffeta. It is now worn to some extent for both afternoon and evening, and may replace taffeta for use in tailored dresses.

TEXTILE STRIKE UNLIKELY.

Disaffection of New England Workers Not Likely to Reach New York.

Special to The New York Times.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Sept. 4.—The textile manufacturers in the State of New York are face to face with the problem which was presented to the Massachusetts mill owners last Winter, resulting in the indicting of William M. Wood, President of the American Woolen Company.

The act of the Legislature of New York reducing the number of hours of labor per operative goes into effect Oct. 1, and the workers are to insist that wages remain the same. That was exactly the situation in this commonwealth.

At the loom fixers' National convention in Boston last week it was decided to resist a cut in wages if it should be made, and Edward Christian, the Secretary, was intrusted with full power to act in the matter. Mr. Christian, who lives in Lawrence, said to THE NEW YORK TIMES representative to-day:

"I do not anticipate a strike in New York State. The manufacturers will not, in my opinion, make the mistake that was made here."

Mr. Christian went on to explain that loom fixers are few in number, only a few mills being large enough to employ as many as fifty of them.

"We stand with the bosses," he said. "They cannot run their mills without us, and they know it. They need us badly when other crafts make trouble. We ask little—only that the present rate of pay be continued. It will cost the manufacturers little, and we expect to get it.

"What about the I. W. W.? Where will they come in?" was asked.

"Those people," replied Mr. Christian, "will seize the opportunity as they did in Lawrence. Last year, when we asked for the two hours' pay and the manufacturers refused, the Industrial Workers came in and caused all the trouble that followed. The same thing happened in Clinton, and will doubtless happen in New York should the mill owners be unwise enough to follow the course that resulted so disastrously here."

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—The Industrial Workers of the World, the organization which conducted the textile strike in Lawrence, is preparing for a similar strike among the textile workers in the mill districts of this city which will involve more than 12,000 people directly, and will attempt to involve thousands of others employed in different industries who are members of the Industrial Workers of the World, and will be called on to come out in a sympathy strike.

Haywood, the National Organizer for the Industrial Workers of the World, is expected here Friday or Saturday, when conferences will be held and immediate plans formulated. Simon Knable, who figured in the strike at Lawrence, is here and is organizing the various branches of the textile industry.

COAL DEMAND INCREASING.

Week's Tonnage Is the Largest Known, but Is Well Absorbed.

Reviewing the week in the New York coal market, the current issue of The Coal Trade Journal will say to-day:

"The general anthracite situation is perhaps best described by the statement that while the tonnage for the past month was probably the largest on record, it was very well absorbed. The cold weather experienced at various points in the North and East has accentuated the demand from the country dealers, and even in this city and vicinity the untoward weather conditions have played their part in increasing the interest taken in the matter of coal supply.

"An increasing demand for bituminous coal gives a definite keynote to the whole trade, and the many changes in the price-list made this week show plainly the tendency of the market. The volume of unsold coal at the piers is moderate, and arrivals are light, considering the season, because of restrictions of car service."

BUSINESS NOTES.

Exports of sugar from the six principal ports of Cuba last week were 36,000 tons, against 14,000 in the preceding week and 6,000 last year. Stock at these ports was 134,000 tons, against 171,000 in the previous week and 14,000 a year ago.

The annual sale of broadcloth by the dress goods department of the H. B. Claflin Company, Worth and Church Streets, which began on Tuesday, will be continued to-day. Over 5,000 pieces of these goods are offered in all, and the results of the opening day of the sale augur well for the disposal of the remainder of the stock.

Dan Talmage's Sons Company, New Orleans, telegraph rice crop movement there to date as follows: Receipts, rough, new and old, 100,700 sacks. Sales, cleaned, 109,080 pockets. Rough rice is now selling at $4.35 a barrel.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

Edmonton, Canada, will not become a city of skyscrapers, for a recent order of the City Council limits the heights of buildings to ten stories. Amendments to the ruling provide that there shall be at least two stairways in buildings of three stories or higher, and that additional exits be provided where the area occupied by the building is more than 2,500 feet. Back vents to plumbing must be installed where more than four fixtures are used.

The Chilean Government expended $3,396,875, gold, during the first six months of 1912, on public improvements. About $300,000 went into public buildings and $250,000 into water works. More work of this nature is planned for the latter half of the year.

A promising export from interior China is orpiment, which is found in considerable quantities near Siakwan. Exports in 1910 were 1,199,520 pounds, worth $51,534, and in 1911, 732,480 pounds, worth $23,145. Transit passes were taken out for this article in 1911 for the first time, though their effects were neutralized by an increase in the royalty exacted at the mines. The events of the latter part of the year made traffic between Siakwan and Ten Yueh impossible for a time, but the resulting decrease in the quantity exported, is not to be construed as indicating that the trade is in an unhealthy condition.

LESSOR ROADS ESCAPE TAX.

Corporation Assessment, Court Holds, Lies Against the Lessee Lines.

Judge Hough rendered an important decision yesterday in the Federal District Court affecting railroads and the Federal corporation tax. He held that when a line had been leased to another company as long as the lessee had paid the corporation tax the lessor could not be assessed. Two cases were before him involving the same point, the first brought by the New York Central, as lessee of the West Shore and the Mohawk & Malone Railroads, against Frank L. Marshall, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Third New York District, and the other brought by the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Company, as lessee of the Morris & Essex Railroad, against Charles W. Anderson, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Second New York District.

In his opinion Judge Hough stated that the ruling fact in each case was that the lessor company, though created for railroad business, had debarred itself from transacting it and had made a bargain by which the income was assured not to the company, but to its stockholders. Consequently, whatever railway business was done was the business of the renting corporation.

It made no difference, the court went on, whether the renting corporation made or lost money by operating the rented lines, it was still required to pay the rent, and there was no earmarking of the funds earned out of the leased lines for the payment of the obligations arising under the lease. In each case the leased line was operated as an integral part of the system of the lessee.

The Internal Revenue Collectors had maintained that the leasing roads, though they transacted no business for themselves, lived under the leases and permitted their condition to be carried out, and that this constituted a species of doing business sufficient to make the tax applicable. The court, however, refused to accept this view.

SEE END OF STRIKE.

Weavers at New Bedford Expected to Return Monday.

According to a statement made yesterday by a prominent New York dry goods man who had just returned from a short visit to New Bedford, Mass., chances for a settlement this week of the weavers' strike at that place were particularly bright. Unless the unforeseen occurs the affected mills will again be in active operation Monday next. It was said that the proposal of the weavers to accept a 30 per cent. reduction on all seconds instead of the 40 per cent. previously levied by the manufacturers, had met the approval of the latter, as had the request that a committee of eight be appointed to decide doubtful cases.

The slight shading of prices on fine cottons in the gray that occurred recently is believed in certain quarters of this market to be due more to the approaching end of the strike than to the decline in the cost of raw cotton. This belief is substantiated by the fact that the drop in the price of the finished goods is in no way proportionate to the extent of the decline in the raw material. The strike is now in its eighth week, and has cost both sides a considerable sum in lost wages and profits.

MEN'S NECKTIE TRADE GOOD.

There has been more than the usual number of buyers of men's neckwear in the New York market this season, and, according to E. D. Johnson of James R. Keiser, Inc., Fourth Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street, business has been very good in these lines in the last two months. Fall lines have been freely taken, and the advance orders booked to date on holiday goods augurs well for an excellent road business.

"Spot buying on Fall lines is now practically over," said Mr. Johnson yesterday, "and few buyers will be found in this market after Sept. 15. New York City buyers have already bought a good part of their holiday lines, and because of the extent of their purchases, and the fact that considerable business is taken on the road each year, we anticipate a good volume of outside orders.

"The increase in the demand for flat silk ties has been one of the features of the business booked this season, and it can be truthfully said that the demand for these goods of late has been heavier than for several years. Recently there has been quite a call for silk scarves that will make a full knot, to be worn with one of the new Fall collars which has a fairly wide spacing and permits more of the tie to show than the closed-front type. The demand for these ties originated with the metropolitan dealers, but is now showing a substantial growth among retailers in other parts of the country.

"Knitted scarves will continue popular this Fall, but the demand for them will be limited chiefly to the better grades. Of late there has been a noticeable falling off in the call for knitted goods retailing around 50 cents."

DRY GOODS AGAIN ACTIVE.

Many New Buyers Arrive After the Recent Holiday.

Having apparently fully recovered from the holiday spirit the New York dry goods market was generally active yesterday. A new contingent of out-of-town buyers arrived, and their purchases, together with those of buyers returned from short holiday trips, swelled the volume of business to very good proportions.

The values offered by primary sellers of dress ginghams for Spring delivery proved attractive to wholesalers, and some nice business was done in these lines. Brown and gray cottons were generally steady under a fairly heavy demand. The call for the fancier grades of lightweight worsteds and woolens was not great, but a good volume of business was done on staple fabrics of this nature. Jobbers were active in Spring silks in certain quarters of the market, but the demand was not great nor the business generally spread.

Silks moved well in the jobbing end of the market, and ribbons shared this movement to no little extent. Floor coverings gave some evidence of the activity predicted for this month, but business in them was by no means of an unusual order. Wash goods, prints, percales, and ginghams, both dress and staple, were in good repute and liberally taken from all accounts, as were flannels, quilts, and household linens. Domestics were generally inactive, though some fair orders for them were reported. The rush of buyers for Fall dress goods continued, and trading in these lines was apparently the real feature of the market. One prominent merchant reported the best day's business in them for several weeks.

AMERICAN HIDE'S GOOD YEAR.

The annual report of the American Hide and Leather Company for the year ended June 30, 1912, shows the best return in net earnings since 1909. Gross output was worth $17,581,364, compared with $15,448,241 in 1911 and $18,271,117 in 1910, while manufacturing profit was $1,624,416, compared with $1,330,696 in 1911 and $620,168 in 1910 and $2,590,168 in 1909.

General and selling expense was $478,948, against $483,320 in the previous year, $520,212 in 1910, and $488,417 in 1909. Another item which was materially reduced was bad debts and reserve for bad debts, the 1912 item being $23,391, against $28,441 in the previous year. Profit before charging interest was $1,122,076, against $818,934 in 1911 and $81,501 in 1910. There was carried surplus $422,820, compared with $104,255 in 1911 and a deficit of $696,590 in 1910.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

ARMAND SERPOSS.—A petition has been filed against Armand H. and Therese Serposs, doing business under the name of Armand Serposs, wholesale and retail dealers in millinery, 5 to 9 West Thirty-second Street, by these creditors: Zucker & Josephy, $1,302; Goodkind & Robinson, $35, and Benjamin Rinaldo, $219. Judge Hough appointed Samuel H. Lummins, actuary of the Eastern Millinery Association, as receiver at the request of creditors. The liabilities are $14,000 and assets $9,000.

THE GORDON & MALVEN CO., dealer in hardware, plumbing and roofing, Port Jervis, has filed a petition here, showing liabilities $58,166, and assets $52,127. The largest creditors are the Port Jervis Real Estate and Town Association, $20,475, and the National Bank of Port Jervis, $13,440. The petition was referred to Walter C. Anthony, referee in bankruptcy at Newburg, on application of C. E. & S. M. Cuddeback, attorneys for the company, who said that the trouble was due to lack of ready cash to meet notes coming due and other obligations.

AUTO-FOTO COMPANY.—A petition has been filed against the Auto-Foto Company, manufacturer of protographic machinery, 141 West Thirty-sixth Street, by these creditors: Clark Loose Leaf Manufacturing Company, $222; Hoblett Company, $135, and Richard H. Long, $407.

ZWISOHN & CO.—Isaac Zwisohn, trading as Zwisohn & Co., manufacturer of clothing, 749 Broadway, made an assignment yesterday to Simon S. Hamburger. A petition was also filed against him by these creditors: Samuel E. Meltzer, $493; Jacob Clark, $54, and E. Frankel, $46. Judge Hough appointed Simon S. Hamburger receiver. The liabilities are said to be $10,000, and assets $4,000.

ROYAL WAIST COMPANY.—A petition has been filed against the Royal Waist Company, contractor on waists, 474 Broadway, by Nathan M. Reingold, a creditor for over $500. The liabilities are said to be $5,000, and assets $500.

JOHN FRICK, plumber, of 1,985 Clinton Avenue, the Bronx, has filed a petition with liabilities, $4,349, and no assets. Most of the debts were contracted as a partner in the firm of Frick & Redler.

FRANK DE WOLF, clerk, of 333 East Fifty-seventh Street, has filed a petition, with liabilities $1,596, and no assets.

ZODICK KRELSTEIN.—Charles Krelstein, also known as Zodick Krelstein, baker, of 152 Forsyth Street, has filed a petition with liabilities $811, and no assets.

Judge Hough has appointed Elihu Root, Jr., receiver for the Electrolytic Process Company of 225 West Thirty-ninth Street and 309 De Kalb Avenue, Brooklyn, bond $2,500, on application of Archibald, Palmer & Noble. Estabrook & McHarg, attorneys for all parties. An affidavit of August Leuchter, Vice President of the company, who has $135,000 of the capital stock, was presented to the court asking for an investigation into the company's affairs.

Judge Hough has appointed Walter Ernst receiver for Arthur E. Wilson, stock broker of 20 Broad Street and 120 West Forty-second Street, on application of Pauline A. Valentine, a creditor, bond $1,000. She said that she was in the Forty-second Street branch office on Sept. 3, when various certificates of stocks were sent to Mark Emanuel, the manager, to be distributed among certain creditors, and she feared that unless a receiver was appointed to preserve the assets, certain creditors would get a preference. Mr. Wilson filed an assignment in the County Clerk's office yesterday to John G. Wilson. The liabilities are $20,393, and assets $5,156.

ALBERT BRODY.—Judge Hough has appoined Edmund Wright receiver of Albert Brody, clothing manufacturer of 105 Canal Street. He made an assignment some time ago to Mr. Wright. The liabilities are $39,217, nominal assets $24,857, and actual assets about $11,000.

SAMUEL SCHNEIDER.—Judge Hough has confirmed a composition of Samuel Schneider, dealer in furniture, Nyack, with creditors at 35 cents on the dollar, payable 25 cents and 10 cents, in two notes, at three and six months.

MOSES L. BRAUNSTEIN.—Judge Hough has confirmed a composition of Moses L. Braunstein, dealer in dry goods, 1,693 Madison Avenue, with creditors at 25 cents on the dollar, payable 10 cents and 7½ cents each in two notes at three and six months.

EMPIRE CITY AUTOMOBILE CO.—Judge Hough has dismissed the petition filed on Aug. 15 against the Empire City Automobile Company of 1,800 Broadway by three former employes. When the case was called yesterday in the U. S. District Court there was no apearance for the petitioners. The company had put in an answer that it was solvent, with liabilities less than $3,000 and assets $40,000.

FRANK L. UNDERWOOD confessed judgment yesterday for $20,153 in favor of the Columbia-Knickerbocker Trust Company for the amount due, with interest, on two demand notes made in December, 1908, aggregating $16,997. Mr. Underwood is a promoter who has been President of or Director in several mining companies and other corporations.

Add Your Profits
To Your Principal

Have you studied the securities you hold, so that your money will be invested not only in the safest securities, but those which show you the best return on your money! Supposing in the past you had bought a stock selling at $100 a share and paying a dividend of 5%! Supposing the price of the stock has advanced to $150 a share, it would then only yield you 3 1-3%. Supposing you sell this at $150, making a profit of $50 on your investment, or 50%, and take this $150 and invest it in a stock that will yield 5% or 6%, you are not only taking advantage of the increase in the value of the stock you originally bought, but are putting this back into another stock that will bring you a larger income.

Our Letter This Week Is On

Each week we issue a weekly letter dealing with one particular stock, which after careful study we believe a good investment, yielding a good return and also one which should increase in value. This will be sent on request. Remember, we are brokers for the small as well as the large investor. We make a specialty of executing small lots of stock, either to be bought outright, on margin, or on our monthly payment plan.

Small Recovery in Stocks on Reduced Volume of Trading —The Money Factor.

It seemed clear yesterday that uncertainty over the result of the Vermont election had not been the controlling, and, perhaps, had been only a minor factor in causing the break which occurred in prices on Tuesday. What the result in the barometer State showed, so far as it showed anything clearly, was that the division in the Republican Party points strongly to the success this year of the Democratic ticket. The response which the Stock Exchange made to this indication of the drift of this year's political currents was meagre and unimportant, whether measured by the volume of trading or by the day's net changes in prices. These for the most part were fractional advances, but the recovery was no more than might, on purely technical conditions, have followed a decline as sharp as that which occurred the previous day, particularly in view of the fact that on Tuesday there was no up-turn before the close, such as frequently occurs from the evening up of contracts at the end of a day of declining prices. It may have been because the record of the vote in Vermont called for no revision of previously formed ideas regarding the probable outcome of the November elections that this September indication of what is to happen in the country at large two months hence should have found so slight a reflection in the stock market. There are some in Wall Street, however, who must needs, if they accept the Vermont returns as at all indicative of conditions elsewhere in the country, revise their estimates of Mr. Roosevelt's strength in this campaign. Some had credited him with far less strength than he has shown in the State of Vermont, but this revelation has not come as a surprise to those who have taken count, so far as those in the financial district are called upon to estimate political probabilities, of the strength of the Third Party movement and of the particular conditions which were bound to effect the result in Vermont.

It would seem now that in apportioning the influence of the several factors which were effective in lowering prices at the beginning of trading this week, greatest importance should be given to the monetary situation which since the close of last week has found reflection in higher rates for both call and time money. So rapidly, indeed, have rates moved in response to the demands which the banks have been called upon to meet that whatever chance existed that the higher English Bank rate established last week might be effective in drawing gold from this market in advance of the most acute period of the interior demand for cash, has been greatly lessened, if, indeed, it has not entirely passed. It is true that on its face, the record of the call money market yesterday was slightly easier than on Tuesday, but the figures showing the range for the day did not reveal the fact that several of the largest lenders of call money yesterday advanced their renewal rate to the day's maximum of 4 per cent. There may be some recession from present rates after the completion of the readjustments which are following the special Sept. 1 demands, but it seems probable that the money market now, after the September disbursements, just as it did after the July disbursements, has risen to a higher level, which is pretty sure to be maintained until the large Fall demands have been met and money again begins to return for temporary employment in this market. Other centres were reported as lenders in this market yesterday, but money thus placed on call in New York at this season is subject to speedy recall. In the decline which has been under way this week in foreign exchange rates is seen the natural result of the forward tendency in our own money rates.

As the Summer passes into the Fall the great steel industry is fulfilling the indications of further expansion and continued rise in prices which were afforded by the incidents of the past two months in the iron and steel markets. The figures compiled by The Iron Age showed that the furnaces in blast on Sept. 1 promised a higher rate of production in September than in any previous month of this year. August was a month of large production, greatly exceeding the output of that month in earlier years and surpassing by some 100,000 tons the output of July, though the August total fell below the June output. The advancing tendency which began to show itself in steel prices last April and gradually extended to the iron market and to the raw material market continues under way, showing the broad effect which the recovery in the demand for steel products is having upon all branches of the industry. The situation is one which promises well for steel manufacturers the balance of this year as well as into next year, so far as a period still somewhat remote can be judged by present conditions.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 3@4 per cent., with the last loan at 3 per cent. Most of the day's loans were made at 3¾ per cent.

Time money rates, 3¾@4 per cent., for thirty days, 4@4½ per cent. for sixty days, 4¾@5 per cent. for ninety days, 5@5¼ per cent. for four, five and six months.

Commercial paper was quoted at 5@5½ per cent. for the best names.

New York Clearing House statement: Exchanges, $404,093,162; balances, $25,574,527; Sub-Treasury debit balance, $111,550.

The local banks have lost $3,651,000 on their Sub-Treasury operations since Friday.

FOREIGN RATES.

Discount rates abroad yesterday were: London, 3½ per cent. for short bills and 3⅝ per cent. for three months' bills; Paris, 2¾ per cent., and Berlin, 4⅜ per cent. The money rates were 1¾@2 per cent. in London and 3½ per cent. in Berlin.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Vermont Election.

Having been told for several days that the stock market was waiting to learn the result of the Vermont election, Wall Street's regular visitors were all agog with expectancy when they took their accustomed places before the quotation boards yesterday morning. True, the election news had proved confusing, but it was assumed that Wall Street would know what interpretation to put on the results. But Wall Street either did not know how to take the returns, or refused to see anything in them on which to base a market movement. The market was dull again.

Increased Texas Dividend.

The Texas Company's next quarterly dividend payment, to be made on the last day of this month, will be 1½ per cent., which places the stock upon a 6 per cent. basis. The 5 per cent. rate was adhered to for only one year. Up to June of last year the oil company was paying 10 per cent., the rate having been lowered from 12 per cent. simultaneously with a 50 per cent. stock dividend paid in 1910. It is surprising how rapidly an oil company's profits rise and fall. Up to the early part of last year the Texas Company was reported to be making a great deal of money. Then it became known that profits, with prices at the low level obtaining at that time, were almost nil, and the price of Texas shares fell with great suddenness. A year ago this week the stock sold at 84, whereas it is now quoted at 127. Fluctuations like that tend to substantiate John D. Rockefeller's opinion, as given on the witness stand during the suit against the Standard, that the oil business is always perilous.

Another Morgan Fable.

A story from Boston yesterday said that J. P. Morgan & Co. had an offer for the $11,000,000 of Père Marquette common stock which has long rested in their safe deposit vaults. The same story asserted that the bankers had received a previous offer from the Hawley syndicate, but that they refused it owing to the fact that the offering price was $250,000 less than the cost of the stock to Morgan. A receivership has intervened between the two alleged offers, so that the market value of the shares has greatly depreciated since the Hawley syndicate's bid. Newman Erb, who is now running the Père Marquette, or endeavoring to run it, although the property is actually in charge of the receivers, said yesterday when the story was brought to his attention that it was without any foundation, so far as he knew. As for J. P. Morgan & Co., it was intimated in their behalf that any intending purchaser of the Michigan road's stock would not have had to quarrel over a little difference like $250,000.

Larchmont's Financing.

The bond market ought to get some impetus from a forthcoming issue of bonds by the Village of Larchmont. The trustees are advertising for bids for eleven bonds of $500 each, one to be paid off on Oct. 1, 1913, and one each year for ten years thereafter. The successful bidder is to fix the interest rate, and he must go to the engraver and arrange for the issuance of his eleven bonds. It was suggested yesterday that some of Larchmont's wealthy commuters might make up a pool and submit an all-or-none bid.

Earnings in July.

A measure of the extent of the business recovery throughout the United States is furnished by the July railroad earnings now coming to hand. The Atlantic Coast Line's revenues increased $209,000, but its net, after taxes, showed a loss of $93,000. The Chicago & Alton had a decrease of $84,000 in gross and another of $70,000 in net. The Rock Island had an unusually good month—gross earnings increased $647,000 and net $449,000. The Burlington's gross revenues were larger by $253,000 and its net gained $225,000. The Louisville & Nashville showed an increase of $215,000 in revenues, but had $125,000 less net, while the Missouri Pacific, which has been getting its operating expenses under control after a long struggle, showed an increase of $743,000 in its July net after taxes.

Track Hands Go to the Farms.

In the West the big transportation systems have been complaining that about four out of every five men sent out from the cities to do track work are enticed away by promises of higher wages on near-by farms. As a result, it has been well nigh impossible to get anything but essential repair work attended to since the middle of July. The railroads in the East are now having great difficulty in obtaining even enough labor for ordinary maintenance of way work, but they attribute the shortage to the extensive road building by State and county Governments. Railroad hands work in small gangs under experienced foremen, and the men have learned that they can make as good wages with less exertion in constructing new highways. An official of the Lehigh Valley said yesterday that his company had managed to keep a full force in the transportation department, but that it was difficult to get men for work on the tracks. When the road building stops with the approach of cold weather the railroads will have all the men they can use, but the season for track work will have passed. The carriers have to do most of their realignment, ballasting, and laying of new rails in the warm months. Employment bureaus catering to the foreign element have had a standing offer of good wages, transportation, and steady work for several hundred men posted in their windows all Summer, without once getting a full quota.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Trading was in small volume on the Curb yesterday, though well distributed through the list, but prices moved narrowly. There was a fair amount of activity in United Cigar Stores of America between 97¼ and 99¼, the close being at 98⅝, ⅛ above the opening level. Intercontinental Rubber sold down to 12 on transactions of 800 shares. In the mining list there was a continuance of weakness, though the close was in most instances above the low levels of the day.

Transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN.

Forecast of a $4,500,000 Surplus for Sears-Roebuck This Year.

Reports to THE NEW YORK TIMES from other cities showed few significant price changes as a result of yesterday's dealings.

United Railways notes again made a new high record at Baltimore. The general market was quiet but steady.

The selling of Wolverine continued in Boston, and the price fell to 98 at one time. North Butte was active and quite strong. Old Dominion did not change much on the announcement of the increased dividend. Calumet & Arizona went up a fraction, but none of the coppers was active. There was a 1⅞ rise, to 46, in Butte & Superior. Old Dominion eased 1, to 59¾; North Butte crossed ¾ line, and United Fruit settled to 188⅝.

Trading on the Chicago Exchange, while quiet, resulted in mixed price changes. Pneumatic Tool and American Shipbuilding common both declined a point during the early part of the day. Illinois Brick reflected the rumor that the company would pay an extra dividend from this year's earnings, amounting to 1 or 2 per cent. Ogden Gas bonds sold down on offerings which appeared to come from the same source that was a persistent buyer of these securities several years ago. There were small offering of Commonwealth Edison shares, which depressed the price.

Based upon estimated gross sales of $80,000,000 by Sears-Roebuck in 1912, it is said that the company will show net earnings of around $8,000,000 and about $4,500,000 in surplus. In the event of the latter exhibit the corporation will have a total surplus of between $11,000,000 and $12,000,000 against part of which the stockholders are expecting to receive a liberal stock dividend.

After lying dormant for many weeks the General Asphalt stocks suddenly came to life at Philadelphia. Some little pressure was applied at the opening. The resulting reaction was quickly availed of to purchase both issues in considerable quantities, and a sharp rebound followed. From the low point of 27¾ the common advanced to 29¼ at the closing, while the preferred rose from 67¼ to 69¼. Activity in Cambria Steel was again in evidence and a fractional gain resulted.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 5.—The Times says in its City article to-day:

"The demand for money was quiet yesterday, and the abundance of the supply obliged lenders to accept rather lower terms for day-to-day advances.

"There was less disposition to take bills owing to the knowledge that gold withdrawals from the Bank of England on foreign account were not likely to cease for some time to come. Quotations for all maturities were firm, but unaltered.

"Berlin discount rates hardened, and the Berlin Cheque moved against London.

"Two hundred thousand pounds in sovereigns will be withdrawn from the Bank to-day for Constantinople. The impression prevailed yesterday that gold would also be taken on Brazilian account.

"Business in the stock markets was less active, and on the whole the tone was dull, though in some cases an improvement was noticeable in the late dealings.

"American and Canadian Pacific shares were supported late in the afternoon by Wall Street operators, prices being carried to the highest points of the day.

"In the mining markets South African and copper shares suffered from further profit-taking and sales from Paris."

PARIS, Sept. 4.—Prices on the Bourse were lower to-day on realizing and the weakness in French rentes, which declined 30c. The market closed heavy.

Three per cent. rentes, 92f. 45c. for the account.

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—The weakness in New York yesterday depressed values on the Boerse to-day.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

While at the start of business on the 9:30 o'clock opening call stocks were in demand on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, they were supplied on the higher levels attained later in the day. The call quotations in most cases reflected gains compared with the closing prices on Tuesday, but high quotations for the day were in a number of important instances fractionally under the top figures touched on the New York Stock Exchange. Trading on the call was unusually diversified, the transactions totaling 5,580 shares in the half hour before business began on the other Exchange, being distributed among twenty-two different issues. Wabash preferred changed hands on the call at 14¼ and 14⅛, the only transactions in that stock reported in Wall Street during the day.

ARGUE EMPIRE SURETY DEAL.

Company's Counsel Says It Is Only Protecting Policy Holders.

Asserting that the Empire State Surety Company would suffer a loss of between $100,000 and $500,000 in the next five years if the proposed merger with the National Surety Company was effected, Fred G. Lemmermann and other minority stockholders in the Empire Company asked Justice Kelby, in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday to enjoin the company from reinsuring its business in the National. Decision was reserved.

Mr. Lemmermann, through his counsel, Edward Lazansky, Secretary of State and member of the law firm of Jonas, Lazansky & Neuberger, attorneys for the plaintiffs, declared that at a meeting of the Directors of the Empire State Surety Company on Aug. 22 a resolution was passed authorizing the reinsurance of its business in the National Surety Company and stated the terms of the transaction. He said he and the minority stockholders interested with him in the action object to the terms in the proposed contract, and were of the opinion that a better arrangement could be made with other surety companies if they were allowed to compete for the proposed reinsurance.

Former Judge Isaac N. Oeland of the law firm of Dykman, Oeland & Kuhn, attorneys for the defendants, argued that there was no purpose on the part of the Empire Company's Directors than to protect the policy holders.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

Grain Steadies in Face of Big Receipts—Cotton and Coffee Up.

The grain markets were less active, showing some recovery from the previous decline due to better cash conditions and good export business in wheat. Receipts were heavy, particularly of wheat and oats. Weather conditions were favorable for corn. Provisions were irregular. Product stock decreased largely for the month. Cottonseed oil sagged, with demand slow. Cotton again advanced sharply. Weather conditions showed no improvement. The weekly weather report was bullish and shorts covered. Coffee continued excited and strong on additional frost news from Brazil.

WHEAT.

The wheat market developed a better tone, and closed at a slight net advance. The least advance was in Minneapolis September, which is feeling the pressure of cash wheat. The improvement was influenced also by reports of good milling business and of good export sales. The receipts were heavy, but this did not seem to have the weight of the movement last week. Minneapolis and Duluth cars combined were 849, against 359 last week and 531 last year, while the car lots, including Chicago, were 1,425, against 628 last week and 805 last year. The total interior receipts for the day were 600,000 bushels more than last week and nearly 700,000 bushels more than last year. The movement for the half week has gained 2,000,000 bushels over last week and nearly 3,000,000 bushels compared with a year ago. Weather conditions were a little unsettled both in the American and Canadian Northwest, and there were reports of frost in a few sections of the Canadian Northwest. The Northwestern Miller reported flour output at three Northwestern points for this week of 374,000 barrels, against 358,000 barrels last year. It reported another satisfactory week with large sales, all classes of buyers seeming willing to cover requirements, and some bought for six months' shipment. The bulk of the orders were shipment before Jan. 1. Indications were that the mills would have an unusually heavy run during the first half of the year, and the majority of the mills had more orders on their books than for years at this time. Quite an important flour export business was done during the week. The export sales reported amounted to about 50 loads, mainly of hard Winter wheat. Cash prices were: No. 2 red, $1.06; No. 1 Northern, $1.01¼; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.02¼; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.03½, all free on board, to arrive.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN.—A better tone prevailed in the corn market, and prices closed at an advance of ⅝c to 1¾c. The September showed the most gain, due to the strength in cash corn, which was reported generally higher throughout the West. The interior receipts, while more than last week, continued slightly under last year. The fact that the high prices for cash corn do not stimulate the movement still more places the September in a firm position. The new crop months were firm, partly in sympathy with September. Offerings were not large and were readily absorbed. The visible supply showed an increase for the week of 290,000 bushels, against 457,000 bushels increase last year. Export corn was quoted at 61¼c, free on board, December to March, and cost, insurance, and freight corn was quoted at 88c to 92c, as to grade.

OATS.—The oats market showed a slow, hardening tone, closing at a small net advance. Cash oats was reported higher at the West, with good demand. The receipts West were large, amounting to 1,456,000 bushels for the day, against 650,000 bushels last year. The visible supply showed an increase of only 921,000 bushels, notwithstanding the heavy receipts of last week, against an increase of 1,680,000 bushels last year. Spot oats were steady, with standards and No. 3 white quoted at 39½c; No. 2 whites, 40c; clipped white, 41@43c. Export sales were 50,000 bushels.

PROVISIONS.

The market was a little irregular, pork showing some heaviness, while lard and ribs were steady. Hogs were firm, and top hogs sold at as high as $9.10 in Chicago. This is about the high point of the season. Chicago stocks decreased during the month 31,000 tierces in contract lard and 13,000 tierces in other lard. Contract pork stocks decreased 1,000 barrels, other grades decreased 15,000 barrels, and the total stocks of meats decreased 31,000,000 pounds. The world's stock of lard decreased 90,000 tierces for the month.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Disregarding the strength of the cotton market and steadiness at times in the pure lard market, oil values were at moderate declines. Demand was extremely quiet, and under limited offerings the list gave way rather easily. An increase in crude offerings was reported from Texas, with the basis said to be lowered, and selling against part of these purchases at the South resulted in new low levels on the Curb. December and January declined to 5.96. No important betterment in the consuming trade was claimed as a result of the less favorable crop advices, and, while the compound lard demand is reported as satisfactory, manufacturers apparently have fair supplies of oil on hand. Most of the bearish sentiment, however, seems based on the probability of selling in the nature of hedges increasing as Southeastern mills become more active.

COTTON.

While the extraordinary advances recorded Tuesday were not duplicated during yesterday's session, the rise in cotton values was uninterrupted and there were substantial gains again scored. The list averaged from 15 to 25 points higher at the outset, and although there were frequent periods of hesitancy resulting in moderate recessions, closing quotations showed that a greater part of the upward movement was intact. The market has shown a recovery of more than 60 points as compared with the prices which prevailed at the close of last week. Sentiment has become decidedly confused, and there seems to be more caution pervading the trade than for some time, with the general belief that the enormous short interest which was outstanding recently has been curtailed considerably.

There again seemed to be more inclination to take into account the bullish crop news, and the claims of exaggeration in the crop damage dispatches were literally ignored. The circulation of reports from the Carolinas, Georgia, and Texas to the effect that abnormal shedding was occurring and that the crop was deteriorating more rapidly than expected was active. Outside demand induced by such claims did not seem to be unusually large, but it was evident that shorts were nervous in spite of their arguments that the crop was only losing its customary ground at the time of maturity. The official forecast was for showers in parts of North Carolina, and it was privately reported that there was rain falling at Charleston, but apprehension did not seem to have been allayed, as the possibility of much moisture occuring over night was regarded as remote.

The weekly weather report exerted influence and was regarded as bullish confirming the recent statements that rain was needed in many sections. This was particularly true of the comment on parts of the Carolinas and Georgia, where it was averred that the need for moisture was severe, while drought was also complained of in Texas and Oklahoma. Some crop experts maintain that precipitation at this late date would be of no avail in some of the southern and central districts of Texas, adding that heavy rains would be injurious, but undoubtedly moisture in other districts would quiet the fears now being expressed. Even then, however, the probabilities are that the much mooted question of the frost date would again receive consideration.

At Liverpool the tendency has been for prices to quite closely follow our lead. The spot sales were rather larger yesterday at 8,000 bales. Manchester reports a satisfactory situation. The mail advices from China stating that last year's trade in cotton goods was above the previous record caused astonishment in view of the chaotic conditions which prevailed during the preceding season. American spot markets yesterday were mainly unchanged to ⅛c higher, with only a limited inquiry credited to spinners.

COFFEE.

Coffee frost fears gained force from numerous cables that the flowering for the new crop had been seriously damaged. The official weather map reported frost in three districts of Brazil, but the lowest temperatures reported were 37 2-5 degrees. Final prices showed net gains of 36 to 42 points. Since the final of last week the market has advanced 68 to 98 points. The cost and freight market was again strong and higher. Business of 25,000 bags was reported. Havre closed at a net advance of 1¾ francs on sales of 125,000 bags, and Hamburg gained 2¼ to 2½ pfennigs on 200,000 bags. In Brazil, prices were 200 reis higher.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

It was reported yesterday that Mrs. Ernesto G. Fabbri had sold the three dwellings at 11, 13, and 15 East Sixty-fourth Street which she acquired in May from Charles Steele of the J. P. Morgan banking firm. The houses cover a plot 60 by 100.5 on the north side of the street between Fifth and Madison Avenues and are under lease to October, 1914. Mrs. Fabbri took the three dwellings in part payment from Mr. Steele, who purchased the large Fabbri house at 11 East Sixty-second Street, a plot 45.6 front, for his home. He had previously purchased the Sixty-fourth Street plot with the intention of erecting a large residence there.

$300,000 Deal on Heights.

Dayton Court, the recently completed six-story elevator apartment house at the northwest corner of 160th Street and Fort Washington Avenue, was purchased yesterday for investment by the Oaklawn Realty Company.

The sellers, the Dayton Realty Company, purchased the plot, which has a frontage of 102 feet on Fort Washington Avenue and 121 feet on 160th Street, about eighteen months ago from the Loyal Smith estate, and broke ground at once for the new structure, which is now fully rented. About $300,000 was involved in the deal, which was negotiated by David Stewart.

Buys Loft Site on Fourth Street.

The three old buildings at the southeast corner of Lafayette and Fourth Streets were purchased yesterday by Charles Laue as a site for a tall mercantile loft.

The three structures occupy a plot 79.1 by 120 feet. The Silas Wood estate is the seller of 383, 387, and 389 Lafayette Street and the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin of 385 Lafayette Street.

The property was held at about $200,000 and was owned for many years by the Jay and Candler estates, which disposed of it in May, 1910, to the Legal Realty and Mortgage Company. Arrangements were made for improving the immediate corner, which was said to have been leased from the plans to G. W. Millar & Co., paper manufacturers. This deal was never consummated, however, and a foreclosure sale last June resulted in the property once more going into the ownership of the estate.

Henry Street Tenement Sold.

The property at 94 Henry Street, a plot 25.8 by 100, occupied by a six-story tenement, with a five-story tenement in the rear, has been sold by the D. H. Jackson Company to Louis Olson. The sellers acquired the property about two months ago. S. Jaffe was the broker in the transaction.

Mount Vernon Residence Sold.

New Jersey.

Paul Moore has sold to a client of Pease & Elliman a large tract of land in the Convent section at Morristown, N. J. The property has a frontage on Canfield Road of about 210 feet and an extensive rear on Woodland and Kitchell Avenues. The purchaser intends to build a handsome residence and generally develop the property. Among the property owners in the immediate vicinity are Franklin B. Dwight, Charles E. Bradley, Gen. E. P. Meany, George P. Schmidt, Gilbert R. Potts, Theodore T. White, and Willard King.

Leases.

The McVickar-Gaillard Realty Company has leased for Thomas B. Hidden the corner store at 346 Madison Avenue to the Mercedes Millinery Company for a term of years; also the store and basement 154 West Forty-fifth Street for Miss May Irwin to J. M. Tierney.

The J. C. Einstein Company, Incorporated, has leased for the Beers Realty Company the store and basement at 865 Broadway for a term of years to Fry & Friedsam.

Pease & Elliman have leased the store at 11 West Thirty-seventh Street for Mrs. Valentine G. Hall to B. R. Gordon for a tearoom. They have also leased apartments at 12 East Eighty-seventh Street to William H. Yawkey of Detroit, at 56 West Eleventh Street to C. E. McManus, J. P. A. Narizzano, and M. G. Horton, and at 145 East Thirty-fifth Street to Mrs. Starking Walker.

Edwin H. Wendell has leased floors and apartments at 30 West Forty-seventh Street to Mrs. Mae Sleeper, Mme. Helene, Capt. Walter S. Brown, Miss Ludmila Vojacek, Justus M. Forman, Mrs. Selma Lewis, and Dr. Leroy R. Stoddard.

The Gaffney Real Estate Company has leased the dwelling 276 West Seventy-third Street for Thomas J. McLaughlin to Dr. Joseph C. Roper.

Daniel Birdsall & Co. have rented the fourth loft at 53 Greene Street to J. Rosenberg & Co., and the first loft at 106 Greene Street to Herman Fishbein. They also rented in connection with William C. Walker's Sons the store and basement at 15 and 17 Greene Street to Van Praag & Co.

Frederick Southack & Alwyn Ball, Jr., have leased for the Marion Realty Company the store at 78 West 125th Street to the Hanover Shoe Company; for the 37 West Thirty-sixth Street Company the fifth loft at 35 to 39 West Thirty-sixth Street to Adolph Breslauer; for the Improved Property Holding Company, space in 395 to 399 Broadway to Gans.

Edward J. Hogan has leased to the Barber Asphalt Paving Company the entire north wing on the sixteenth floor of the Woolworth Building for a term of years.

J. B. English has leased the dwelling 230 West Fifty-second Street to J. Collet; the dwelling at 232 West Fifty-second Street to J. Fiore; 225 West Forty-eighth Street to M. Kenny; 169 West Forty-ninth Street to J. Jacobson; 123 West Forty-eighth Street to M. Steinfeld, Inc.; 222 West Forty-sixth Street to Jerome and Schwartz; 163 West Forty-eighth Street to M. Dugan; 163 West Forty-ninth Street to M. Hill; 259 West Forty-second Street to the Theatrical Calcium Light Operators' Union, Inc.

Rear Thirty-Eighth Street Theatre.

A small theatre for moving picture shows is to be erected in the rear of the altered dwellings at 66 and 68 West Thirty-eighth Street. It will accommodate 266 persons, and will cost $6,000, according to the plans just filed by the architect, Mitchell Bernstein. The small theatre is being erected by T. J. Oakley and Philip Rhinelander, owners of the property, for the lessee, Paul D. Leighton.

Real Estate Notes.

The Title Guarantee and Trust Company has advanced to Gustavus Sidenberg $350,000 on a building loan of $700,000 on the twelve-story fireproof building being erected on the west side of Seventh Avenue, from 124th to 125th Streets.

During the early part of last season, a well known Attorney visited Neponsit. He looked over the property, inspected the many residences, noted the high class of people living there, and became so thoroughly pleased that he arranged to close his handsome New Jersey home—bought four lots at Neponsit and built a $15,000 house, just a few steps from the residence of a prominent New York banker.

You, too, would be delighted with Neponsit. Come down NOW and get an idea of the distinctive class of people who have homes overlooking the ocean at this beautiful place. EDUCATION NOTES.

The Board of Superintendents will hold a meeting to-day, the first since July. The Board of Examiners will hold a meeting to-morrow, also the first since July.

The funeral services of District Supt. Matthew J. Elgas at the West Park Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon were attended by members of the Board of Education, City Supt. Maxwell, a number of Associate City Superintendents and District Superintendents, and members of the Alumni Association of Grammar School 69, of which Dr. Elgas was at one time Principal. A meeting of the Associate City Superintendents and Board of Examiners will be held in the hall of the Board of Education at 10:30 A. M. to-morrow to adopt appropriate resolutions of regret at the death of Dr. Elgas.

Commissioner George C. Miller of the Board of Education has been appointed Chairman of the Committee on Care of Buildings to succeed Frank W. Meyer, who resigned a few weeks ago. Since Mr. Meyer's retirement from the board Mr. Miller has been Acting Chairman of the committee. He is a member of the firm of Frass & Miller, furniture dealers. He is one of the most active and energetic members of the board. There are two vacancies in the membership of the committee, caused by the retirement of Mr. Meyer and the death of Alphonse Weiner. The committee will hold its first meeting since July on Sept. 6.

Associate City Supt. Gustave Straubenmuller has returned to duty after an absence of about eight months due to serious illness. He is now in good health.

An examination for license for promotion, men and women, will be held to-day at the De Witt Clinton High School, Tenth Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street. Applicants must hold License 1 and have had three years' successful experience in teaching.

Registration for the new term in the elementary and high schools was begun yesterday, and will be continued to-day and to-morrow. It is estimated that the elementary school registration will be more than 670,000 and the high school registration about 50,000. The Morris High School will try the plan of holding three daily school sessions this term. In the secondary schools the Principals, first assistants, and clerical assistants reported for work yesterday. The main teaching force will report for duty to-morrow. A large number of newly appointed teachers were at the Department of Education building yesterday signing the Davis school law blanks which show whether they have had previous experience in teaching. It is on these statements that the newcomers will be appointed to their prospective classes.

Associate City Supt. Edson returned yesterday from his short vacation in Vermont, and was at his office. He was one of those who attended the funeral services of Dr. Elgas.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission began to receive applications yesterday for the examination for firemen in the Fire Department. Applications will be received until the closing hour on Oct. 3. No date has been set as yet for the examination. The salary ranges from $1,000 to $1,400 a year. The subjects and weights will be as follows: Physical development and strength, 50; mental test, 50. The mental test will consist of memory test, arithmetic, and government and elementary duties. The age limit is 21 to 29 years on the date of filing the application. Each candidate must be not less than five feet seven and a half inches.

The following reports of Chief Examiner Ireland have been approved by the commission:

On the matter of the request of the Commissioner of Parks, Borough of Queens, for an examination for the position of forester, Mr. Ireland states that he is still of the opinion that appointments to this position should be made from the list of arboriculturist, and appends a copy of the questions in that examination from which it appears that the successful candidates had a knowledge of trees.

Relative to the request of Dr. Joseph Weinberg, that he be transferred from medical inspector to medical examiner in the Street Cleaning Department, Mr. Ireland states that in his opinion such a transfer would not be justified by the character of the examination which medical examiners were called upon to pass, and recommends that the list of police surgeon be certified.

Relative to the request of the Secretary to the Commissioner of Public Works, Manhattan, for approval of the transfer of James J. McCoy from messenger to inspector of complaints, Mr. Ireland states that the positions are in different parts of the classification and that he does not think a strong enough case has been made to warrant the transfer.

Stating that he will endeavor to comply with the suggestions of the Secretary of the Department of Docks and Ferries that in the coming examination for promotion from ticket chopper and doorman to ticket agent, the test be such as would determine a man's fitness to meet the exacting requirements of the position of ticket agent.

United States.

Four examinations were scheduled to be held by the United States Civil Service Commission at the New York Custom House yesterday: Assistant dairyman qualified in creamery operation and buttermaking, assistant dairyman qualified in dairy farming, assistant dairyman qualified in market milk investigation, and women teacher of vocal music at $720 a year in the Sherman Institute, (Indian Service,) California. Only one candidate appeared for the dairy farming examination, and only two candidates for the market milk investigation examination. No candidates appeared for either the butter making examination nor the vocal music teacher examination.

MORSE AT WORK IN HIS OLD OFFICE

LOOKS IN BEST OF HEALTH

The Rumor Is That He'll Revive and Extend New York-Boston Steamship Line—Savings from the Wreck.

Charles W. Morse visited the financial district yesterday for the first time since he went home to Bath, Me., early in June. He stopped at his old offices on the nineteenth floor of the Wall-Exchange Building, which have been occupied for a year or more by a tenant too modest to put a name on the door, and arranged to make his headquarters there. The ex-banker and ex-ice king looked in the best of health and admitted that he expected to be back regularly from now on.

"I haven't any plans," Mr. Morse said with his old urbanity to questions put to him by a TIMES reporter last night. He would not discuss his object in arranging to occupy his old quarters in the Street.

The Morse Securities Company, a concern chartered and supplied with funds by Morse's relatives and friends in 1908, with the idea of buying in some of the wreckage of Morse enterprises then going under the hammer on all sides, has been one of the tenants sharing the nineteenth floor offices in Exchange Place. Mr. Morse was asked if aiding the Morse Securities Company would be one of his chief occupations. He admitted that it probably would, but when it came to answering questions as to just what assets the Morse Securities Company holds or how far it has financial power to develop new enterprises, Mr. Morse became silent. Likewise he refused to discuss the report that he planned to start a new steamship line to New England points.

Since Charles W. Morse was released from the Federal Prison in Atlanta last February on a commuted sentence his name has been linked with reports of new steamship enterprises on the Gulf, Pacific, and Atlantic coasts. The crop of rumors has been particularly thick since his return in May from a course of treatment abroad.

When President Taft commuted his sentence it was on the reports of the doctors that he had but a few months to live, and when he returned from abroad in apparent good health his friends still said: "Mr. Morse will never come back. He has not the strength. His affairs are in bad shape. He did not save anything out of the wreck, and all the energy he has will be needed to untangle the snarls represented by such of his old enterprises as the Morse Securities Company bought up. His family supplied the funds for his trip abroad. No, Mr. Morse hasn't a cent of ready resources."

Now that the organizer who was able to float a $120,000,000 steamship company on the eve of the panic and whose juggling of the finances of the various concerns he controlled outdid anything that Wall Street had ever known before is back at his old offices, the Street will keep a sharp ear to windward for rumors of his plans.

The latest rumor of a steamship deal with which the name of C. W. Morse was linked told of a revival of the Harvard-Yale steamship line to connect New York and Boston by the outside route. This enterprise, the report said, would eventually cover the whole Atlantic seaboard. The Morse Securities Company planned unsuccessfully to get hold of the Metropolitan Steamship Company, the particular subsidiary which owned the Harvard and Yale steamships.

EDWARDS ASKS MORE MONEY.

Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards submitted to the Budget Committee yesterday his estimate for the work of his department for 1913. He asks for $9,111,614, an increase of 23 per cent. over the amount granted for the current year. Some increases of salary are asked for senior officials of the department below the grade of Deputy Commissioner, and money is asked for a new Bureau of Efficiency which will figure out the work of the various grades of men.

In a letter covering his estimates the Commissioner lays stress on the fact that this year he received a diminished rather than an increased appropriation, and makes a special point of the cost of forage for horses of the department. He wishes also to spend $200,000 on street cleaning machines, as he believes they would clean some of the streets without raising "the fine dust that creates such a nuisance."

Some automobile trucks, the Commissioner thinks, should also be introduced for the removal of ashes and garbage and for sprinkling water, and he asks for $210,000 to buy 40 of these.

District Attorney Whitman in sending in his estimate for the year asks for an increase from $355,140 to $380,340. This is the amount that the office cost the county this year, plus $2,400, which is asked to raise the pay of ten process servers, who have done efficient work. In the same way Mr. Whitman asks for the Bureau of Special Sessions Information exactly the amount that this office cost last year, plus an increase of $300 in favor of two process servers.

The Municipal Service Commission wants its appropriation increased by 33.12 per cent. to $57,555. Most of this increase is accounted for by the increase in the amount of work intrusted to the commission, including the police entrance examinations.

The Court of General Sessions is asking for an increase of $13,000 in salaries, but of this $9,500 is mandatory on the city. For supplies, materials, and furniture an increase of only $1,000 is asked, the total increased asked for the court being $13,830.

CASTRO IN PLOT WITH DIAZ.

Zelaya Also Said to be Implicated in Starting Mexican Revolt.

Señor Don Heriberto Barron, commercial agent of the Mexican Government in the United States and formerly candidate for the Presidency, returned to New York Monday after an absence of six months, spent chiefly in Mexico. In an interview yesterday he declared that the Orozco revolt was part of a movement fomented by three deposed heads of Latin American republics to restore the old régime and compel the United States to intervene.

According to Señor Barron these leaders are ex-President Diaz of Mexico, Cipriano Castro of Venezuela, and ex-President Zelaya of Nicaragua. All three, he says, have met frequently in Paris. He continued:

"All three are pronounced enemies of the United States. Their purpose is to create as much trouble as possible so as to compel the American Government to intervene. Intervention by the United States, whether in Mexico, South or Central America, will mean war, and the United States will lose its moral hold on the sister republics."

TRYING TO REVOKE LICENSES.

State Excise Department Gets Evidence Against Cabaret Show Places.

William W. Farley, State Excise Commissioner, has begun action to have revoked the licenses of thirty resorts in which liquor has been sold after hours. This action follows the report of the excise men who have been for several weeks gathering evidence of violations of the excise law. The Commissioner is especially directing his attention to the places where cabaret shows and other forms of amusement keep the crowds late and disregard of the law is flagrant.

As a result of two reports of excise Inspectors, Nate Fenton, whose right name is Nathan Fernandez, was taken before Magistrate House in the West Side Court yesterday and held in $2,000 bail upon two charges of having sold liquor after hours in his restaurant, the Pekin, Forty-seventh Street and Broadway. Fernandez waived examination and was held for Special Sessions.

Magistrate House also held for Special Sessions Henry Newman, Albert Kaufman, Sam Sun, and Gregory Mendoza, waiters at the Pekin, charged with selling liquor at an illegal hour.

When Commissioner Farley visited the Pekin several weeks ago and warned the management that the law was being violated he was not impressed with their promise to close up. After giving the warning and making a trip to Harlem, the Commissioner, in passing the Pekin on his way to his hotel in the early morning, noticed that the restaurant was still doing business. Soon afterward the agents of his department started to gather evidence.

With the spread of the cabaret show the State Excise Department found a steady growth in the number of places that openly violated the law by selling liquor after hours. Mr. Farley said that the evident purpose of the cabaret show was to hold patrons after hours in order to sell more drinks.

The Commissioner's efforts to enforce the law have been limited by the small number of men at his disposal for investigations. The investigation made, however, has been broad enough to allow Charles Firestone, counsel for the department, to obtain orders against thirty places compelling them to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked.

The orders were obtained from Justice McCall of the Special Term of the Supreme Court. Eighteen of them are returnable to-morrow and the others on the 10th and 12th. Some of the places involved are the Times Square Hotel, the Green Turtle Cafe, in Forty-fourth Street just west of Broadway; the Oxford Garden, 361 West 125th Street; Joel's, in West Forty-first Street; the Reno, 28 West Twenty-ninth Street; Burney's, in West 135th Street, and McPherson's, in West Fifty-ninth Street. A number of places against which action has been taken are in Brooklyn.

The activities of the State Excise Department in this city have revived the almost passing profession of doorman. In every place where liquor is sold after legal closing hours the "everybody welcome" has been modified, and to obtain an entrance one must be known to the doorman or prove to his satisfaction that one is not in quest of evidence. The excise men say that the attempt to revoke the licenses of these thirty places is only the beginning.

THREE-CENT CARS RUNNING.

Line Begins Operation Five Minutes After Decisive Court Action.

Street cars of the three-cent line began to run yesterday afternoon over the Manhattan Bridge for the accommodation of the public, starting to take passengers within five minutes of the decision by Justice Kelby refusing the injunction sought by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company and the associated street car lines against the leasing to the three-cent fare line by the Brooklyn Edison Company of power to operate.

The decision of the court was based on the fact that the street car companies had no right to come into court to oppose the three-cent line. They have no vested rights in the use of the bridge, it held, though they have a revocable license issued by the Bridge Commissioner. All that this license would entitle them to do, said Justice Kelby, was to appear before the Public Service Commission and oppose an application of the three-cent line for a certificate of convenience and necessity. The proper person to bring an action against the three-cent line, he declared, would be the Attorney General as the representative of the people.

Justice Kelby also disposed of the contention of the plaintiffs that the Edison Company was exceeding its charter rights by selling power to be used beyond the bounds of Brooklyn, by declaring that it was only selling the power at one of its own sub-stations and was not concerned with the use made of it afterward.

The attack made on the three-cent line on the ground that it could not obtain the right to operate all the line for which it had received a franchise was overruled by the fact that a provision was inserted in the original contract against the exercise of any forfeiture, if the company was unable to obtain the consents essential to the operation of its whole route.

An application for a similar injunction to that decided yesterday in Kings is down for hearing to-day before Justice Newburger in the New York courts. It is thought unlikely that this application will now be pressed.

TO RETIRE ADMIRAL WARD?

Order for Medical Examination of Port Supervisor Here So Construed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—There was surprise in naval circles to-day when an order was issued directing Rear Admiral Aaron Ward, now Supervisor of the Port of New York, to appear before a medical board for examination as to his fitness for active duty. This seems to mean that Admiral Ward is slated for compulsory retirement.

Admiral Ward until recently was in command of the Third Division of the Atlantic fleet. A few months ago he was shifted to the command of the First Division, but within a few days he was relieved and offered a place on the General Board in Washington. According to some of his friends, Admiral Ward felt that he was not being treated fairly, and decided to continue in command of the First Division. He declined the assignment to duty with the General Board. When Secretary Knox was directed by President Taft to attend the funeral of the late Emperor of Japan in person, Admiral Ward was designated to act as his naval aid, but this duty he declined on the ground of his health. This caused some comment in the naval administration, and, it was said, was responsible for the department's action in ordering him before a medical board.

Rear Admiral Ward, when interviewed over the telephone at his residence, Bryant Avenue, Roslyn, L. I., said last night that he had received no orders as yet to submit to a physical examination. He would not comment on the statement that he declined to serve on the Naval Board because he felt that he had been unfairly treated by the naval authorities. He said that the only reason he had for declining the trip to Japan to represent President Taft at the Mikado's funeral was ill-health.

Has any one said "Hello, Mr. Goodresser!" to you? If you are wearing one of the New Fall Truly Warner Hats you may be taken for Mr. Goodresser. Say, "Hello, Mr. Goodresser!" and he will hand you an order for a new fall Truly Warner hat. If you can't find Mr. Goodresser you can find the new fall hat he is wearing at any Truly Warner store.

COUNTRY IS RICHER IN GOLD THAN EVER

WE HAVE $1,220,932,997

Money Is Not All in the Washington Vaults—Storage Double What It Was Ten Years Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—There is more gold in the vaults of the United States Treasury than ever before in the history of the country, and according to the Government's fiscal experts, there is now more gold in the possession of the Treasury than has ever been stored in the vaults of any nation at one time.

At the close of business last night the gold in the vaults of the Treasury amounted to $1,220,932,997.68. It was made up in this way:

A reserve fund of $710,000,000, of which $100,000,000 was in gold coin, and $50,000,000 in gold bullion held for the redemption of United States notes and of Treasury notes of 1890; this reserve fund being fixed by law at $150,000,000 at all times.

A trust fund of $1,054,375,269 in gold held for the redemption of gold certificates of that amount outstanding, and of this enormous fund of over a billion in gold $888,925,973 is in gold coin and $165,449,296 is in gold bullion.

A fund of $16,557,728.68 in gold coin is held in the general fund in the Treasury offices for daily use in the current operations of the Treasury.

To be more accurate, the crest of this greatest aggregation of gold in the Federal Treasury was reached at the close of business on Aug. 28, when the total reached $1,222, 000,000 in round numbers, and it has since been in that neighborhood.

This gold is not all in Washington. In fact, most of it is outside of Washington. It is in Treasury vaults, but some of these vaults are in the Sub-Treasuries, some are at the mints, and others are in the Assay Offices. But all of it is held by the Treasury to back up its credit and the good faith of the Government's currency in gold.

Treasury records show that this vast treasure of gold in Uncle Sam's vaults is more than double the amount there ten years ago. The total amount of gold in the Treasury on Oct. 1, 1902, was $373,807,825.09, of which $150,000,000 was held in the reserve fund, $346,612,089 was in the trust funds, and $77,195,736.09 was in gold coin in the general fund.

What it means to have nearly a billion and a quarter of gold coin and bullion stored in the vaults of Uncle Sam may be better appreciated from the fact that according to estimates by the Director of the Mint, carried along from year to year, the total production of gold in the world from the discovery of America until, and including, the year 1909 was 647,853,790 ounces, valued at $13,392,328,200.

In other words, the store of gold in Treasury vaults is now almost one-tenth of the total world production of gold since Columbus found America, and the comparison is all the more striking when the fact is taken into consideration that much of this gold has gone into arts and manufactures. The total stock of gold in the monetary systems of the world is about $6,000,000,000, of which nearly $5,000,000,000 is in banks and public treasuries, the balance in circulation.

America's great hoard of gold, which is by far the largest possessed by any nation, is now scattered between Washington, New York, Denver, and San Francisco. Most of the vaults in which it is stored, with the exception of some of modern construction in Washington, are of a sort that modern cracksmen armed with oxy-acetylene burners could cut their way into in a few hours.

The Treasury Department has planned to build under the new Assay Office in Wall Street a modern vault which will extend five stories below the street level and be large enough to hold about $2,000,000,000 of gold coin or bars. The new vault will be of the most modern construction, which is a combination of steel and concrete designed to resist the oxy-acetylene jet, as well as explosives and drills.

The new vaults under Wall Street, for which Congress will probably be asked to appropriate $50,000, will have the additional protection of being below the water level and will be of the type which is set up on pillars, thus having an open space on all sides.
